4 MORE SKELETONS IN INDIANA MYSTERY

Police Believe Some Were Shipped from Chicago in Trunks to Mrs. Gunness's Farm.

WIDOW MAY NOT BE DEAD

Search Is Being Made for Woman Who Advertised for Husbands—Two Women Among Victims.

Special to The New York Times.

LAPORTE, Ind., May 6.—The record of Mrs. Belle Gunness as a dealer in assassination was enhanced greatly to-day by the discovery of four more skeletons in the yard and barn lot of her late residence, and it is more than probable that the number of murders will reach a score or more before the burying ground at the widow's home is depopulated of her victims.

Testimony of draymen who had carted trunks and boxes to the Gunness home lent color to the supposition that the bodies had been shipped to Mrs. Gunness to be buried. Laporte police also received information that two trunks consigned to "Mrs. Belle Gunness, Laporte, Ind.," are held in an express office in Chicago. Assistance of the Chicago police in unraveling the puzzle was sought at once.

One of the mysteries that no theory seems adequate to solve is the discovery of the bodies of women among the dead, one being found yesterday and another to-day. Were all the victims men, the police would unhesitatingly say that they were persons of more or less means whom the widow had lured to her home through matrimonial advertisements and then finding that they had money on their persons, she made way with them for the money.

But the presence of women among the victims of the murder mill and the fact that one of them at least was dismembered before being deposited in the ground leads to a partial confirmation of the theory that Mrs. Gunness was running a murder fence as well as being in the business herself, and that some of the murders, especially those of the women, were committed in Chicago and the bodies shipped to her to be disposed of.

Gunny Sacks Found in the Graves.

This theory again is strengthened by the additional fact that gunny sacks or pieces of decayed gunny sacks were found in the graves, and in all such cases the bodies had been dismembered. To place the bodies in sacks for shipment in trunks would be a very natural thing, and to the police it does not seem possible that Mrs. Gunness would have the sacks on hand or would have purchased them for such a purpose.

In the case of some of the victims the reverse was true, for two skeletons were found upon a piece of old mattress and another had been buried in a nude state, and in neither case was the victim's body dismembered.

Pursuant to this theory the local officers have asked the Chicago authorities to attempt to trace certain trunks that were received from time to time at the Gunness home, presumably from Chicago. Expressmen have been found who delivered such trunks, but as Mrs. Gunness had many visitors and some of them were at her home for as much as a week before they disappeared it is more than possible that some of their trunks were ordered either before or after they were murdered.

Police Seek Mrs. Gunness.

At least two men, who later disappeared, were at the Gunness home for more than a week, and one of them is said to have had his trunk sent there. The Chicago authorities have also been asked to look for Mrs. Gunness, and her photographs are being sent out to all the police departments of the principal cities.

The police are backing away from the theory that she perished with her three children in the burning of her home. The head of the body supposed to be Mrs. Gunness has not been found, and it seems impossible that it could have been entirely destroyed, when the remainder of the body was left practically unharmed, only being slightly scorched.

Those who saw the body which was thought to be that of Mrs. Gunness now seem to question if it was as large as the woman it was supposed to represent. She had a mouthful of gold teeth. Nothing had been found to justify the belief that she perished. Every Police Department in the country will be placed on her trail, and if she is trying to get back to Norway she may be apprehended.

Man's Skeleton in a Box.

The first body found to-day was uncovered at a point about five feet from the spot where other bodies were found yesterday. A large crowd of curious people were present, and slowly and carefully the Sheriff and his assistant removed the earth, and the skeleton of a man was exposed. It was lying face downward, and had apparently been carelessly dumped into a box and then covered. Among the debris that covered the body was a little tin stove, the plaything of a baby, perhaps of one of the Gunness children.

The finding of this body to-day may prove conclusively that two men who visited the Gunness home about the same time a year ago are the victims. One of them was a young man, a stranger, who was known as the sweetheart of Jennie Olson and who was to have married her, but he disappeared.

The other may be a middle-aged Swede from a town near Minneapolis, who answered one of Mrs. Gunness's advertisements. He came here and spent several days, during which time he had a draft for $1,000 honored on a Minneapolis bank. The money went to Mrs. Gunness. Sheriff Smutzer obtained the name of the man from Cashier J. W. Crumpacker of the Laporte Savings Bank to-day, but both refused to divulge it until it is known whether the man is missing.

Skeleton of a Woman Unearthed.

Within two hours three more bodies had been unearthed. Two of them were bodies of men and one was that of a woman. All of them had been buried without any clothing, but pieces of rotted sacks were found in the graves. One of the

BIDS THE SICK FORGET IT.

Minister, Won to New Thought Method, Turns Study Into Hospital.

The Rev. Dr. Frederick Campbell, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Clinton Street and First Place, Brooklyn, who has been conducting an Emmanuel Church Clinic for nearly three months, talked enthusiastically last night about the new method of healing.

Dr. Campbell, becoming interested in the reports of the Boston Emmanuel Church method of treating nervous diseases, went to that city and underwent treatment himself so that he could see what it was like. He then associated himself with Dr. Frederick C. Crawford of the Long Island College Hospital, Dr. F. W. Moore, a dentist, and Dr. William Simmons, an oculist. He was then ready to start in with his cures.

People who want treatment from Dr. Campbell were first sent to one or all of the three doctors named, and if they thought the patient's ailment was of a nervous nature, or of a kind that would yield to the Emmanuel thought suggestion method, the patients then returned at appointed times to the pastor's study.

He then let them lie at perfect ease in a big reclining chair, under a strong electric light, and after they had lain a while he talked to them in a soothing voice, appealing to their "subconscious selves" to forget it. Within the first two and a half months of this experimental clinic the pastor has treated ten or twelve in his study, and about the same number of patients at their homes.

Most of the patients suffering from nervous disorders have either been cured, said Mr. Campbell, or have improved. One man, suffering from rheumatism, has received aid. Parents whose children have nervous disorders are taught how to treat their children after the children have gone to sleep. The parents sit by the bedside, appealing to the young subconscious self.

The Rev. Dr. Campbell will continue his clinic.

500 DRIVEN FROM HOMES.

Fear of Collapse of Tenements Forces Officials to Act Quickly.

Seventy-two families of Italians, numbering about 500 men, women, and children, were driven out of their homes in 432 and 434 East Eleventh Street and the two rear tenements of the same numbers last night by order of Building Commissioner Mitchell, who feared that the buildings might collapse. It was raining and the Italians objected to leaving their flats.

When they learned, however, that the building might fall in on them they made haste to get out. For several hours the sidewalks in the neighborhood were littered with their goods, but finally all the tenants and their belongings dispersed to other lodgings or the homes of friends.

The danger which threatens the two big tenements and their rear extensions was caused by the work of excavation in a lot adjoining 432 East Eleventh Street, where another tenement is to be erected. A crack appeared in the rear wall of the tenement yesterday afternoon, and one of the tenants notified Sergt. Boyle of the East Fifth Street Station, who telephoned to the Building Department.

YOUTH AND GIRL MISSING.

Coney Police Say Elopement, but Girl's Father Suspects Foul Play.

The Coney Island police were searching last night for Frances Napier, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Frederick Napier, a Coney Island real estate dealer, and Leslie Vinton, 17 years old, who lives with his parents on a houseboat in Gravesend Bay.

The girl left home at West Twenty-second Street and Railroad Avenue on Tuesday. She received a postal card asking her to attend a meeting of the Rosewood, a girl's club, at 1 o'clock that day. When she did not return it was discovered that the postal was not written by Miss Jeffrey, the President of the club, but by Vinton. Young Vinton assisted the father and the police in the search. He said the girl had visited the houseboat on Tuesday afternoon, but that about 8 P. M. he had rowed her ashore and landed her within two blocks of the house.

Young Vinton stuck to his story, and assisted in the search until about midnight Tuesday. Early yesterday morning he started out again to look for Frances, and then he, too, disappeared.

About noon yesterday James Bruno, an Italian, telephoned to Mr. Napier that he had just seen his daughter at Ulmer Park. The father hastened there, but could not find the girl. The police believe that Vinton joined the girl somewhere. The father believes the girl has met with foul play.

THROUGH TWO WINDOWS.

Crazy Hotel Guest Provides a Sensation Near Broadway.

A man who registered at the Hotel Churchill, Fourteenth Street and Broadway, just before midnight last night as George Miller of 234 West Twenty-first Street, and was sent to a room on the third floor, appeared in the hall a few minutes later clad in pajamas.

Bellhops and housemen chased him, and Miller ran out on to a fire escape. Thence he jumped on to the roof of the rear extension of the clothing store, at 10 East Fourteenth Street, one floor below. He hit a glass skylight and crashed through it into the store.

There he yelled that he wanted to get out. Presently people in Fourteenth Street saw him running back and forth in front of the show window and trying to open the door. He failed in this, and, getting a running start, he suddenly dived head first through the big window, falling on the sidewalk in a shower of broken glass.

Dr. Baldwin took him to St. Vincent's Hospital. There it was said that he was crazy.

Couple Held for Trunk Mystery.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., May 6.—Mr. and Mrs. James D. Farmer were to-day held to await the action of the Grand Jury on the charge of murder in the first degree in having killed Mrs. Sarah Brennan of Brownville, whose body was found in a trunk April 27.

13 SCHOOL BUILDINGS DECLARED UNSAFE

Fire Commissioner Urges the Board of Education to Close Them Immediately.

SAYS THEY ARE FIRE TRAPS

Precautionary Measures for Safeguarding Pupils Recommended In 516 Other Schools.

Fire Commissioner Hayes transmitted yesterday to the Department of Education recommendations that thirteen public school buildings in New York City be closed or rebuilt at once. The Fire Commissioner declares that the schools are unsafe. Suggestions are made for changes in 516 other buildings, in which alterations, water buckets, extinguishers, fire alarm telegraph systems, gongs, fire drills, fireproof vaults, and other improvements are necessary, in the opinion of the fire battalian chiefs, to make them safe for school purposes.

These are the buildings recommended to be closed or rebuilt, and what the battalion chiefs have to say about them:

Manhattan.

SCHOOL 35, at 314 West Seventeenth Street.—This building to be made safe for pupils should be entirely rebuilt, as it is in a dangerous condition; a watchman should be in charge at night.

SCHOOL 56, at 351-355 West Eighteenth Street.—This building should be entirely rebuilt; a watchman should be in charge at night.

The Bronx.

SCHOOL 28, at 1,787 Weeks Avenue.—This school is an old frame structure, and unless there is some very good reason, would recommend that same be discontinued for school purposes.

Richmond.

SCHOOL 26, at Richmond Turnpike and Wilde Avenue, Linoleumville.—This building is in a dangerous condition and requires immediate attention.

Brooklyn.

BOYS' HIGH SCHOOL, (Annex,) at 1,210 Bedford Avenue.—Telegraph communication with department headquarters; all wooden stairways replaced with iron stairs; all stair halls be made fireproof; in fact, this building should be replaced with a new one.

SCHOOL 50, at 259-261 South Fourth Street.—This building is unfit for school purposes, and recommend same be discontinued.

SCHOOL 48, at Eighteenth and Ovington Avenues—Building being frame, and the way it is constructed, it is not safe as a public school.

SCHOOL 93, at Van Sicklen Street, near Neck Road.—Recommend that this building be closed up and discontinued for school purposes.

SCHOOL 101, at Eighty-sixth Street, Opposite Bay Seventeenth Street.—Would recommend that it be replaced with new building.

BRANCH HIGH SCHOOL, at Fifth Avenue and Ninety-second Street.—Needs stair fire escapes on both sides of building if continued for school purposes.

SCHOOL, 96, at Ocean Avenue, Between Avenues V and W, Brooklyn.—This building should be closed up, as it is unfit for school purposes.

SCHOOL 130, (Annex,) at Prospect Avenue, Between Vanderbilt Street and Greenwood Avenue.—This building should be abandoned for school purposes.

Queens.

SCHOOL 81, at Myrtle and Cypress Avenues.—Recommend that this school be closed up, as it is not fit for school purposes.

Here are some of the important suggestions regarding other buildings gleaned from the remaining 516 schools inspected by the battalion chiefs:

Manhattan.

SCHOOL 112, at 83 Roosevelt Street, in the Heart of the Lower East Side.—Remove old books from cellar, close openings through floors for steam pipes with metal or fireproof material.

SCHOOL 177, at 64 Market Street.—Door leading from cellar made fireproof, also fireproof stairway. The location of this school is dangerous on account of the paper warehouses in the immediate vicinity.

SCHOOL 42, in Hester Street from Ludlow to Orchard.—Stairway east end of building on Ludlow Street side, which ends at second floor, (known as Exit 9,) should be carried up to the third, fourth, and fifth floors; same at stairway known as Exit 8. Doors of Rooms 203, 303, and 403 should be closed and new doors be cut about twenty feet further away at other end of these rooms, so as to leave doors in pairs instead of present way, (three together,) to prevent congestion.

SCHOOL 124, at 29 Horatio Street.—Temporary brace on first floor which extends from front to rear of building should be removed or covered with fireproofing material, as it runs directly over the boiler and is in a dangerous condition. William J. Shearn, third class fireman, has no license, is in charge of same, as there is no janitor for this school. Front room, west side of building, is in bad and plaster and in bad condition, and fireproof doors should be placed over same. Fireproof doors should be placed at five openings to yard, west side, or be closed up.

SCHOOL 33, at 418 West Twenty-eighth Street.—Fire escapes should be placed on annex; all stairways should be made fireproof; need for weekly fire drills under the supervision of the Fire Department.

SCHOOL 93, at 604 Amsterdam Avenue.—Electric buzzer should be placed at Principal's desk, with electric buttons at some convenient place on each floor and cellar, having a code of signals between teachers, janitor, and Principals; not to be used except in case of a real fire, when some authorized person should send in the alarm of fire to this department.

SCHOOL 179, at 101st Street, between Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues.—Should remove all combustible material not absolutely necessary from all parts of the building; should have self-closing fireproof doors at entrance to cellar, in place of wooden ones; permanent steps needed from window sills of classrooms to fire escapes to assist children in case of necessity.

SCHOOL 124, at 31 West 116th Street.—Needs balcony fire escapes, and all windows leading to them should be made doors; wooden doors in cellar should be made fireproof.

SCHOOL 163, at 506 East 120th Street.—Playground in basement should be abolished; stairways throughout building should be made fireproof; needs fire escapes on all sides of building; present escapes are too steep; doors at top floor exit leading to fire escape should be made to one by means of hinges, as the present door obstructs part of passageway to exit; gas radiator should be removed.

SCHOOL 4, (Annex,) at Washington Avenue, between 174th and 175th Streets.—Curtains dividing classrooms should be removed; rubbish should be removed by the Department of Street Cleaning every day.

SCHOOL 20, at 45 Rivington Street.—Needs signs, red globes and diagrams, and exits widened.

SCHOOL 21, at 222 Mott Street.—Oils should be stored in fireproof vault outside; scrap and waste paper should be placed in metal receptacles; needs red globes and diagrams.

Richmond.

SCHOOL 17, at Prospect Avenue and Linden Street, New Brighton.—Needs standpipe placed in serviceable condition and all necessary appliances; should have fireproof mats under stoves in cooking room.

SCHOOL 9, in Knight Avenue, New Dorp.—Needs fireproof stairways; dispense with kindergarten on the upper floor and remove to first floor; needs fire drills regularly and fire alarm telegraph. This building requires many changes and alterations to make it absolutely safe.

Brooklyn.

SCHOOL 29, at Columbia and Amity Streets.—Doors of playrooms should be double, twelve feet wide, and to open both ways; boys and girls' yard should be left unlocked.

SCHOOL 47, at Pacific Street, between Third Avenue and Nevins Street.—Among other things some means should be provided to shut off draught which comes from basement and courtyard.

SCHOOL 16, at 145 Wilson Street.—Should

THE WRIGHTS FLY 1,000 FEET.

New Aeroplane Will Be Sent for 150-Mile Test Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

MANTEO, N. C., May 6.—The Wright brothers, the aeronauts, now at Kill Devil Hill, near here, made the first flight in their new aeroplane this afternoon. Although but a test flight, it was successful in every respect, the machine, under the perfect control of its two makers, traveling for a distance of 1,000 feet.

Apparently it could have been flown much further as easily as not. It alighted with ease and in safety. The flight was for the purpose of testing a new idea in steering gear, the adaptability of which was unknown. The idea was found satisfactory, but it was found that its adjustment was not altogether right.

A light northeast wind of fourteen miles an hour was blowing, accompanied by heavy weather. The elevation of the machine did not reach more than twenty feet above the ground. After several preliminary tests, an endurance test of the machine will be made, and after this test an effort will probably be made to fly the machine to Cape Henry, a distance of about seventy-five miles, and return. Before the tests have been completed aeronautical experts, representing the United States and foreign Governments, are expected to witness them.

The machine started easily from a railway about 300 feet long. The engine started it rapidly along the tracks, and when it had reached a velocity of about twenty-five miles an hour it left the track bearing both Wilbur and Orville Wright. The body of the machine is forty feet long and eight feet wide, giving it a total buoying surface of 640 square feet. It is said to be capable of carrying four men of average weight.

ETNA MAKES EARTH QUAKE.

Pours Out Lava from New Crater—A Serious Eruption Is Feared.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MESSINA, May 6.—Conditions at Mount Etna are growing worse. Earthquakes were felt this morning in continuous shocks and it is believed they herald a more extensive eruption.

A party of volcano experts went part way up the mountain Saturday and found a new crater had opened at a height of 7,000 feet.

After ejecting columns of steam and clouds of stones and ashes, which fell largely on the Village of Acireale, this new crater became the source of two streams of lava, which followed the courses taken by the lava in the eruptions of 1819 and 1852.

Scientists declare that of all the magnificent phenomena presented by a volcano the most impressive is, perhaps, the low muttering of the advancing lava streams, which can be heard a long way off in the moments of the crater's silence.

BOOMING PROSPERITY.

Leaders of St. Louis Movement Protest Against Raising Freight Rates.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 6.—The National Prosperity Association, organized in St. Louis more than a week ago to restore confidence, with the slogan, "Give Us a Rest and Sunshine," is being indorsed in nearly every small city and in all large cities of the United States.

Commercial and industrial organizations of Chicago, Boston, New Orleans, Louisville, New York, Dallas, Fort Worth, Topeka, Indianapolis, Little Rock, Galveston, and Memphis to-day joined the National Prosperity Association of St. Louis.

E. C. Simmons, Chairman of the Association, plans delegating special representatives to visit cities and towns in all parts of the United States to organize prosperity associations.

"The St. Louis movement is intended to show to the people," said Edward Devoy, President of the Merchants' Exchange, to-day, "and particularly to the merchants and manufacturers of the country, that the hard times are over and that we are gaining steadily week by week. Crop reports in the country show that the farmers are ready to buy now, and the reports of salesmen who travel in agricultural communities are excellent. All we want is that the people shall take courage, realize that the situation is really good and talk to each other about it.

FELL 'TWIXT ELEVATED CARS.

Train Passed Over Four-Year-Old, but Only Scratched Her.

Mrs. Mary Geary of 541 East 139th Street, returning from downtown with her four-year-old daughter Margaret, was getting off a northbound Third Avenue elevated train at 138th Street, carrying her baby in her arms, when she missed Margaret, whom she expected would follow her. Looking back, she found that her daughter had slipped between the platforms of the second and third cars.

The guard had slammed the gate and pulled his bell rope before the mother could raise a cry, and before any of the crowd on the platform knew what had happened the six cars of the train had pulled out of the station.

After a few seconds the mother saw Margaret lying on the track, and screamed. With the help of Policeman Ryan of the Alexander Avenue Station she brought the child up to the platform amid great excitement.

When Dr. Waldi of the Lincoln Hospital arrived he found that Margaret was suffering from a few trifling abrasions of the face. She was taken home by her mother little the worse for her accident.

YOUNG WIFE WHIPS A MAN.

Stamford Woman Beats Alleged Tale Teller Before Many Onlookers.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., May 6.—Before a crowd of onlookers Mrs. Ida Green, a young matron, sought satisfaction to-day for alleged talebearing by using a horsewhip on Andrew Charlton. Half a dozen times Mrs. Green slashed Charlton in the face with the whip before he overpowered her. Then he called a policeman and caused her arrest.

Mrs. Green declared Charlton accused her of receiving attentions from a visitor from St. Louis. She says her husband was with her when the St. Louis man visited them.

$200,000 BY CARNEGIE TO INSTITUTE SCHOOL

New Gift to Mechanics' Institute Announced at Unveiling of His Bust.

PRAISES THE INSTITUTION

Mr. Carnegie Declares It Is Doing a Fine Work with a Small Sum of Money.

A gift of $200,000 from Andrew Carnegie to the Mechanics' Institute, 20 West Forty-fourth Street, was announced last evening at the regular meeting of the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen, of which Mr. Carnegie is a member, at the institute building.

The feature of the meeting for which the members had gathered was the unveiling of a bronze bust of Mr. Carnegie, by J. Massey Rhind, the sculptor, which is to be placed in the foyer of the institute. The gift was an entire surprise, and the announcement was received with enthusiastic applause.

The $200,000 brings the total of Mr. Carnegie's gifts to the society up to $527,000. At the time the beautiful building on Forty-fourth Street was put up, two years ago, Mr. Carnegie made a first donation of $200,000 to be used in the school of the society, where young men are taught technical trades in evening classes. From time to time he has made other smaller donations of $25,000 and $30,000. This $200,000 is to complete the endowment for the school, in which Mr. Carnegie is much interested. In making the donation he said, speaking of it and the work done by the society:

"It is a wonderful institution, doing more good with a small sum of money than any I know of."

The school in the last year has taught 1,655 young men in the tecanical trades.

The bust of Mr. Carnegie, which was unveiled last evening, was in the meeting room of the society, but when arrangements for lighting are made it is to be placed in the foyer of the institute in a central position between two doors leading to the gallery of the large library. It is to be placed there in recognition of Mr. Carnegie's benefactions.

The bust, which is an excellent likeness, is one which has received the personal approval of both Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie. It is a replica of a bust unveiled in Queens University, Kingston, Canada, last week, a gift of Sir Sandford Fleming, Chancellor of that university. Over the regular dress—coat, collar and tie—there is the suggestion of the robes worn by Mr. Carnegie as Lord Rector of St. Andrew's University, Scotland. The bust was made from various studies of Mr. Carnegie in his own house by Mr. Rhind, who was the sculptor of the bronze figures and groups at the two entrances of the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburg. The artist is a compatriot of the philanthropist.

REPAYS A LOAN 50 YEARS OLD.

His Benefactor Dead, Chicagoan Gives Back $25 to the Son.

William Davis of 164 Pavonia Avenue, Jersey City, received a call the other day from an old man who introduced himself as James O'Leary of Chicago. Mr. O'Leary said that when he came to this country from Ireland fifty years ago, Mr. Davis's father, now dead, had loaned him $25 to pay his way from Jersey City to Pittsburg, telling him to pay it back when he could spare the money.

Mr. O'Leary said he served in the civil war, after which he drifted about the West with varying fortune until 1890, when he went to Chicago, and with $20 he had saved opened a fruit stand. From that time he prospered, and he is now comparatively wealthy. Recently, he said, his conscience pricked him for not repaying the loan, and he came to Jersey City to look for Mr. Davis, only to learn that Mr. Davis was dead, but had left a son whom Mr. O'Leary succeeded in locating after a long search.

William Davis, after satisfying himself that it was his father who had loaned the money, accepted the $25, but declined Mr O'Leary's offer to pay interest on the loan. Mr. O'Leary said he would spend a few days in New York and then go back to Chicago.

OUTING FOR ROOSEVELT.

President Will Go to "Pine Knot" with Party To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

SCOTTSVILLE, Va., May 6.—Mrs. Fannie Brown Thomas of the Grost Place, in Albemarle County, is in receipt of a telegram from Washington saying that the President may be expected at Pine Knot to-morrow for a Spring outing.

Mrs. Thomas is one of the closest neighbors to the Roosevelts when they are in Virginia. She sent servants to Pine Knot this morning, who have been working all day to prepare the place. The message from the President to Mrs. Thomas was mainly to acquaint her with the fact that he will be accompanied by a party, and asking that she look out for accommodations for a number of them.

Mrs. Thomas will personally entertain two of the visitors. Others will no doubt obtain quarters at Plain Dealing, the home of the Wilmers, who are personal friends of the President.

THAW PROMISED TO WORK.

Told His Mother He Would Go Into Business if Released.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 6.—After having spent several days in Poughkeepsie with Harry K. Thaw, Roger O'Mara, the Pittsburg detective, returned to this city to-day. O'Mara is jubilant over the condition in which he found young Thaw.

According to O'Mara, the members of Thaw's family are now in hearty accord with his efforts to obtain his release from the Matteawan Insane Asylum. This change of heart was brought about through letters which passed between Harry and his mother, Mrs. William Thaw, in which Harry promised his mother that if she would obtain his release he would enter the office of one of the companies in which the Thaw family are interested, and devote the remainder of his life to business.

The proposition was readily accepted by his mother. If he gets out it is the intention to take him abroad for a rest for a year or so, after which he will come back to Pittsburg and start on his business career.

2 DEAD IN TENEMENT BLAZE.

Early Morning Fire in Orchard Street Routs Twenty Families.

A five-year-old girl is known to have been burned to death in a fire which started in the six-story tenement at 101 Orchard Street early this morning and swept rapidly up through every floor. It is thought that an aged woman was also killed in the flames. The girl was Hattie Koppleman and the woman was Mrs. Emma Berg, the child's grandmother.

The child and old woman tried to escape over the roof of the house after they were awakened from sleep by the smoke. The girl's mother, Mrs. Koppleman, was with them, and succeeded in reaching the roof. When firemen got her to the street, she screamed hysterically that her mother and daughter had been killed. She said they were caught in a blast of flame and swept from her sight just as they were about to step on to the roof to safety.

The girl's body was found near the roof, but no trace had been found of Mrs. Berg early this morning. It is possible that more besides the girl and the woman may have lost their lives. In the excitement incident to the fire no one seemed to know how many people were accounted for. There were twenty families in the building.

The fire started in the rear of the basement. By the time firemen reached there it had swept up to the roof and a second alarm was turned in. There were many rescues.

RESCUER LOST AT FIRE.

Several Lives Saved at Supposed Incendiary Blaze in Williamsburg.

There was another incendiary fire in Williamsburg early this morning. A policeman discovered smoke and flames in the candy store of Joseph Nichols, on the ground floor of a four-story frame tenement at 140 Harrison Avenue, and turned in an alarm. The firemen sent in three more.

The flames spread rapidly. Policeman Carpenter of the Clymer Street Station, and William and Frank Doyle, who live in the neighborhood, ran into the house and helped out Helsey Cameron, his wife, Sadie, and their 5-year-old daughter, Rosie, who lived on the first floor. Firemen brought Aaron Weiselburg, his wife and one child down ladders. Jacob Goldstein, his wife and two small children were rescued from the upper floor.

John Donnelly of 1,060 Myrtle Avenue helped rescue the Camerons, and then went back into the house. He was not seen after that, and may have been killed.

Nichols, the proprietor of the candy store, has been missing for two days. He only moved into the building six weeks ago. There was a fire four weeks ago. The building was destroyed by the fire this morning.

DR. HUGHES FIRE FIGHTER.

Governor's Father Joins Bucket Brigade at a Brooklyn Blaze.

The Rev. Dr. David Charles Hughes, the venerable father of Gov. Hughes, had an exciting experience for a few minutes yesterday afternoon when a fire started in a closet between the rooms on the top floor of 202 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn, where he is staying.

Dr. Hughes and his wife have been spending the past few months with the family of Mrs. M. E. Tyson, who rents the building from Miss E. K. Easton of 378 Park Place. His rooms are on the second floor, and when Dr. Hughes heard the cry of "Fire" he joined a bucket brigade, which had the flames practically extinguished when the firemen arrived. The fire did not extend beyond the floor on which it started, and resulted in a damage of about $100.

DEADHEAD AWARDED $17,500.

Central Conductor Gets Damages, Though He Rode Free When Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 6.—A verdict was awarded for $17,500 in favor of James A. Halley, a former conductor, against the New York Central Railroad Company to-day.

Mr. Halley was injured at the time of the Brewster express wreck on "death curve" between Williamsbridge and the Bronx Park on Feb. 16, 1907. For more than forty-four years he had been a conductor on the New York Central lines. The defense contended that the company was not liable, as Halley was riding on a pass.

JOHNSON SWEEPS MINNESOTA

Bryan's Supporters Overwhelmingly Defeated at the Primaries.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 6.—Democratic primaries held throughout the State to-day were swept by the supporters of Gov. John A. Johnson for the Presidential candidacy.

It is believed they have swept the State, overwhelmingly defeating Bryan's supporters.

STRICKEN BLIND IN STREET.

Salvation Army Caretaker Thought to Have Had a Paralytic Stroke.

William C. Maher of 229 East 120th Street, who acts as night caretaker of the Salvation Army Barracks at 229 East 130th Street, while on the way from his home to the barracks last night, went suddenly blind. He called for help, and was taken to the East 125th Street station house by a boy.

There Lieut. Loonan summoned Dr. Ross from Harlem Hospital, who, after a cursory examination of Maher's eyes, took him to the hospital.

It is thought that his blindness was due to a paralytic stroke.

REPUBLICANS AGREE ON CURRENCY BILL

Indorse Recognition of Principle of Commercial Paper as Asset for Currency.

IDEA OF VREELAND BILL

Representative Hill Shakes His Fist in Cannon's Face—Speaker Had Said That He Was Out for Mischief.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—By a vote of 11o to 21 the Republican conference to-night indorsed the recognition of the principle of commercial paper as a safe and logical asset for emergency currency. A committee of five was then appointed by Chairman Sherman of the conference to perfect the bill and report to the conference next Monday. The committee consists of Representatives Vreeland, Burton, Weeks, McKinley, and Knowland.

The conference, which lasted until nearly midnight, was marked by heated controversies between individual members. The most exciting of these encounters was between the Speaker and Representative Hill of Connecticut, whose opposition to the Vreeland bill has put him outside the Speaker's "sphere of influence." The clash came in the middle of a speech by Mr. Pollard.

The Speaker had interrupted to make some remarks, when Mr. Hill rose to interrogate the Speaker. The Speaker saw him and turned sharply in his direction.

"You are out for mischief," he called across the hall, shaking his fist in the direction of the Connecticut Representative.

Mr. Hill left his seat and hurried over to where the Speaker stood.

"I will take that from nobody," he told the Speaker, his voice trembling with rage, and his clenched fist within a few inches of the Speaker's nose.

Speaker Cannon waved him back, and Representative Watson, the Republican whip, raised a laugh to pass off the incident. After the conference mutual friends intervened, with the result that Mr. Hill and the Speaker rode down in the elevator together and appeared to have made up.

The first motion before the conference was to adopt the Payne bill. This was done by a vote of 100 to 30. Then the second resolution took up the phrase from Bennet's resolution of last night, which was then intended to describe the "underlying principle of the Vreeland bill," and adopted it with no reference to Vreeland. The appointing of the committee and an indorsement of the commission plan were passed together by a vote of 11o to 21.

The following is the text of the resolution adopted to-night:

"Resolved, That the conference approves recognition of commercial paper through Clearing House Associations as a safe and logical asset for emergency currency, and also approves the proposition for a currency commission, and be it further

"Resolved, That the Chair appoint a committee of five to perfect a bill, such a committee to report the perfected bill to the conference at an adjourned meeting to be held within five days."

Mr. Vreeland said after the conference that the committee had decided already to draw up a bill that would please everybody.

The members of this special committee are the members of the Banking and Currency Committee who favored the Vreeland bill except Mr. Knowland, who is an outsider with no affiliations in the House to show his position on the matter. In the vote on the Bennet resolution as amended to leave out reference to the Vreeland bill, Mr. Fowler voted yea, saying so far as commercial paper was concerned that was the thing he had been fighting for all along.

DIAMOND TRADE PICKS UP.

Tide Turned, Dealers Say—Importations Have Nearly Doubled.

Diamond importers say that the tide has turned in their business, and to prove it they point to the Custom House figures. The importations at New York of precious stones increased from $200,443 in February to $389,514 in March, and to $493,052 in April. The value of the uncut stones imported in April was $205,821, and this was nearly half that of the corresponding month of last year.

One of the largest importers said prices are as high now as when the market was active.

BRIDAL AUTO BREAKS RECORD.

Mr. and Mrs. Wagstaff Make Fastest Trip Between Newport and Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Jones Wagstaff, formerly Miss French, who were married here Tuesday, broke all automobile records between Boston to Newport.

When the bridal couple started from Harbor View in Mrs. Vanderbilt's machine, closely followed for a distance by other members of the wedding party in automobiles, the bridal auto outdistanced the others and went over Bellevue Avenue to the One-Mile Corner in Middletown, through Portsmouth, Tiverton, and Fall River, to Boston, stopping at the Hotel Somerset.

The distance of seventy-three miles from the One-Mile Corner was covered in one hour and fifty-seven minutes.

THREE KILLED IN FEUD.

Seventy-five Shots Fired in Fight Which Grew from Family Grudge.

ROANOKE, Va., May 6.—News reached here to-day of a triple tragedy which was enacted last evening on Bowling Creek, Henry County, in which Samuel Shelton, Charles Dodson, and James Massey were shot and killed.

Sheriff Davis arrested Hertford Spencer, Thomas Spencer, William Massey, and Grover Massey.

It is said that the dead men bought ammunition yesterday, and that they made threats against some of the men engaged in the fight, which is said to have been the outcome of an old family grudge.

Oven seventy-five shots were fired in rapid succession. Over twenty bullets were extracted from the body of one of the victims.

The scene of the killing is in the heart of a neighborhood infested with illicit distilleries, and near the place where a woman was shot to death about a year ago by a band of moonshiners because she had informed on them.

EX-ARMY OFFICER ACCUSED OF MURDER

Edward H. Martin, Son of Harlem Contractor, Held for Killing Oregon Jeweler.

MARRIED 'POOLROOM QUEEN'

Brilliant Officer and Armor Expert Wrecks His Career by Use of Drugs—His Criminal Record.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 6.—Edward H. Martin, son of a former New York contractor, 35 years of age, a graduate of West Point, armor expert at Sandy Hook, graduate of Fordham College and the New York Law School, and temporarily employed in the City Engineer's office here, has been arrested for the murder of Nathan Wolff. The crime was committed in Wolff's jewelry store last Friday night.

Martin had been missing from his home on the east side since Sunday at 6 o'clock. The police base their surety that Martin committed the murder on a bloody shirt found Saturday behind the Washington Hotel. The shirt was sold to Martin by a second hand dealer Friday morning.

The police are not alone in their suspicion of his guilt. When Martin came home Friday night without his shirt and with his head cut in two places, as if with an axe, his hands and face also much scratched, his wife was greatly shocked.

The next morning she read the account of the murder of Wolff, the pawnbroker, which recited that the face of the murdered man had been slashed with repeated blows of an axe. He had evidently been killed while defending his valuables. She accused her husband. He told her a tale of a hold-up, then of a fight in a poker game. But the wife would not accept either story, and Martin left the house in anger.

Martin had been on a cocaine and whisky spree for several days. In his cell at the city station he is ready enough to talk, but his talk lacks coherency. Despite his pleas the police will not give him any of the drug, in the hope that when he is sufficiently tortured by the lack of it he will confess the murder.

Martin stoutly denies his guilt, but in accounting for his wanderings since the night of the crime he tells fantastic tales.

Suspected of Previous Murder.

Martin's career in the West has been a checkered one. He was suspected of the murder of his partner in the Thunder Mountain mining district of Idaho County, Idaho, and in 1905 was held in the Idaho County Jail for several months on a burglary charge, while officers were investigating the disappearance of his partner.

Martin was accompanied to Grangerville, Idaho, by his parents, who obtained an interest for him in some Thunder Mountain property. It was while engaged in the development of this property that his partner disappeared under conditions that led the officers to believe that he had been murdered.

Martin was arrested in February, 1905, and held until the following October, when his release was ordered, as the body of his partner could not be found. While confined in jail, Martin endeavored to obtain his liberty by burning the jail building.

After his release, he came to Lewistown, Idaho, and afterward was arrested in Moscow and Wallace, Idaho, on charges of insanity.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 6.—On Oct. 19, 1904, Edward Hugh Martin married Miss Theresa A. Griffin in this city. They left at once for Portland, where, it was said, Mr. Martin was to take a course in surgery at a hospital. His parents supplied the couple with money, which he deposited in a bank which failed, and he abandoned the surgery course.

His wife's relatives in this city say that in the Spanish-American war Martin received wounds in the head and the injury had, during the last year, affected his mind.

His Spectacular Career.

Edward H. Martin has led a spectacular career since his dismissal from the army in 1900. The son of a well-to-do Harlem contractor, he was born in this city about thirty-five years ago. He received an appointment to West Point, where he was a favorite with his classmates. Being graduated in 1898, he saw service in Porto Rico with the Twenty-first Infantry as a Second Lieutenant. Later he served with the Fifth Artillery, with which regiment he was connected when he was dismissed.

Upon his return from the Spanish war he became the guest of Francis C. Travers at Oyster Bay, L. I. He had received medals for saving two comrades during the war, and had also received a medal from Congress for saving a life off the Battery. While a guest at the Travers home he was taken ill, and received every attention from the family. It was was soon afterward that his engagement to Miss Katherine Travers was announced.

But the marriage never took place. The young army officer began trading in Wall Street, and it was said at the time that he borrowed money from Vincent Travers, the brother of Miss Travers, and failed to return it.

In 1900 Lieut. Martin was tried by court-martial at Fort Hamilton, and convicted of having made "false, fictitious, and fraudulent statements of claims and receipts in the account of the post exchange at Fort Hancock," N. Y. He was dismissed from the army at the direction of President McKinley. During his trial he said in his defense that he had been taking morphine, and that the drug had made him thoughtless.

Marriage to Gussie McKee.

A short while after Martin's engagement to Miss Travers was broken off he married Gussie McKee, better known as the "Poolroom Queen." Gussie was visiting her husband during his trial before the court-martial, and while she was away from New York her poolroom was raided. There were about seventy women in the place when the police hammered down the doors, of whom thirty-four were arrested.

Gussie McKee was held for the Grand Jury, the other women being discharged. As there was not enough evidence to hold her, Gussie was also discharged, and immediately went to Chicago, where she began operations anew.

Soon after his dismissal from the army Martin seemed to have lost his grip, and the next year he was arrested for forging a check on the Gorham Manufacturing Company. He was sentenced to serve one year in jail, and while he was serving this sentence his wife brought suit against him for divorce. The divorce proceedings were brought to an abrupt close in July, 1903, by the death of the "Poolroom Queen."

Upon being released from jail Martin disappeared until July of last year, when he was brought up in the Yorkville Court on a charge of burglary. The plaintiff was Barnett Miller, the proprietor of a little drug store at 874 Third Avenue. Martin again gave an excuse, this being that he was drinking heavily of late, but the Magistrate thought there was not sufficient evidence to convict him and he was released.

Two months later Martin was again arrested on suspicion of having some connection with several burglaries which had occurred in Bath Beach. He was put under arrest while climbing a porch, but said he was looking for a place where he could recover from the effects of too much drink. This was the last heard of him in the East.

Black Ballots

The negro does not vote—in the South. That is the palpable truth, and truth is always interesting.

Southern elections have become almost dull. Unwarlike citizens go to the polls, and their hip pockets are distressingly empty. Nowadays it is legal regulation, and not a shotgun, which is disfranchising the negro.

In this week's issue of THE SATURDAY EVENING POST Harris Dickson writes about "The Dwindling Black Ballot."

Now, out in Indianapolis ——but read the article for yourself, in this week's POST.

GOT FIRM'S BANK DEPOSIT.

Two Young Men, Acting as Messengers, Accused of Stealing $2,200.

George A. Clark, who lives in Decatur Street, and Emmanuel Michelis, whose home is in Willoughby Street, Brooklyn, were charged yesterday by officers of the Arthur D. Wood Company, commission merchants at 471 Ninth Avenue, with having swindled the concern out of $2,200.

According to the company, they first telephoned, as though from the Aetna National Bank, that a messenger would call for the firm's deposit, and then, appearing as the messengers, received the money.

Magistrate Moss in the Tombs Court held the youths in $1,500 bail each to await the action of the Grand Jury.

NEW GRAND MASTER MASON.

S. Nelson Sawyer Defeats Townsend Scudder by 2,416 to 1,868 Votes.

Townsend Scudder, for two years Grand Master of the Masonic Grand Lodge of this State, was defeated for re-election yesterday by S. Nelson Sawyer of Palmyra, by a vote of 2,416 to 1,868.

Other officers elected were: Deputy Grand Master, Robert Judson Kenworthy; Senior Grand Warden, Charles Smith; Junior Grand Warden, Thomas Penney; Grand Treasurer, William H. Miller, and Grand Secretary, Edward M. L. Ehlers.

The laying of the cornerstone of the twenty-fourth Street wing of the Masonic Hall was postponed because of the rain.

BLACKS COURT CLERK'S EYE.

Somebody's Finger Mars an Essex County Court House Painting.

Finger prints and smudge spots have been discovered on Frank D. Millet's painting, "The Foreman of the Grand Jury Rebuking the Chief Justice," which adorns one of the walls of the Essex County Court House in Newark. The discovery was made by Supt. Bolan, who stated after investigation that the soiled places appeared to have been the result of workmen's hands and not the result of vandalism.

The painting, which cost $5,000, is considerably marred by the spots, and it is not believed that they will pass away with time. One of the blots is over the eye of the Chief Justice's clerk in the picture and gives him the appearance of having been the victim of a street fight. Efforts will be made to have the soiled places removed.

CAUGHT PEEPING AT GIRLS.

Self-Styled "Gentleman" Fined for Annoyance at Gymnasium.

Many complaints have been received at the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station of "Peeping Toms," who spied upon the girls and young women who use the big basement playground of Public School 94 in Sixty-eighth Street between Amsterdam Avenue and West End Avenue as a gymnasimu at night from 7:30 until 10 o'clock.

The youths of the neighborhood, it was said, even pried a big padlock off a door leading into the gymnasium, and nightly a crowd gathered there to peer through the doorway at the young women.

There was a basket ball contest last night, and the contestants appeared in blue flannel bloomers. News of the event flew through the neighborhood rapidly. A crowd gathered, and presently some one pushed open the broken door.

The peeker peered straight into the face of Policeman Kearns, however, and the spectacle was so different from what he expected that he uttered a shout and fled. Kearns gave chase and caught Jules Lang of 220 West Sixty-ninth Street.

In Night Court Lang said he was a "gentleman" by occupation. Magistrate Wahle fined him $10.

MORE STANDARD OIL CAPITAL.

John D. Archbold and Treasurer Tilford to Inspect Company's Plants.

What Wall Street looked upon as a step toward the contemplated increase in the capitalization of the Standard Oil Company was the announcement yesterday that John D. Archbold, one of the most active Directors of the Standard Oil Company, and W. H. Tilford, the company's Treasurer, were to start this week for a tour of inspection of the company's properties in the West.

The Standard Oil officials have had under contemplation for more than a year the advisability of raising the company's capital from $100,000,000 to $600,000,000, which would be nearer the actual value of the plants and make less conspicuous the dividends, which have been at the rate of 40 per cent. annually for the last three years.

The Interboro Bank to Liquidate.

A. E. G. Goodrich, President of the Interborough Bank, in the Atlantic Building, in Wall Street, announced yesterday that at a special meeting of the stockholders of the bank it was decided to liquidate the bank's assets. The Interborough Bank was organized in 1904, and orig nally did business in the coffee district, in lower Wall Street.

Police Parade Next Saturday.

Police Commissioner Bingham issued a general order yesterday providing for all the details of the Police Parade, which will be held on Saturday. The line of march will be from Astor Place and Lafayette Street to Broadway, to Twenty-third Street, to Madison Avenue, to Fortieth Street, to Fifth Avenue, and down Fifth Avenue to Twenty-ninth Street and thence east the reviewing stand. There will be twelve bands in line.

BLACK HAND MURDER; TRAIL TO 'HIGHER UP'

Double Crime in Jersey While Sleuths Here Seek the Head Blackmailer.

BROTHERS SLAIN AT NIGHT

Bodies Mutilated by Murderers—Clue to a Man Who Went After Big Game Found by Petrosino's Aids.

While Lieut. Petrosino and his squad of Italian detectives were following a trail in this city yesterday which they hope may lead to the capture of an instigator of "Black Hand" blackmail who has bled many Italians successfully for several years, and who may be "the man higher up" in Black Hand circles, two brutal murders were discovered in Midland Park, N. J., which the authorities there believe to have been the work of Black Hand agents. As yet, however, they have not been able to get on the track of the murderers.

The murdered men were Sebastian and Frank Mesino, brothers, who managed a shoe shop in Godwin Street, Midland Park, near Paterson, and slept in a little room in the rear of the shop. Their mutilated bodies were found in this room early yesterday morning, when some boys called for shoes they had left to be repaired.

The police believe that the murders were committed about 2 o'clock in the morning. Neighbors recalled yesterday that they had heard dogs barking furiously about that time, and some thought they remembered having heard pistol shots. No outcry followed the shots, however, so they did not investigate.

It is believed that the murderers escaped by the Ridgewood Road. Only one train leaves Midland Park between midnight and 9 o'clock in the morning, and no passenger boarded that yesterday. A blood-stained shirt was picked up on the Ridgewood Road. It is believed that the murderers dropped it there. All the towns surrounding Midland Park were notified by telephone to watch out for the murderers, and it is expected that the men will be caught.

Prosecutor Koester learned last night that Frank Mesino had tried recently to collect $2,000 or $3,000 from some Paterson men, to whom he had lent the money. This trail will be followed up.

Lieut. Petrosino's squad of Italian detectives are on a trail which they hope will result in the arrest of a Black Hand blackmailer who has bled many Italians successfully for several years. They got trace of him yesterday morning, when two Italians were arrested after a street fight in which the police club triumphed over the stiletto.

Antonio Valenzo, a wine merchant of 250 First Avenue, gave the first clue. He had been hounded by the Black Hand until life became miserable. He is well-to-do, and the letters he received demanded $10,000 at first and finally $2,000 as the price he should pay to avoid having his home burned down and the lives of those in it put in peril.

Valenzo took the letters to Lieut. Petrosino and a trap was laid. Valenzo had been instructed to bring the $2,000 done up in a package to resemble a bundle of washing to Fortieth Street and First Avenue after midnight on Tuesday. Early yesterday morning he went to the corner with the package, two Italian detectives, Reglio and Capone, being hidden in a doorway near by.

Two Italians appeared after Valenzo. They walked up and down the block several times, eyeing Valenzo, but making no demand upon him. The detectives, wearying of the watch, jumped at the two men and met two long knives, but they were ready for a fight, and their clubs landed on two Italian heads with a resounding double crack.

The two men were taken to the headquarters of the Italian squad, and said they were Antonio Salvatore and Vincenzo Farucci, both of 308 East Forty-fifty Street. The latter confessed that they had been sent to get the money from the wine merchant. He said that they had had nothing to do with the blackmailing except to go to the corner at the hour appointed and take the package from Valenzo. In Jefferson Market Court they were held for attempted extortion.

CANADA FOR WHITE MEN.

Arrangement Made That Will Keep Hindus Out of the Country.

OTTAWA, Ontario, May 6.—An arrangement has been made by the British and Canadian Governments for the exclusion of Hindu immigration from India. It was disclosed in the House of Commons this afternoon in a report from Mackenzie King, Canadian Deputy Minister of Labor, who recently returned from a conference on the question with the British Government.

He states the British Ministers are in favor of keeping Canada a white man's country. They did not wish to pass restrictive legislation to keep the Hindus out of Canada, as that would add to the difficulties of a delicate situation which now exists in India. A solution of the problem was found in the Indian act, which provides that no native of India may leave India under contract labor in any country which is not on a list of countries which have made laws that the Indian Government considers adequate for the protection of Hindus. Canada is not on the list.

NEGRO ROBS AGED COUPLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Bussi, Each 80 Years Old, Found Seriously Beaten.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, May 6.—The entire countryside about Mount Bethel, a village five miles from here, is wrought up today over a murderous assault committed last night on Mr. and Mrs. John Bussi, each about 80 years old, by a negro. Gaining entrance to their home on the pretext of begging something to eat, the assailant suddenly felled the husband with a blow on the head from a club and afterward knocked the wife to her knees by striking her with his fist. She fought desperately, but he finally knocked her unconscious with the club.

The negro ransacked the house, obtaining $500 from an unlocked safe and two gold watches, besides considerable other jewelry. He then sat down to a table and made a meal out of jellies, preserves, and bread left there by Mr. and Mrs. Bussi at supper.

PAWNBROKER A PARK SUICIDE.

Leopold Bruckheimer Wrote to His Daughter That His Money Was Gone.

In the pocket of Leopold Bruckheimer, a pawnbroker, 60 years old, of 143 West 111th Street, whom Policeman Crosby found dead yesterday on a bench in Central Park near the Tavern, was found a letter addressed to Bruckheimer's daughter, in which he wrote of his intended suicide because his money had been lost.

On another sheet of paper was a list of outstanding notes amounting to about $450, and a note to a son, H. H. Bruckheimer of 92 St. Nicholas Avenue, advising him to get a note renewed until he got the insurance on Mr. Bruckheimer's life.

McINTYRE BLAMES "SYSTEM."

Broker Examined in Sanitarium Admits Hypothecating Customers' Stock.

T. A. McIntyre, head of the failed Stock Exchange house of T. A. McIntyre & Co., submitted to a forty-minute examination by Receiver Burlingham and his counsel, Irving L. Ernst, yesterday afternoon. What the Receiver has been most axious to learn is the whereabouts of something like $400,000 worth of securities laid claim to by customers, who have been besieging the offices of the firm at 71 Broadway ever since the failure.

Mr. McIntyre was not able to disclose any more assets than the receivers had already taken possession of, but he admitted that it had been the practice of the firm to hypothecate the securities of customers. While admitting that the practice was wrong he excused it to Receiver Burlingham on the ground that it was common among brokerage houses, and the "system" was to be blamed and not T. A. McIntyre & Co.

According to Mr. McIntyre, this system resulted in securities, which had been brought to the firm for transfer purposes, eventually landing in the hands of the loan clerk, who would enter them on his books as available collateral for firm loans.

The efforts of Herbert C. Smyth of Wellman, Gooch & Smyth, who has been tracing missing stocks and bonds for a number of clients, brought to light the fate of three blocks of stock owned outright by customers of the firm which had either been gobbled up in loans or paid out over the counter to other customers making demand for the same class of stocks.

In one case a Hartford man owning fifty shares of International Paper preferred, worth about $2,750, had sent his certificates to the Hartford office of the firm to await his order to sell. After several days' work on the books this certificate has been traced to the transfer office of the paper company, where it was split up at the order of T. A. McIntyre & Co. into five certificates of ten shares each, which were separately delivered to customers of the firm. A Baltimore customer sent in twenty-five shares of Baltimore & Ohio on April 15. This certificate was traced yesterday to a delivery made to a customer of the New York house, who had purchased a like amount of the stock.

Twenty-five shares of Amalgamated Copper owned by another Baltimore customer were traced to the firm's $275,000 loan in the National Bank of Commerce, which was closed out last week. These shares had been purchased outright by the Baltimore man, who had ordered the certificate transferred to his own name. The bank will be called upon by Attorney Smyth to make good the price of the shares.

The same Baltimore customer lost fifty shares of Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred by much the same process.

Mr. McIntyre had two safe deposit boxes, one at the Produce Exchange Safe Deposit Vault and another at the Night and Day Bank, but he could not tell what they contained.

It was also brought out that just about a week ago Miss Boyd, who had been Mr. McIntyre's nurse during a recent illness, had obtained a safe deposit box in the Night and Day Bank, but as to the contents of this box Mr. McIntyre professed entire ignorance. Miss Boyd's safe deposit box had been known to the receivers, and they have taken out an injunction preventing her removing any of its contents. They have also tied up T. A. McIntyre's safety deposit boxes in the same way.

HILLQUIT ATTACKS ROOSEVELT

And Is Hissed In Debate on Socialism —Many Women Quit Meeting.

In the course of a debate on Socialism at Cooper Union last night Morris Hillquit was roundly hissed for a severe arraignment of President Roosevelt, and a number of women left the platform from which he was speaking, crying out: "Shame! Shame!"

It had been announced that Prof. Edwin R. A. Seligman of Columbia University and Morris Hillquit would debate the question "That Socialism is Desirable, Practicable, and Inevitable," and fully 2,000 persons of various nationalities gathered to hear it.

The audience was a very quiet and orderly one while Prof. Seligman took the negative side of the question.

Mr. Hillquit, in his argument for Socialism, referred caustically to the actions of Commissioner Bingham and to the recent address of Mayor McClellan on the subject of Socialism, and referred in no pleasant manner to what he declared to be a fact that President Roosevelt was the worst enemy the workingman ever had.

In replying to this line of argument Prof. Seligman took a decided exception to Mr. Hillquit's bringing the name of the Chief Executive into the controversy, and said that President Roosevelt was the best man the people could have at the head of the Government.

This criticism of Mr. Hillquit aroused his ire, and when the time came for him to reply he jumped to his feet in great anger and began a bitter tirade against the President.

"Shame! Shame!" cried Mrs. Frederick Nathan, President of the Consumers' League, who was sitting back on the platform. "Make him stop! Surely you must not be so disrespectful to the Chief Executive." She jumped hastily to her feet and walked across the platform, followed by her husband and many others, while out in the audience there were hisses and cat calls.

No vote was taken on the result of the debate, and the question remained as it had been before the discussion was commenced—unsettled.

Amended Excise Law Upheld.

Supreme Court Justice Dowling, in a decision yesterday, upheld the constitutionality of the recent amendment to the Liquor Tax law, by which a new certificate cannot be issued for the same premises until the expiration of one year from the date of revocation of the old license, and then only to a new owner. The case was that of George Bernard, the new proprietor of a saloon in West, Twenty-ninth Street.

Has Her Nephew Arrested for Fraud.

On an order issued by Supreme Court Justice Wheeler of Buffalo, a Deputy Sheriff arrested here yesterday Walter S. Bigelow of 500 West 149th Street, in an action brought against him by an aged aunt, Mrs. Henrietta L. Wyman, of Attica, N. Y., to recover $7,000, of which she alleges he defrauded her. Bigelow was released in $1,000 bail.

ONLY $100,000 RISK WITH SUICIDE RULE

New York Life Issues Orders to Agents to Limit Liability in Incontestable Policies.

FOLLOWS COSTER'S DEATH

Broker Killed Himself Two Months After He Had Taken Out Insurance—Increase In Such Cases.

Chiefly as a result of the suicide last week of Charles Coster of the Stock Exchange firm of Coster, Knapp & Co., who shot himself on the eve of the discovery of the ruin of his firm brought about through his speculations, the New York Life Insurance Company sent out orders to its agents yesterday to write no more policies for anything above $100,000 with the "incontestable after issue" clause, known as the "no suicide clause" policy.

The New York Life, ever since the "incontestable" policy was introduced by John A. McCall when he left the State Insurance Department to take the Presidency of the company, has made a specialty of the so-called "no suicide clause" policy, which permits the beneficiaries of a suicide to collect the amount of the policy, no matter how soon before the act the policy was written. In the course of the sixteen years since this form of policy has been in force the company has figured that the advertising force of the "incontestable" boast which the agents were able to make was a big factor in getting business, and the policy has hitherto always been looked upon as one of the best things President McCall ever did for the company.

While percentages were not available yesterday, it was said that the decision of the company to put a limit on the "no suicide clause" business has been brought about by losses since the business depression of last Fall. Since last October there has been a heavy list of suicides among brokers and business men ruined by speculation or business reverses, and in a large percentage of the cases it was found that the suicides had taken out "incontestable" policies, apparently with suicide in view.

Charles Coster's policy of $100,000 was taken out only two months before he shot himself.

The New York Life Insurance officials would not admit yesterday that their action had been taken as a result of any recent applications for policies with the "incontestable" clause in amounts exceeding $100,000. The company has many policies in force for sums ranging up to $1,000,000 and over, and it has not been unusual to write business in these large amounts for Wall Street men and bankers. It was pointed out yesterday that it would only need the suicides of a few large policy holders, particularly if they were holders of newly issued policies, to cut heavily into the average profits.

COSTER, KNAPP & CO. RECEIVER

Louis Werner, Who Is Named, Says Liabilities Exceed $2,000,000.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday against Coster, Knapp & Co., stockbrokers, of 66 Broadway, by Philbin, Beekman & Menken, attorneys for several creditors. Charles Coster, the senior member of the firm, killed himself on April 28.

It is alleged that the firm is insolvent and committed an act of bankruptcy by making an assignment on April 29 to Louis Werner. Judge Hough appointed Mr. Werner receiver on request of a majority of the creditors.

In the application for the receivership it was stated that almost the entire assets consist of stocks and bonds, a great majority of which are now pledged and subject to loans; that if they are not repaid or otherwise disposed of the holders of the collateral will realize upon them and there may be great loss to the estate. Philbin, Beekman & Menken also represent other creditors, whose claims amount to $1,000,000. Mr. Werner said he believed the liabilities would exceed $2,000,000.

13 SCHOOL BUILDINGS DECLARED UNSAFE

remove air duct at once and replace it with a metallic one.

SCHOOL 71, at 105 Heyward Street.—Should remove classroom furniture where it obstructs the aisles leading to exits; should remove piano on top floor, as it obstructs passageway to front exit.

GIRLS' HIGH SCHOOL, (Annex,) at 433 St. Mark's Avenue.—Boiler should be removed to outside of building; wooden flooring throughout building should be replaced with fireproof floor; fire stops should be constructed at exits from each floor.

BROOKLYN TRUANTS' SCHOOL, at Jamaica Avenue and Enfield Street.—Stoves in classrooms in the one-story frame building should be replaced by steam heating; pipes through east wall are liable to become overheated and set fire to the building.

SCHOOL 40, (Annex,) at Sixteenth Street, between Third and Fourth Avenues.—Present number of classrooms should be reduced.

One of the last acts of the late Commissioner Bonner was to order this general inspection of the school buildings, and so voluminous were the reports that the department had to employ outside help to have them transcribed. They make a volume of about 100 typewritten pages.

While the recommendations were being prepared, Corporation Counsel Pendleton gave an opinion that the actual responsibility for the condition of the school buildings rested not on the Fire Department or the Borough Building Inspectors, but upon the Board of Education. In view of this the Fire Department cannot order the closing of the buildings which it regards as unfit for use, and so the volume of information gathered by the Fire Battalion Chiefs comes to the Department of Education in the form of recommendations.

In addition to public school buildings, the Battalion Chiefs made suggestions for safeguarding the City College, which has just been erected, and will be dedicated next week. Fire escapes, fire alarm systems, and numerous other appliances are urged as necessary. The old building at 17 Lexington Avenue is branded unsafe. The Board of Education has nothing to do with the City College buildings.

victims had been dismembered, and in his grave was also found pieces of gunny sacks.

Not a thing was found by which any of the bodies could be identified. A heavy red mustache was found in one of the graves, and it is believed that it was once worn by a North Dakota ranchman who came to see Mrs. Gunness in answer to her matrimonial advertisements. He professed a willingness to marry her, but insisted that she accompany him to his Western home. This she refused to do, and he later disappeared. She gave out that the engagement had been broken off because she would not go to North Dakota to live, and that the ranchman had returned home. Nothing has been heard from him since, and the authorities are trying to discover if he can be accounted for.

Postmaster Small to-day told the prosecutor of the mail received by Mrs. Gunness. He said that shortly after the death of her second husband in 1903 she began getting mail at the rate of four to ten letters a day. These came from everywhere. She is said to have had a neighbor write an advertisement for her which appeared in a Chicago matrimonial publication. The advertisement said:

"A rich and good-looking woman, the owner of a big farm, desires to correspond with a gentleman of wealth and refinement. Object, matrimony. Scandinavian preferred."

The advertisement brought a flood of mail, particularly from the Northwest. It got to be a joke around the Post Office —this flood of mail—for the advertiser was anything but the comely woman she pretended to be. She was fat, unkempt, and far from attractive in features. But letters came thick and fast, and presently neighbors began to notice strange men appear around the Gunness farm. Time and again word passed around that the Widow Gunness was going to marry again. Suddenly the wooers of the widow would disappear.

An autopsy of the bodies of two men, one woman, and two children unearthed yesterday from three "soft spots" on the farm, was held at midnight. All had been murdered. Those bodies that were not dismembered were found to have small holes in the skull.

Following the midnight autopsy Sheriff Smulzer and Coroner Mack began an examination of the Gunness "house of mystery," and discovered three new sunken graves similar in every way to those from which the first bodies were dug up yesterday. At daylight Sheriff Smulzer set men to work digging into these spots, and it was from these graves that three of the bodies were taken later in the day.

Christopher Christofferson told the police to-day of the visits of three men to Mrs. Gunness within the last two years, and all of them mysteriously disappeared, that is, they were seen to come and were known to be at her house, but none of them was seen to go away. A fur coat, that one of them wore, was afterward seen in possession of Mrs. Gunness, and she said the wearer had gone to Chicago, and had said he would send for it, but had failed to do so.

A closer examination of the holes in which the bodies of the woman's victims were buried showed that quicklime had been liberally used to hasten decomposition.

From information received to-day it is regarded as certain that O. C. Budsberg of Iola, Wis., fell a victim to the woman's greed for gold. He came here to see the woman, and through a local bank forwarded a note to his home bank for $1,000 for collection. The money was sent to the local bank, and Budsberg called and got it. He has never since been seen. He was stopping at the Gunness home at the time, and is believed to have been murdered.

Two of the nine mutilated bodies were identified this afternoon with reasonable certainty. Antone Olson of Chicago viewed the body supposed to be that of Jennie Olson, 16 years old, foster-daughter of Mrs. Gunness, and pronounced it to be that of his daughter. A sister of the girl, Mrs. Leo Olander of Chicago, confirmed the father's identification.

Ask K. Helgelein, whose inquiries regarding his missing brother Andrew led to the first discoveries on the death-haunted farm, became sure to-day that the largest and best preserved of the bodies is that of his brother. Against this identification, however, is the result of the autopsy performed on this body by Dr. H. Meyer. He found conditions which, to his mind, proved that the man perished long after Andrew Helgelein disappeared last January.

Dr. Meyer said that the body showed evidences of having been in the ground less than two weeks. Ask K. Helgelein, however, refused to be convinced by these findings, and his certainty led the Coroner to accept his identification for the present.

MRS. GUNNESS WAS MONEY MAD

Sister Says Her Weakness Was Greed —May Exhume Husband's Body.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 6.—The next step in the La Porte murder mystery is to be a police investigation to discover whether or not Mrs. Belle Gunness conducted a private graveyard in Chicago before removing to La Porte.

The bodies of her former husbands may be exhumed for examination, but the Coroner has not fully decided upon this step. Her first husband, Max Sorensen, died suddenly and under peculiar circumstances at 621 Alma Street. He had $4,000 insurance on his life, which his widow collected and then moved to Michigan. Then she married Gunness and settled on the farm near La Porte. Gunness, too, died suddenly. He had $3,500 insurance on his life.

"My sister was crazy for money," declared Mrs. Nellie Larson of 992 North Francisco Avenue, who is Mrs. Gunness's sister. "That was her great weakness. As a young woman she never seemed to care for a man for his own self, only for the money or luxury he was able to give her.

"When living with her first husband in Austin she used to say, 'I would never remain with this man if it was not for the nice home he has.'"

The Gunness woman's trail was followed in Chicago by investigators, who traced her history back to the time she moved to Austin, nearly twenty-eight years ago. The addresses at which she lived were:

Grand Avenue and North Forty-third Avenue. Frame cottage.

Elizabeth and Grand Avenue. Ran a grocery and notion store.

621 Alma Street.

Austin Avenue and Sophia Street.

Two of the houses were burned and the woman collected insurance.

Revelations of the day developed that besides her first husband, the burial lot in Forest Home contains the bodies of two children, supposed to have been hers. The record of the deaths of these children is being investigated.

Neighbors crowded about the number in Alma Street, half a block from West Chicago Avenue, expecting that digging for bodies would be begun in the rear yard.

Coroner Hoffman said he would commence at once whatever search might be necessary in Chicago to unravel the tragic deeds of Mrs. Gunness's life.

OHIO NAMES HARMON, INSTRUCTS FOR BRYAN

Tom Johnson's Candidate for Governor, Pomerene, Is Defeated on Second Ballot.

DELEGATES TO VOTE AS UNIT

Platform Charges That State's Money Is In Bank Controlled by Republican "Boss."

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 6.—Judson Harmon of Cincinnati was nominated for Governor by the Democratic State Convention to-day on the second ballot, defeating Mayor Tom L. Johnson's candidate, Atlee Pomerene of Canton. The first ballot resulted—Harmon, 463; Pomerene, 381; Gen. Sherwood, 4; A. P. Sandles, 97.

Gen. Sherwood withdrew, and the second ballot resulted—Harmon, 512; Pomerene, 363, and Sandles, 79. Calls were made for Tom L. Johnson to move to make Harmon's nomination unanimous, but he did not claim the floor.

The full ticket follows:

For Governor—JUDSON HARMON of Cincinnati.

For Lieutenant Governor—DAVID L. ROCKWELL.

For Supreme Court Judges—HUGH MATHERS of Sidney, GEORGE B. OKEY of Columbus.

For State Treasurer—D. S. CREAMER of Belmont County.

For Auditor—W. W. DURBIN of Hardin County.

For Attorney General—TIMOTHY S. HOGAN of Williston.

Delegates-at-Large to the National Convention—Tom L. Johnson, Cleveland; W. S. Thomas, Springfield; E. W. Hanley, Dayton, and Matthew R. Denver, Wilmington.

The defeat of Mayor Johnson in his fight last night for control of the convention did not discourage him, and he carried the fight against Harmon to the floor of the convention. When Hamilton County's vote was called for the poll had not been completed, and the county was passed and called last. There was great disorder over an effort in that delegation to change votes. Six policemen and a Sergeant endeavored to restore quiet, but could not.

J. J. Malloy of Cincinnati appealed to the chair "to remove the lobbyists from this delegation." The chair, however, proceeded to announce Hamilton County's vote. Then the disorder commenced again. The police forced all back in their places until the beginning of the ballot that resulted in Harmon's nomination.

The platform strongly indorses W. J. Bryan, and instructs the delegates to the National Convention to vote for him. The unit rule is declared for. Some provisions of the platform are:

Direct vote for United States Senator on the Oregon plan, an employers' liability, child labor and 8-hour laws, direct labor instead of the contract system for all public works.

No temperance or anti-temperance plank was inserted. An effort to get in a temperance plank to the extent of an indorsement of legislation recommended by the late Gov. John M. Pattison failed, the plank being rejected in sub-committee.

The platform continues: "Three hundred thousand dollars of the people's money is now in the bank of the chief Republican boss of the State, and this boss at the last Republican Convention forced the nomination of his candidates for Attorney General, State Auditor, and State Treasurer, who comprise a majority of the State Board of Public Appraisers and Assessors. This condition, known to the Governor, was not acted upon by him, though the law adequately empowered him to act, and it can be remedied only by the passage of suitable laws safeguarding the deposits of public money at the best obtainable rates of interest, and by substituting new officers for the deputies of those under whom these abuses have grown up."

CINCINNATI, May 6.—On receiving notice of his nomination for Governor by the Ohio Democratic Convention Judson Harmon sent the following reply:

To the Ohio Democratic Convention, Columbus, Ohio:

"I regard the nomination as both a high honor and a call to duty. I thank you for the honor, and, with the help of God, will perform the duty—to the Democracy, as their candidate, to the people of Ohio as their Governor if they shall confirm your choice."

CONNECTICUT SPLIT ON TAFT.

But Ten of State's Fourteen Delegates Are Instructed for Secretary.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 6.—Connecticut's delegation of fourteen members to the Chicago Convention is made up of ten who have positive instructions to vote for and actively to work for the nomination of Secretary Taft for the Presidency, and four members who are not instructed by the district conventions which selected them.

The State Convention met to-day, and it was determined that it had no jurisdiction over the action in this respect of the county conventions.

While the convention was evidently strongly pro-Taft, there was strong opposition to instructing the delegation, but those opposed gracefully gave up the fight after they had tested the convention sentiment.

The chief feature of the convention was the withdrawal of the names of United States Senators Morgan G. Bulkeley and Frank B. Brandegee as candidates for delegates, in a message to Railroad Commissioner Andrew F. Gates, in which they stated that they were opposed to going to Chicago as delegates if they were instructed.

The delegation to the National Convention follows: At large, Charles F. Brooker, Ansonia; Michael Kenealy, Stamford. First District, Charles Hopkins Clark, Hartford; Second District, Isaac M. Ullman, New Haven; Third District, Timothy E. Hopkins, Killingly; Fourth District, O. R. Fyler, Torrington; Hartford County, Charles M. Jarvis of Berlin; Tolland County, George E. Keeney, Somers; New Haven County, Denis A. Blakeslee of New Haven; Middlesex County, Andrew N. Shepard, Portland; New London County, Angus Park, Sprague; Windham County, Edwin Milner, Moosup; Fairfield County, W. E. Burnham, Bridgeport; Litchfield County, J. Henry Roraback, Canaan.

The platform indorses President Roosevelt's administration, declares for a revision of the tariff of 1897 by a Republican Congress, an army and navy sufficient to insure the safety of the country, and directs its delegates to vote for the nomination of William H. Taft for President.

ALABAMA FOR TAFT.

Thompson Wing of Party Instructs Its Delegates for Secretary.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 6.—The State Convention here to-day of the Thompson Administration wing of the Republican Party was all for Taft. Strong resolutions indorsing his candidacy for the Presidency and commending the National Administration were adopted, and the delegates to the National Convention were instructed to cast their votes at Chicago for the Secretary of War.

The delegates elected were: J. O. Thompson, Birmingham; W. R. Fairley, Pratt City; F. H. Lathrop, Birmingham; N. H. Alexander, (colored,) Montgomery.

Joseph O. Thompson, Collector of Internal Revenue, was re-elected Chairman of the State Committee.

Johnson Men Claim Primary Victories.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 6.—Democratic primaries were held throughout Minnesota to-day to select delegates to the county conventions which will be held Saturday. The Johnson faction claims everything, but the Bryan men concede only some sections of the State.

SAILED THE SEVEN SEAS.

British Bark Lawhill's Log Book Filled with Strange Adventures.

Across seven seas the big British bark Lawhill came to New York yesterday. Near the foot of Wall Street the hatches were being taken off her Far Eastern cargo and the work of unloading begun, and as the curious boxes swung over the side Capt. Jarvis and Chief Officer Read had a chance to take stock of the queer happenings which are entered in her log.

The most remarkable entry has to do with the falling overboard and the night rescue of a seaman out of a shark-infested sea. Incidentally the falling overboard was predicted by Third Officer McVicker, who, himself having fallen overboard, developed what the men called "a hunch" on the subject.

The Lawhill sailed from Hongkong on Dec. 19, and the entries in her log showed that she had battled with much bad weather in the China Sea, and that half of the dozen monkeys she was bringing here died.

Late in the afternoon of March 12 the bark was running with a stiff wind and fast making St. Helena. The sea was not running high. A school of sharks had picked the bark up that afternoon, and when darkness came they still followed close in her wake.

On the outward trip, when about 300 miles out of this port, Third Officer McVicker, who had gone aloft to haul down a flying jib, fell overboard. Soon after he was picked up he said another man would fall overboard before New York was reached.

About 8 P. M., Jacob Miller, a German seaman, went aloft to haul down the jigger top. The last echo of eight bells had hardly sounded when Miller lost his hold and fell overboard. Chief Officer Read, who had just left McVicker, saw the man fall, and even before the cry of "Man overboard" was sounded he had cut the lashings of a life buoy and flung it out into the darkness where Miller had disappeared.

The wheelman put his wheel hard down and then came the shouted orders to lower away the lee lifeboat. Into it jumped Read and six of the crew.

Two of the men went along, not to row, but to wield boat hooks. They remembered the shark trailers and feared for their companion struggling somewhere in the darkness.

Read sent his boat two miles in the direction he figured Miller would drift. At intervals the men all shouted in chorus. Once a dark form came alongside and a man thrust out a boat hook. It caught the shark fairly in the side and was instantly wrenched from his hands. A second later the handle of the boat hook came to the surface alongside. The wood had been broken off about an inch above the iron end.

The men had been shouting for half an hour when from out of the blackness came a faint answering cry. They rowed in the direction of the call, and soon saw Miller struggling in the water. Fortunately he had managed to pick up the life buoy. How he had escaped the sharks he did not know. Next day the Lawhill made St. Helena.

"I have been following the sea for years," said Chief Officer Read, "but never have I witnessed such a narrow escape from death. Do I believe sharks kill men? You can bet I do. You would, too, if you knew the fate of Lascar Jim, but that's another story."

STUDENTS FIGHT A FIRE.

City College Boys Put Out Blaze In Laboratory Ahead of Firemen.

Students and professors extinguished a blaze in one of the physical laboratories of the City College yesterday before the arrival of the firemen. Damage amounting to about $700 was done and several pieces of chemical apparatus were destroyed.

In room 107, on the first floor of the building, which is one of the half dozen between 138th and 140th Streets and Edgecomb Avenue, a rheostat, an electrical instrument regulating electricity, became overheated and blazed up.

The electric power was turned off, and the professors and some fifty students got out the lines of hose and the chemical extinguishers and fought the blaze. Other students removed chemicals and apparatus from the room.

PAID FOR BEING INNOCENT.

Peddlers Freed in Court Have to Pay $5 to Get Their Carts Back.

Seven pushcart peddlers of the sixty-four arrested on Tuesday night by Capt. Henry and his men of the Mercer Street Police Station regretted last night that their excuses had been so good that Magistrate Wahle discharged them in the Night Court. Their joy at their discharge changed to grief when they visited the yards of the Street Cleaning Department yesterday to get their carts back.

Each man was asked if he had a receipt from the Magistrate showing that he had paid a fine, and when it developed that none of them had receipts each was charged $5 before his cart was given to him. The lucky forty-one peddlers who paid fines in the Night Court got their carts back without extra charge.

Since the fines administered by Magistrate Wahle were generally $1 each the peddlers who were found guilty got off at a cost of $4 less than their innocent companions.

BAY STATE FAVORS BRYAN.

Indications That Convention Will Instruct for Him—The Delegates.

BOSTON, May 6.—There was every indication to-night that the Democratic State Convention in Faneuil Hall to-morrow for the selection of four delegates at large to Denver would pass a resolution of instruction in favor of William J. Bryan for President.

The delegation, as agreed upon, will be headed by George Fred Williams of Dedham. The other three delegates, as tentatively suggested to-night, were District Attorney John B. Moran of Boston, Daniel F. Doherty of Springfield, and John W. Coughlin of Fall River.

Hughes Cannot Attend Reception.

WASHINGTON, May 6. — Chairman Payne of the New York delegation in the House has received a letter from Gov. Hughes saying he will be unable to accept the delegation's invitation to him to attend a reception in his honor in this city next week, when he will be here to participate in the convention of Governors called by the President.

ROW OVER SUBWAY DISTURBS A MEETING

Accelerating Assembly in Lyric Hall Develops Into a Wrangle That Brings in Police.

"NO PASS" BAKER IN IT

He and Others Accuse ex-Borough President Cantor of Working for Traction Interests.

What was ostensibly a quiet meeting of property owners of the old Ninth Ward in Lyric Hall, Sixth Avenue, south of Forty-second Street, last night, to pass resolutions demanding the southward extension of Seventh and Sixth Avenues and the construction of a subway, developed into a fine row between the original projectors of the meeting and ex-Borough President Jacob A. Cantor on the one side and ex-Congressman—"No Pass"—Baker and L. S. Bedford of 63 Grove Street on the other.

Messrs. Baker and Bedford freely charged that the meeting was a sham organized by the traction interests to misrepresent public sentiment. This they said after the meeting had adjourned in disorder, with the larger faction of the audience with the invaders. The charges were shouted as the opposing forces retired amid the shutting off of lights.

Whatever the object of the meeting may have been it certainly was not accomplished. With a policeman trying to force him off the platform Mr. Bedford persisted in reading a substitute resolution loud above the uproar, while Mr. Baker shouted several times from the floor:

"Is this a public meeting, or what is it?"

At one stage of the proceedings, when the man who had hired the hall was trying to have Mr. Baker removed by a policeman, somebody in sympathy with the latter pinned to the coat of the hall hirer this placard:

Standard Oil,
LET US ALONE.
26 Broadway.

The card, however, fell to the floor and was carried off by one of the audience as a souvenir.

The arrangements for the meeting were made by C. C. Hickok, who, some of the invading section said, really was a druggist down in the Greenwich Village section. It was presided over by Daniel Daly, who Mr. Hickok said was a large property owner in the section to be benefited first.

Mr. Daly opened the meeting by observing that there was only one principal north and south thoroughfare on the island, and that there should be more. Sixth and Seventh Avenues ran through the centre of a populous district, and were capable of being extended southward.

Then Mr. Daly introduced ex-Borough President Cantor as the first speaker. He said that some of the north and south thoroughfares should be extended to relieve congestion.

"There can be no doubt," said Mr. Cantor, "that the city authorities favor the extension of these avenues. I believe that we should have all the subways that we can get, and I believe that there should be a subway under every north and south avenue within a few years. But I am not in favor of suspending all improvements to build subways."

Mr. Cantor referred to the Robinson bill to build subways with private capital, and said the Governor would sign it. Chairman Daly attempted to read his resolutions favoring the Seventh Avenue extension of the subway, when Bedford demanded a hearing. He denounced the Robinson bill, and declared in favor of the Elsberg bill.

Chairman Daly tried to stop him, but Bedford persisted. He demanded an opportunity to read his resolutions. A policeman was called and attempted to remove Bedford, who fought with him on the platform. He read his resolution, and then left the platform.

There was an angry interchange of words between Bedford and Cantor. In the confusion Chairman Daly put the resolutions, which were carried, and the meeting ended.

HELPED FRIENDS, LOST ALL.

President Magee of the Manasquan Bank Then Killed Himself.

Special to The New York Times.

MANASQUAN, N. J., May 6.—Part of the story of how Morgan Delancey Magee, President of the First National Bank of this town, tried to keep open the doors of the institution in the few days preceding his suicide, came out to-day after the residents of Manasquan read in THE TIMES of how the affairs of the bank stood when National Bank Examiner Schofield took charge. It was the first insight the public had had of the affairs of the bank, and the revelations surprised even many of those who had thought they were aware of the present condition of the institution.

It developed that the Controller of the Currency had allowed Mr. Magee until last Friday to take up a lot of paper which the bank was carrying for Magee's business friends. The bank President had been informed by the Controller that the First National would have to close its doors unless this paper was got rid of. Much of it consisted of notes held by those connected with the New Jersey-West Virginia Bridge Company, which went into the hands of receivers to-day. Some of it was secured by collateral which the Controller, upon the report of his Examiner, had decided was not the kind a National bank could carry.

After several days of ineffectual effort to have the unsatisfactory paper taken up, Mr. Magee turned as a last resort to Frank M. Wyant, President and General Manager of the bridge company.

On Thursday Mr. Magee made a last appeal to Mr. Wyant, and it is said that Mr. Wyant promised to have the $40,000 for Mr. Magee on Thursday night. But when Thursday night came Mr. Wyant did not appear and Mr. Magee was unable to find him. It was the last straw. On Friday morning Mr. Magee's body was found on the end of a pier head, a bullet in his brain. And then the bank closed.

Mr. Magee carried life insurance, which his friends say approximates $30,000, and they believe that the money will be applied to making good part of the paper the bank President indorsed. The extent of such paper is known only to Bank Examiner Schofield and the officials of the bank, and they refuse to talk. But the whole town of Manasquan knows that Mr. Magee's trust in his fellow-men was such that he would willingly indorse their paper if he thought they were borrowing within their means.

STRIKE FEVER HITS A JEWISH SCHOOL

Its Aim Is to Help In Their Studies Youths Who Would Be Rabbis.

SEVEN OF THEM EXPELLED

And They Have Their Sympathizers—It's a Mild Expulsion—Both Sides of the Story.

The war cloud which hovered over New York University not long ago is now doing business in a position central over the Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary, 156 Henry Street. Some forty-five young men and boys are in training there for the Jewish ministry. All of the larger boys are on a sort of strike.

Conflicting reports from the side of the students, mostly in broken English, make it hard to tell just exactly what is wanted by the rebels. But, at any rate, it is about money, and the study of the Talmud is suffering in the long room, where the students range back and forth as they "do" their lessons, in the good old peripatetic way.

Yesterday afternoon there were about seven or eight boys and ten or twelve young men in the long room on the ground floor. Rabbi Donn walked up and down the room. Now and then he would be joined by some of the students, who would walk with him a few minutes, while they talked.

The students themselves, in twos and threes, wandered around the room, reading books in Hebrew, and talking about anything that suited them. Most of the smaller boys stood behind little stands, similar to a preacher's Bible stand, reading from their books. Everybody seemed to come in and go out when he wanted to do so. Lewis Eppstein, who used to study in the school, who has also spent some time in the City College, and is now again in the rabbinical school, spoke for the "strikers":

"It is this way. Ten years ago this school was established to make rabbis. Nothing was to be studied except the Talmud. It was, and still is, supported by dues from forty Directors and from little donation boxes that are scattered over town, mostly on the east side. It was a good school at first because it was looked after.

"Now it is no good because nobody looks after it. The people who put money in the boxes and who pay dues don't care no more about the school. They quit paying attention to it.

"And so it came that the school does no good. We can enter when we please; go out when we please. Nobody seems to care. We want a programme. We want to know where we are going and when we will get there. We want to study philosophy and history and languages in addition to Hebrew. They put me out once because I wanted to go to the City College and learn something besides Hebrew and the Talmud.

"The school pays the pupils $3.50 a week and gives them their clothes. The money got short, and three weeks ago they quit paying about twenty of the pupils and told them to quit coming. The students stood together, asking that the pay of each be cut down equally, and that no one be expelled. And then twenty or thirty men were locked out last Monday.

"But that didn't last. They now allow us to come in and read Hebrew, and go out when we choose. Since we always did that, though we are technically expelled, we are in the same position we have been in. Some of the small boys get a little money now.

"We don't know whom we are going to see, but we will see somebody sometime; we must have new Directors and a programme."

Nathan Lamport of 273 Canal Street, President of the seminary, told the school's side of the case:

"There are seven or eight young men in the school who have been there too long now. They will never make rabbis, and since times were hard we asked them to get out of the school. About fifteen other students stood together, saying that the seven should not be expelled.

"We have not tried to close the doors to the face of the seven or their sympathizers, but we have withheld for two weeks their allowance of $3.50. It is unfortunate that we have had no rule saying how long a young man could attend the school and draw pay. I have called a special meeting of the Directors for early next week. We will try to decide upon a time limit rule, and take some action with regard to the seven and their sympathizers."

ASKS ABOUT ROAD'S IMMUNITY

Senate Wants to Know If Agreement on Commodity Law Exists.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Disappointed by the failure of the Senate to act on the Elkins resolution suspending the penalties imposed by the commodities clause of the railroad rate law, which became effective May 1, Senator Foraker introduced a resolution to-day, which passed the Senate, calculated to solve the question of the constitutionality of the clause. The Western Maryland Railroad is the medium through which the solution of the matter is expected.

The resolution calls on the Inter-State Commerce Commission for information as to whether any agreement or understanding exists between the Government and the railroads, providing for immunity from prosecution for the roads. The Western Maryland Railroad is the only road mentioned specifically, but the commission is commanded to furnish a list of roads violating the law.

Senator Foraker explained his allusion to the Maryland property by pointing out that the road was in the hands of a receiver, who was operating under the direction of a Federal court. If this road has been guilty of infractions of the rate law it has been acting with the knowledge and consent of the court, which must then hold the commodity clause to be unconstitutional. If this is the case the court's attitude clears the way for a prompt decision by the higher courts.

Senator Foraker also wants to know the reasons held by the commission that prompted it to write to the Senate Committee on Inter-State Commerce urging the passage of the Elkins resolution.

LILLEY MUST SHOW LETTERS.

His Attorney Admits Correspondence Criticises Submarine Investigators.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON May 6.—The select committee of the House which is investigating Representative Lilley of Connecticut and his submarine boat scandal has decided to require Mr. Lilley to submit to it the letter books in his possession which contain, as alleged, certain letters making reflections on members of the House generally and on the Naval Affairs Committee in particular.

Mr. Lilley has protested against this examination of his correspondence. He is now in a predicament.

His attorney has admitted that the books contain letters criticising the investigating committee.

RAP PAPER TRUST'S METHODS.

Publishers Say Prices Were Raised After Assurances to Contrary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—A number of publishers appeared to-day before the House committee investigating the paper industry, and recited their experiences with the International Paper Company. They all united in condemning a state of affairs that allowed prices to be put up arbitrarily by an enormous combination. Conditions, they agreed, would be modified for the better by the adoption of the Stevens bill.

Frank P. MacLennan, publisher of The Daily State Journal of Topeka, Kan., told the committee that on the organization of the Paper Trust the representatives of the trust told the publishers not to be alarmed, as the object of the combine was to economize in the manufacture of paper, and that the publishers would be the gainers in the end.

On the expiration of his contract in 1898, however, he said, he was unable to renew it except at a premium, while a 3 per cent. discount that had previously been allowed him was discontinued. Mr. MacLennan then submitted to the committee figures quoting the price of paper in 1897 as $2.84 a hundred, when it was in reality $1.34.

Samuel Bowles of The Springfield Republican, Matthew S. Dwyer of The Providence, R. I., Tribune, and John D. Plummer of The Springfield Union, related similar personal experiences, all showing that the International Paper Company had put up prices at will after repeated assurances to the contrary.

CANTEEN VOTED DOWN.

House Decides Not to Allow Them in the Soldiers' Homes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The canteen was voted out of the soldiers' homes to-day in the House by a vote of 167 to 46. The normal proceedings of the House debate on the Sundry Civil bill were interrupted by the loudly expressed desire of a man in the gallery to join in the discussion. After listening for an hour and a half, a man, who described himself as R. G. Gridley of Providence, R. I., became convinced that injustice was being done somewhere and rose to speak "in behalf of the United States." He was arrested.

PAY INCREASE FOR ARMY.

Enlisted Men's Salary to be Raised 35 Per Cent.—More for Officers, Too.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Senator Warren to-day reported to the Senate a complete agreement of the conferees on the army appropriation bill, and it was adopted. It makes a flat increase of $500 a year in the pay of officers and of 35 per cent. in the pay of enlisted men of the army.

The bill as finally agreed to carries $95,382,246. The additional appropriations made by the Senate were scaled down and $3,463,162 eliminated from the bill.

WHO'S FINN, ANYHOW?

Justice Greenbaum Asks for Information About "Battery Dan" In Court.

"Who's Finn? Is he an official of the department?" asked Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum yesterday of Henry J. Goldsmith, a lawyer.

For a few seconds every one in the courtroom looked amazed, and when Mr. Goldsmith got his breath back, he said:

"Why, no, your Honor. Daniel E. Finn is Tammany leader in the First Assembly District."

The occasion was an application by Mr. Goldsmith for an injunction restraining Allen N. Spooner, Commissioner of Docks and Ferries, from interfering with Richard Costas in the conduct of his fruit stand at the entrance to the Staten Island Ferry at South Ferry. A year ago Costas obtained a permit from the Docks and Ferries Department for the stand and, to use Mr. Goldsmith's words, "he is now about to be put out because he cannot get a letter from Daniel E. Finn."

Justice Greenbaum looked at the permit and observed that it ran out on April 30. He inquired on what ground an injunction could be issued. Counsel said that a week before the license expired Costas went to the Dock Commissioner and applied for a renewal of it.

Mr. Goldsmith said that when Costas spoke to Finn on the subject, the latter's reply was: "I have a constituent who has a better claim than you have, and he will get the stand."

Justice Greenbaum reserved decision.

PASTURES NEW FOR OLD 'DAN'

First Step Taken Toward an Arcadia for Veteran Ambulance Horse.

The Sinking Fund Commission yesterday started "Dan," the old ambulance horse, on his way to the Elysium Fields, where he will spend the rest of his days in peace and quiet far from the clang of the street car gong. "Dan" is 24 years old, and has hauled an ambulance since his youth. Some humanely disposed persons in Rhode Island want to give him a home for the rest of his life, but a lot of red tape had to be gone through, as there is no provision of law governing the disposal of ambulance horses.

To make sure that "Dan" will not be disturbed in his rural retreat the Sinking Fund Commission yesterday took over the animal from Bellevue Hospital and will transfer him to the Street Cleaning Department, which in turn will pass him over to the S. P. C. A., which will send him to Rhode Island. Controller Metz has been interested in "Dan," and discovered the method by which he can be made comfortable while complying with the law.

The commission also considered yesterday a proposal to spend $100,000 for a public dock in Queens Borough, but "Little Tim" Sullivan and City Chamberlain Martin voted "No" and killed the plan. In some quarters the Sullivan action was regarded in the nature of a reprisal for the turning down of Joseph Cassidy, the Tammany candidate for the Borough Presidency.

SHE NEEDS $10,000 A YEAR.

Miss Roosevelt's Father Wants Her $5,000 Allowance Doubled.

Declaring that $5,000 a year was not enough to maintain his 17-year-old daughter, Olga Roosevelt, an application was made yesterday by Robert B. Roosevelt, Jr., to Supreme Court Justice Davis to have her allowance increased to $10,000 a year. Macgrane Coxe was appointed referee to take testimony and report to the court.

Mr. Roosevelt said in his petition that his wife, Grace G. Roosevelt, died on July 29, 1894, and left most of her large estate to their daughter Olga. He was appointed her guardian, and in November, 1903, the court directed that $5,000 a year was a suitable allowance for her, but gave leave for a future application for an increased allowance. In 1906, Mr. Roosevelt added, his daughter's estate was valued at more than $350,000 and her income more than $14,000 a year.

EVANS TAKES FLEET INTO SAN FRANCISCO

Half a Million People Witness the Greatest Parade Ever Known in Our Navy.

FORTY-FOUR SHIPS IN LINE

Proudly Welcomed by a Great Assemblage Representative of All the States of the Far West.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6.—The Atlantic battleship fleet is at anchor in San Francisco Bay, having completed the first great stage of its tour around the world. The fleet began passing into the harbor a few minutes after noon, the Connecticut, with Admiral Evans in the emergency cabin on the after-bridge, being the first to reach the headlands.

Counting its auxiliary and dispatch boats, there were thirty vessels in Admiral Evans's fleet as it sailed in from the west, and the line stretched far out toward the distant Farallone Islands. To this great aggregation of warships fourteen vessels of the Pacific fleet attached themselves just off Angel Island, and then followed the greatest parade the navy has ever known.

The ships, as they sailed into the bay, were dressed only at the mastheads, big American flags flying at fore and after trucks and at the peak of the gaffs. The blue flag of Admiral Evans on the Connecticut was followed by the red flags of six subordinate Rear Admirals, even Admiral Dayton himself pulling down his blue flag as commander-in-chief of the Pacific Fleet and substituting the ensign of red as Admiral Evans's ship came in view.

Passing to anchor, the ships steamed in review before Secretary Metcalf, and the Connecticut fired a salute of seventeen guns.

On the top of Telegraph Hill, the word "Welcome," spelled in letters fifty feet high, was visible from every incoming ship, and constituted the first expression of the cordiality with which the fleet is to be received. The sentiment expressed by this great sign was echoed in the cheers of half a million people, who from all the high points that command a view of the harbor, watched the incoming of the ships.

No sooner had the ships reached their final anchorage than a committee boat carrying Mayor Taylor of San Francisco and members of the official Reception Committee, including James D. Phelan, the Chairman, put off to welcome officially Admiral Evans and the officers and men of the fleet to San Francisco. The ceremonies aboard the Connecticut were brief and informal. As soon as this official call was over Admiral Evans came ashore and joined his wife and daughter.

Admiral Evans has promised to ride a part of the distance in the naval and military parade through the streets of the city to-morrow morning, when 8,000 bluejackets and marines, 3,000 soldiers of the regular army, and many civic and military bodies will be in line, but further than this he will not take an active part in the city's long programme of entertainment.

The fleet's coming to San Francisco has been made an occasion unique in the history of the Western country. The Governors of half a dozen prosperous Western States have arrived here to voice the welcome of the entire West to the battleships of the navy, and thousands of the citizens of these Commonwealths have come along with these Executives.

It was estimated by railroad officials to-day that more than 300,000 strangers have been brought into San Francisco during the last forty-eight hours.

Official dinners, band concerts, and a reception and ball at the Fairmount Hotel with 5,000 invited guests are features of the first evening of the fleet's stay.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—A change in the order governing the movements of the Pacific fleet commanded by Rear Admiral Dayton was announced at the Navy Department to-day by the operation of which the vessels will remain at San Francisco until May 15, when they will sail for a southern cruise. The original orders to Admiral Dayton contemplated the departure of his fleet May 9, the day following the naval review.

REAL ESTATE AND ORATORY.

Bronx Factory Workers Hear a Noon-Hour Talk on Property.

Carttail oratory was introduced yesterday as an adjunct of the real estate business, when Joseph P. Day talked from the end of a truck during the noon hour to workingmen employed in the large factories around Southern Boulevard and 138th Street.

Mr. Day, who sold 246 Bronx lots at auction on Tuesday and is going to offer next Tuesday 369 more in the Hunt's Point section, told his audience about the small beginning of the big real estate fortunes. He also had something to say about the three Bronx policemen who have retired from the force with more than $100,000 apiece, made in real estate speculation.

HUDSON COMMISSION MEETS.

The One Hundred Trustees in Charge of the Celebration Re-elected.

At the annual meeting of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission yesterday afternoon the one hundred trustees were unanimously re-elected. It was announced that a committee of Dutch had been formed in Holland to co-operate with the commission here, and that that committee was to present to the commission a reproduction of Henry Hudson's ship, the Half Moon.

Communications had been received, it was said, from Jonkheer R. de Marees van Swinderen, formerly the Netherlands Minister to Washington and now Minister of Foreign Affairs, and from Jonkheer Roell, Vice Admiral and Aide de Camp to Queen Wilhelmina, informing the commission of the formation of the Holland committee and its purposes.

The celebration is to be held from Sept. 25 until Oct. 2 of next year. It is expected that the following week will be made an "old home week" all along the Hudson River.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

AGUASCALIENTES, Mexico, May 6.—The first congress of Mexican newspaper proprietors was opened in this city yesterday. The purpose of the conference is to effect a mutual organization of the periodicals of Mexico.

LISBON, May 6.—King Manuel of Portugal swore allegiance to the Constitution to-day. The ceremony was brilliant and impressive, and there was no disorder.

ALEXANDROVSK, May 6.—A group of important political prisoners made an attempt to regain liberty here to-day. Some of them were killed and some who got away from the prison were recaptured. Only ten made good their escape. The prisoners were led by Illinsky, the man who assassinated Gen. Ignatieff at Tver, Dec. 22, 1906. Illinsky was among the recaptured.

LONDON, May 6.—Sixty Afghans were killed in the fighting which took place between a large Afghan force and the British troops last Saturday in the Khyber Pass, according to a dispatch sent in by a correspondent with the British column. A message is published here to-day from Lahore giving the Afghan dead at 300, but this communication is discredited.

LIMA, May 6.—The report of the defeat of Durand, the revolutionary leader, at Cerro de Pasco and his subsequent flight have been confirmed. This means the collapse of the revolutionary movement, such as it was.

BRUSSELS, May 6.—The Chamber of Deputies, which has had under consideration the Congo annexation treaty, has decided upon closure of the session on Friday, and has fixed June 2 as the date for the opening of an extraordinary session for the continuation of the Congo debate. In political circles it is believed that annexation is now assured.

BANQUET FOR TOWER.

Farewell Honor to Ambassador by His American and German Friends.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 6.—Charlemagne Tower, who is about to retire from the post of American Ambassador here, has agreed to attend a farewell banquet to be given in his honor the evening of May 13 by the American Association of Commerce.

The banquet will be attended not only by the retiring Ambassador's American friends in Berlin, but also by many men prominent in the German diplomatic, political, and commercial world.

Mr. Tower has applied, through the Foreign Office, to be received by the Kaiser in farewell audience June 1, or as soon thereafter as shall suit his Majesty's convenience.

Mr. Hill advises his Berlin friends he will leave The Hague on an early day in June and arrive here a few days after Mr. Tower's formal departure.

HARD TIMES IN JAPAN.

Government Bonds Sell Below 80, Stock Market Depressed, Business Bad

TOKIO, May 6.—Prominent Japanese capitalists are consulting with officials of the Financial Department of the Government in the expectation of devising a way to improve the financial condition of the country. Some persons say that the present conditions might have been averted if the Government had consulted the capitalists before adopting some of its recent measures.

Government bonds, the standard valuation of which has been at 90, are now selling below 80, and all stocks dealt in on the Tokio Stock Exchange are greatly depreciated.

The situation is fairly shown in a comparison between the transactions on the Exchange on March settling days in 1907 and 1908:

	Shares Sold.	Amount Received.	Average Price.
March 30, 1907..	178,750	$14,284,540	$79,913
March 30, 1908..	63,000	2,976,250	47,242
Difference....	115,750	$11,808,290	$32,671

The amount of transactions at the Tokio Clearing House March 30, 1907, was 56,898,320 yen, against 15,009,291 yen for the corresponding date this year, a diminution of no less than 41,884,032 yen. The latter figures go to show that general business is as badly depressed as the share market.

CHINESE BOYCOTT WANING.

Movement Against Japan Growing Out of Tatsu Maru Case Dying Out.

SHANGHAI, May 6.—The Chinese boycott of Japanese goods, which came about as a result of the humiliation inflicted upon the Chinese people by Japan in the settlement of the Tatsu Maru case seems to be dying out.

The movement has not had much strength outside of Canton, and even there it is on the wane.

BABY TALK TO RAINY DAISIES.

Mr. Philips Gives Them Some Statistics to Think About.

The Rainy Day Club yesterday afternoon learned something about American mothers, and American babies as well, that it did not know before when it held its last meeting of the season at the Hotel Astor. Wilber C. Philips, Secretary of the New York Milk Committee of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, which is to open seven new infants' milk depots on June 15, was one of the speakers. What Mr. Philips doesn't know about mothers and babies the Rainy Day Club would like to know. He gave the members statistics that made them open their eyes, even though they learned that the American mother wasn't much good and the imported article was the only one worth considering.

There are many mothers and even grandmothers in the Rainy Day Club, and they smiled to themselves while Mr. Philips was talking, but they told him afterward that they approved of it all.

"In twenty-eight uptown blocks in the neighborhood of the Plaza and around Fifth Avenue there were born in one year thirty-seven children, while in four east side blocks, with equal population, there were born 370 children," said Mr. Philips. "If we wish good mothers, we must import them. Dr. George Goler of Rochester says. There are not only few births, but there is an appalling death rate among the better class of American children. This is not due to the milk, but to the mothers, to weakness, atrophy, premature birth, and prenatal influences."

TAFT ARRIVES AT COLON.

Welcomed by Officials of Panama and the Canal Commission.

COLON, May 6.—The United States auxiliary cruiser Prairie, with Secretary of War Taft and the members of his party on board, arrived here at 8:30 this morning.

The Secretary was welcomed by a number of officials representing the Republic of Panama and the Canal Commission.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—That the Republic of Colombia twice made demand for and then asked arbitration of her claim for $10,000,000 from the United States, and twice was refused, was made known at the State Department to-day.

It was added that these demands and refusals were ancient history, that no fresh representation had been made on the question, and that, so far as the State Department officials are aware, no revival of the question is contemplated by Colombia.

This information, perhaps more in detail, will constitute the answer to Mr. Bacon's resolution of inquiry adopted by the Senate yesterday.

The basis of the Colombian demand is the damage she claims to have sustained as the result of separation from her territory of what is now the Republic of Panama, made possible through the recognition by the United States of that republic.

CARY, AT LONG ODDS, WON ON THE POST

Backed from 40 to 1 Down, Outsider Was First in Jamaica Consolation Race.

ARASEE TOOK THE STAKES

Pricillian Was First for Belmont, After a Sharp Finish with Keene's Peter Quince—Five Choices Beaten.

The happenings at the Jamaica race course yesterday struck a fair balance between sensation and disaster for a singularly large attendance under the conditions of the weather and the commonplace programme offered. In the shape of disaster the defeat of five post favorites figured big, though the truly stanch among the backers had the chance to recoup on the last race of the day, when the single winning favorite got home first.

Some long-chance horses got to the winning post first, but the most amazing result achieved was that of the fifth event, a cheap selling purse for horses that had not won in 1907 or 1908. Apparently for the simple reason that they were the youngest horses in the race, and therefore had the shortest bad records, Dash-a-Way and Alila were the two best backed runners in this event, Dash-a-Way starting a very slight favorite. In the meantime, however, Cary, a five-year-old gelding, which once upon a time caught Oiseau unprepared, and beat him at the Saratoga track, when Cary won at odds of 60 to 1, was backed with such insistence that from a top price of 40 to 1 the gelding went to the post at 10 to 1. Cary was ridden by Garner, a jockey who very nearly fitted the conditions made for horses, as Garner had not ridden a winner since about July, 1907; but luck was with the pair for the day, and closing from far back in the crowd, Cary loomed up as a contender in the short stretch. For the first part of the mile and a sixteenth contest Disaster, at 100 to 1, was the pacemaker, and he still was in front when Cary coming in in the short run home made his challenge. There was but a brief contest at the last sixteenth pole, and then Cary drew out and won, hips in front of Disaster second, with George Hall a close third.

Another long-chance winner was S. C. Hildreth's two-year-old filly Silk Hose in the five furlongs for maiden fillies. Luck helped Silk Hose at that, for J. R. Keene's Opal bore every appearance of being a winner, when on the turn coming to the stretch she ran out and dropped out of the race, Silk Hose, at 15 to 1, then coming on and winning rather easily. The bad luck of the Keene stable with Opal was only a fraction of the ill-fortune that came for the establishment in the course of the day. In the first race Sandal, carrying the Keene colors, was badly beaten by Grimaldi, a horse that Mr. Keene thought so little of that he weeded him out of his stable last season, Grimaldi racing well forward all the distance, and winning, hustled out, by a half length from Jane Swift, the post favorite.

The third Keene starter was Peter Quince, in the last race of the day, and though Peter Quince ran what looked like a winning race, he was beaten after repeated bumping in the run down the stretch by Pricillian, from August Belmont's stable, and though a claim of foul against Pricillian was lodged by Notter, who rode the horse, the Stewards refused to change the placing of the judges. Pricillian, horsemen recalled, was the choice of the Belmont stable for the Futurity of last year, and it was even said that in the yearling trials he showed better than Norman III., the Belmont horse which yesterday won the Two Thousand Guineas in England. Peter Quince likewise was one of the highly tried sons of Commando in the Keene stable last season.

The single stake event of the card, the Columbus selling, for three-year-olds, at a mile and a sixteenth, brought out the lightest field of the day, with Castlewood the post favorite over Alauda, which was regarded as the next best horse. Arasee showed that the betting was all wrong, however, by jumping out to the front at the lifting of the barrier and racing in the lead from end to end, Arasee winning easily by three lengths from Castlewood, second, and Alauda third.

NEWSBOYS ON THE MAT.

Noisy Youngsters Hold Annual Wrestling Tournament at East Side Branch.

A howling crowd of newsboys, giving impromptu "yells" of their respective lodging houses, assembled last night at the East Side Branch of the Newsboys' Home at Forty-fourth Street and Second Avenue, to witness the annual wrestling tournament for the honor of rival houses. There were 450 newsies in the class room on the second floor of the building when the preliminaries between Eddie Berry and Dickie Palmer, ninety-five pounders, started at 8 o'clock.

The wrestling tournament is an annual affair, inaugurated several years ago by Everet Jansen Wendell of 8 East Thirty-eighth Street, who is fond of newsboys and athletes. Mr. Wendell donated twelve medals for first and second prizes in the six classes divided among the 95, 105, 115, 125, 135, and 145-pound wrestlers. William Wood, Superintendent of the East Side Branch, was the referee.

First and second prizes in the different classes were distributed as follows:

95-Pound Class.—"Whitie" Male of the Thirty-fifth Street House, first; Charlie Connors, New Chambers Street House, second.
105-Pound Class.—"Hub" Albert, Forty-fourth Street House, first; "Dickie" Palmer, Forty-fourth Street House, second.
115-Pound Class.—"Micky" Laznicky, Forty-fourth Street House, first; "Andy" Cortes, Forty-fourth Street House, second.
125-Pound Class.—"Pete" Mirdello, Forty-fourth Street House, first; "Hank" Adams, Thirty-fifth Street House, second.
135-Pound Class.—Frank Cullinano, Thirty-fifth Street House, first; "Pete" Nirdello, Forty-fourth Street House, second.
145-Pound Class.—"Jimmie" (The Harp) Ryan, Forty-fourth Street House, first; "Mike" Schomer, (Young Sampson,) Forty-fourth Street House, second.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 6.—Timely hitting by Boston and errors by the Yankees tells the tale of the latter's shutout here today. The visitors made enough hits to win the game, but they came at a time when they were useless, while the locals, who made but one-half the number of hits totaled by the visitors, rolled up four runs. There was some doubt as to whether the game would be played, owing to the cold weather. There was also a strong wind blowing across the field, which was in a large measure responsible for the poor field work of both teams.

Newton on the whole did effective slab work, but the one bad inning, when he was all at sea, was the undoing of his otherwise good work. In the fifth inning the Yankee twirler hit Gessler with a pitched ball, allowed Unglaub to reach first through cumbersome handling of an easy grounder, and made a wild throw. These three poor exhibitions were important factors in the three runs scored by Boston. To add to the Yankees' discomfiture, Niles contributed to the error column in this inning. The other run made by Boston came in the sixth inning on a slashing single and a two-bagger.

Several times during the game the visitors had splendid chances to score, but were unequal to the emergency. In the second inning they had men on second and third bases, but blew up. Again, in the third, New York, the first two men up reached second and third respectively, but could get no further, both dying in attempts to come home on long flies. There was no ginger in the fielding and stickwork of Griffith's men, while they showed poor judgment in many of their plays. The score:

Local Golf Championship.

Leighton Calkins, Secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association, issued the programme of play for the tenth annual championship to be played from May 20 to 23 on the Baltusrol Club links, near Short Hills, N. J. The qualifying round will be thirty-six holes, and sixteen will qualify for the championship trophy presented by Daniel Chauncey. Three other sets of sixteen will qualify for special trophies. Entries will close on May 16. The Tournament Committee consists of James L. Taylor, John R. Maxwell, Jr., and C. F. Watson. Jerome D. Travers is the present title holder and he will play in the tournament.

Jersey Riflemen Beat Reserves.

In a closely contested match the rifle team of the Third Division Naval Reserves was defeated by the team representing Company C, Fourth Regiment, N. G. N. J., at the range of the former on board the U. S. S. Granite State, foot of West Ninety-seventh Street, by a score of 799 to 775. This was the second of a series of three matches arranged between these teams, both of which were won by the Jerseymen.

RICH STAKE FOR BELMONT.

Norman III. Captures Newmarket Fixture from King's Perrier.

LONDON, May 6.—The Two Thousand Guinea Stakes for colts and fillies foaled in 1905 was run at Newmarket to-day and won by August Belmont's Norman III., by Octagon-Nineveh. A. F. Bassett's Sir Archibald was second and W. Hall Walker's White Eagle was third. Seventeen horses ran.

"The Guineas" is one of the classics of the English turf, and was won by Norman III. against a very strong field, which included King Edward's Perrier, the favorite for the Derby. King Edward and the Prince of Wales were present in the grand stand, and in spite of the rain a great crowd of spectators turned out for the meeting in the expectation that his Majesty's horse would win. The betting on Norman III. was 23 to 1 against. The betting on Sir Archibald was 5 to 1 against, on White Eagle 100 to 7 against, and on Perrier 5 to 4 against.

Norman III., who was considered a rank outsider, proved a very easy winner. When nearing the straight, Mr. Belmont's horse took the lead from Mercutio, and, rapidly drawing away, came in three lengths ahead of Sir Archibald, who was three-quarters of a length in front of White Eagle. Perrier, which was a hot favorite at 5 to 4 against, only got fifth place. The stake was worth $27,800 to the winner.

There was a long delay at the start, for which Dibs and Dalgety were chiefly responsible. The tapes were twice broken by the eager starters, but the barrier finally ascended on a good getaway. Mercutio, ridden by Lucien Lyne, led the field. Perrier was in the centre and close up, and Norman III. and White Eagle held prominent positions. Perrier was beaten when the horses reached The Bushes. At the finish Norman III., with a splendid rush, passed Mercutio, and came in a winner in a canter, the time being 1:44 3-5.

The win by Norman III. reverses the result of the race for the Dewhurst Plate of last year, when Perrier beat him, running second to Richard Croker's Rhodora. To-day's race was the centenary of "The Stakes." On twenty occasions the winner of this race subsequently has won the Derby. Norman III. is entered for the Derby.

Although Mr. Belmont's colors are popular in this country, the victory of his horse to-day was received in gloomy silence, as the betting public to a man had backed Perrier. It was difficult to find a bookmaker who had laid a cent against Norman III. The victory of the Belmont entry is bound to give him a prominent position in the Derby betting, and many experts, after the race to-day, did not hesitate to express the opinion that the running for "The Guineas" would be confirmed at Epsom.

Richard Croker was among those who witnessed the race. His Rhodora is a prominent candidate for the One Thousand Guinea Stakes to be run May 8.

Betting Will Continue at Louisville.

FRANKFORT, Ky., May 6.—The Kentucky Court of Appeals to-day refused to dissolve the injunction against the city authorities of Louisville, preventing them from interfering with the betting at the present Churchill-Downs meeting. The effect of the decision is to permit betting under the present Pari-mutuel system to continue.

COLLEGE BASEBALL.

Pennsy Wins in Twelfth.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., May 6.—It took twelve innings for the University of Pennsylvania to defeat the Cadets to-day by a score of 5 to 4. In the sixth inning the Cadets lined out three singles and a two-bagger, scoring four runs off Collier, who was retired. It was rapidly getting dark when Pennsylvania came up in the twelfth and Corkran filed out. Judd reached first on Gonser's muff of the third strike, he then throwing wild to first. Another wild throw to second advanced Judd to third. Smiley sent a slow grounder along third base line, and a poor throw home let Judd score the winning run. Smiley was caught off second, and Simpson fanned. Score:

Yale Barely Beats Brown.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 6.—Yale defeated Brown 2 to 1, in an interesting game on Andrews Field to-day. Nourse, who was in the box for Brown, was somewhat erratic at the beginning, and Brown made errors at critical points. A sensational play was Philbin's catch of Budlong's fly to right field. The score:

	R.	H.	E.

Batteries—H. Jones and Wylie; Nourse and Raymond.

Williams, 4; Harvard, 3.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 6.—With Hartford, Harvard's best pitcher in the box, Williams defeated the home nine to-day 4 to 3. Hartford pitched well up to the seventh inning, when he went to pieces and at the same time the support of the team fell off, and the visitors made three runs. Except for the sixth inning, when the Williams team seemed to have lost its grip on the game, the visitors outplayed Harvard throughout. The score:

Syracuse No Match for Tigers.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 6.—Princeton won easily from Syracuse to-day in a seven-inning game. The weather was cold and the visitors put up a poor exhibition. Heyniger did not allow a hit or run in the four innings which he pitched. Score:

Syracuse	0 0 0 0 0 1 0	—1	2 6

WHITE AND PULLMAN CARS WIN LONG RUN

The Only Two Autos to Complete Endurance Contest with Perfect Scores.

MITCHELL ALSO A VICTOR

Captures Award in Small Touring Class in Pennsylvania Contest—Severe Trial for the Cars.

Walter C. White won first honors in the two-day endurance run completed in Pennsylvania on Tuesday, finishing with his White steamer and having the only perfect score made in the touring car division. He also won the prize offered last year for which he tied with three other cars in the run. Only two of these contested in this year's race, a Pullman, which lost 60 points, and a Pierce Arrow, which on account of trouble with its transmission did not finish. Referee Johnson announced the result of the contest last night after the Technical Board, consisting of David Beecroft, the newly appointed Chairman of the Technical Committee of the A. A. A.; Richard Sellers of the Quaker City Motor Club, and W. Orville Hickok, 3d, of Harrisburg had examined the cars that finished.

Stuart Lefeau's Pullman was the only other car which made a perfect score, winning the class for high-priced runabouts. Three cars were tied before the examination by the Technical Committee, but the Pullman was awarded the prize over A. H. Bitner's Rambler and E. H. Croninger's Pennsylvania. C. C. Cocklin's Pullman also won in the small runabout division, although it was led by H. G. Zimmerman's Jackson and A. A. Jones's Ford on the first day.

The award in the small touring car class went to W. M. Crane's Mitchell, which defeated C. C. Crispen's Cadillac and Charles Fleming's Maxwell by small margins. Fred Moeslein's Thomas was the second car in the big touring car division.

The conditions of the trial were made severe so that the number of cars to make perfect scores should be necessarily small. The machines ran from Harrisburg to Philadelphia over a 154-mile course on Monday and returned over a 148-mile course on Tuesday.

It is announced by those who have been working to effect co-operation between the Highway Commissions of New York and New Jersey that Governor Fort and Senator Frelinghuysen favor the proposal to direct the work of improvement in the two States so that the new highways shall connect at the State line and afford continuous good roads between principal cities in the two States. Thirty-seven through routes are to be built which will give a continuous chain of roads instead of a patchwork of detached sections. It is expected that Governor Hughes will approve the bill now awaiting his signature authorizing $50,000 in bonds for highway improvement.

The committee of the American Automobile Association which has charge of the Good Roads Convention to be held at Buffalo on July 7 and 8 have formulated a programme for the convention. Charles Thaddeus Terry will lead the discussion in the morning of the first day on the efforts to obtain uniform legislation. In the afternoon Robert F. Hooper will lead the discussion of good roads, while Highway Commissioners Skene of New York, Hunter of Pennsylvania, and McClintock of Massachusetts will be among the speakers. The good roads discussion will continue on the morning of the second day, and the afternoon will be given over to practical demonstration of road building, maintenance, and other topics of kindred interest. Governor Hughes will address the banquet in the evening, and the A. A. A. tour will start the next day.

The work of laying out the route of the tour has progressed tentatively, and the course has been outlined as far as Harrisburg. It is understood northeastern Pennsylvania will be covered and the western shore of the Hudson before the cars come to New York City. The route is then expected to turn north and cross the White Mountais into New England, returning to finish the tour at Saratoga Springs.

The Executive Committee of the A. A. A. is expected to discuss the Vanderbilt Cup plans at its next meeting, but though the two men who are working to get the race for Savannah hope for some favorable action there, it is improbable that any recommendation on the question will be made.

TURF COURT ADJOURNS.

Number of Reinstatements and Successor Elected to A. P. Spreckels.

The Spring meetings of the National Trotting Association usually are of a brief duration, and the one which was called to order for the first time on Tuesday, at the Murray Hill Hotel, was no exception to the rule. Yesterday all the cases on the calendar were decided shortly after noon, and then an adjournment was ordered. With the exception of the re-election of Lewis J. Powers of Springfield, Mass., as Treasurer of the National Trotting Association for two years, of W. H. Gocher of Hartford, Conn., as Secretary for the same period, and the election of Jacob Eveott of Saskatchewan, Canada, on the Pacific District Board in place of A. P. Spreckels of San Francisco, resigned, there was very little business transacted. This is Mr. Gocher's thirteenth year as Secretary of the National Trotting Association, while Mr. Powers was first elected Treasurer in 1876.

Probably the most important case decided yesterday was that of D. W. Cummins of Shelby, Ohio, who was expelled by the Board of Review five years ago. He was charged with being implicated in "ringing" upon the track at Warren, Ohio. H. E. Bell, a lawyer of Mansfield, Ohio, appeared in Cummins's behalf, and presented many affidavits concerning his uprightness. The officers of the Warren track, however, opposed the reinstatement of Cummins, who is at present a big horse buyer in the Middle West, and wants to re-enter the racing field.

From the evidence presented it appears that for the meeting in

THE UNIT RULE.

The Ohio Democrats have instructed their delegates to Denver to vote as a unit for the nomination of Mr. BRYAN. We must conclude, therefore, that they consider the unit rule to be an essential in the process of nomination. But we are forced to the further conclusion that after that they deem it a negligible detail, for no power on earth can give validity to the unit rule on Election Day with Mr. BRYAN as candidate. The Democratic Party will not vote for him as a unit, only as a fraction. On what theory of politics, of human reason, or of common sense these Ohio Democrats proceed in applying the unit rule to the nomination of a notoriously disuniting candidate is a problem before which conjecture falters.

Possibly Mr. BRYAN is not the most disuniting candidate that could be named. An extreme reactionary, some Democrat, say, sharing the interests and the views of Mr. HARRIMAN, might conceivably poll a smaller vote than Mr. BRYAN would poll. But Mr. BRYAN'S fatal defect of insuring defeat is not a matter of inference or guesswork, it has been demonstrated. Defeat is his habit. That he is unacceptable to his party is perfectly well known. It has been proclaimed by innumerable voices unmistakably reflecting the opinion and the desires of the Democracy. The party distrusts him so much and wants him so little that, notwithstanding his prodigious and tireless efforts to secure the nomination, his defeat at Denver is now confidently counted upon by those who actively oppose him. It may be too soon to be so certain about it, but it is certain that if the Democrats of the South would make common cause against him with the Democrats of the East, his public career will be ended at Denver.

After instructing the delegates for BRYAN, the Columbus Convention nominated JUDSON HARMON for Governor. That is further food for wonderment. How can two Democrats so dissimilar in intellectual make-up and in their careers be acceptable to a nominating body? How can these two incongruous and incompatible things issue from the same Convention? Mr. HARMON is a lawyer of eminent ability, an experienced, wise, and successful man of affairs. He is trusted, he is universally respected. We suppose he is the fittest man to be nominated for Governor by the Ohio Democracy. He would be a strong and uniting candidate for the Presidency. If the Convention had instructed the delegates to vote for him as a unit, men would have said that the Democrats had regained their sober senses. Then a resolution of platonic admiration for Mr. BRYAN might have been adopted, and nobody would have cared. But to nominate HARMON for Governor and instruct for BRYAN as Presidential nominee is a proceeding that passes understanding.

LABOR AND THE ELSBERG AMENDMENTS.

Predatory wealth is said to be sleepless, but it is not a marker to "No Pass" BAKER. He was on the job of defending the people's interests even on Sunday, when he warned the Central Federated Union against the insidious attack upon the interests of labor in the form of the amendments to the Rapid Transit law. They might have passed the Assembly honestly, but he "knew" their way through the Senate was bought. He went on to say that he had no specific personal knowledge, but only "knew" what "everybody knew." The certainty was only a moral certainty, not such a legal certainty as he would have been justified in calling the District Attorney's attention to.

In credit to his audience it must be set down that they hooted and jeered. Their interest in the matter is that of men who would earn wages through the possible construction of any rapid transit extensions, and therefore is greater than that of those who would merely pay fares over them, yet they are weary of the sort of stuff which has gone too far in forming a false public opinion. The Bakers, and Croziers, and La Follettes are losing the public ear as it is discovered that they talk under no fit sense of responsibility, and have caused worse things than they assumed to cure.

It is a pity that the union which had sense enough to drive Mr. BAKER from its hall went on to oppose the rapid transit amendments. They do no more than remove the obstacles to construction which were interposed by reformers whose plans have proved to be bad. Whatever the Elsberg law's merits they do not help rapid transit construction, and however the amendments were passed they do not impede construction. The same common sense which saw through Mr. BAKER'S foolish speech might have sufficed to see where labor's interest lies in the rapid transit business. Labor needs work, and the reformers want to stop stock watering and improvident contracts, and so on. The motives and interests of labor and reform are rather different than inconsistent. By opposing the amendments labor opposes its own interests, without doing the cause of reform any good.

"WHAT KIND OF REVISION?"

I have stated it as my opinion, in answer to many inquiries which were made of me when I was in Europe, that we are not likely to return to normal conditions until it can—after the Presidential election—be fully seen what kind of tariff revision we are going to have, this being probably a more far-reaching economic question than any other now before the country, not excluding even currency reform.—Mr. JACOB SCHIFF.

Whatever may be the result of the Presidential election, there is one kind of tariff revision that we shall not and can not have—a radical reduction of rates. Of this it may be said positively that there is no remote possibility. There are several things that make it impossible. In the first place the Republican majority in the Senate will not be materially weakened in the next four years, and no reduction of the tariff can take place that does not meet the views of these stanch protectionists. In the next place the Democratic Party is itself hopelessly divided as to the policy of protection, and, even if it had entire discretion, could not be brought to agree upon any extreme measure.

Apart, however, from any definite prospect of action in regard to the tariff, there lingers in the minds of business men to some extent the old fear that "agitation" of the tariff will be injurious to business. This is not true as it used to be, and is hardly true at all. For one thing, the need of revision is generally recognized. It is felt as much by manufacturers as by any other class. They are pressing for it in an organized and systematic manner. Obviously the revision they would ask or accept would not be of a kind to do harm to any class. Again, there is a pronounced feeling among the people generally that the present tariff fosters monopoly, and there is a distinct demand for its amendment on this account. This is an assurance that revision would be confined mainly to this purpose and to such improvements as the manufacturers desire. There is no risk in such revision. Finally, the demand for revision will be influenced in an appreciable degree by the increasing requirements for revenue to meet a deficiency of $65,000,000 this year, and, according to Senator ALDRICH, twice that amount next year. Revision for revenue is not likely to be radical. Taking the situation as a whole, it may be said that there is more peril to business in a stubborn refusal to acknowledge the need and demand for sane tariff revision than there possibly can be in any revision that can take place.

THE CURRENCY MELEE.

According to a dispatch from Tokio of yesterday's date, the depression from which Japan is now suffering is "ascribed to the adoption of Government measures without consulting the capitalists. Financiers will soon pass a resolution which the Government will accept; an economic improvement will soon follow."

Happy, thrice happy, is Japan, not in its crisis, but in the prospect of a cure by the methods which are rejected at Washington. What our bankers want is exactly the thing Congress will not give to the suffering Nation. What our bankers protest against is what the country must take without alteration by a tittle, or go without any relief whatever. Happily this truculent manner of legislation has already met an inglorious fate. The "leaders" of Congress have been embarrassed by the proof that the country is better informed than they imagined regarding our ills, and their proper cure, and is ready to accept a better and more thorough law than any they had the courage to propose. The proof is afforded by the gradual approximation of the successive "regular" proposals to the Fowler bill.

Following repeated instances illustrating this, Representative BURTON yesterday admitted that redemption is the indispensable complement of banknote issue, and introduced a bill borrowing this feature from Mr. FOWLER'S bill, which contained it originally. At least it cannot be said that Mr. BURTON, any more than Mr. VREELAND, is unwilling to learn or incapable of instruction. Apparently all they object to in the Fowler proposal is the name of its introducer. On the other hand, there is no possible objection to the names of the introducers of the series of bills which have, one after another, yielded the ground to the Fowler bill's principle. All that is objectionable in them is what follows the enacting clause.

Speaker CANNON illustrated the ill-considered support of the Vreeland bill's "principle" by contending that the opposition to it was comparable to the original opposition to the National banking law. That, too, was harshly criticised, and the Vreeland bill, if enacted, might prove as beneficial as the National banking law. This proves too much. The similarity of criticism might as well show that both bills were bad as that they were good. The criticism of the National banking law at the time of its enactment is far from proving its excellence. Those criticisms were sound then as now, but they were disregarded only under the pressure of events of a compelling nature, and such as are now conspicuously absent as a reason for enacting anything known to be wrong. The Vreeland bill will never commend itself because it is criticised for reasons of financial science. On the contrary, those criticisms will gain cumulative force, exactly as the arguments against the National bank system have done. Nothing ever was alleged against the National bank system of a bond-secured currency so severe as the contention now that it is necessary to pass an emergency currency law because the existing system cannot care for such an ordinary emergency as the moving of the next harvest. It is true that every crop season is a minor crisis under the bond-secured currency scheme, but nobody ought to contend that the proper remedy is another dose of the cause of the trouble. The wholesome effects of the events since last October ought not to be wasted in securing a bill like any of those proposed by the majority at Washington in such bewildering succession. The Aldrich-Vreeland-Cannon-Roosevelt-Republican proposals are little short of an insult to the financial opinion of the country.

PEACE IN THE FAR EAST?

It was avowedly a message of peace that was delivered at Carnegie Hall by his Excellency, Dr. WU TING-FANG. After describing and to some extent explaining the changes that have taken place in China in the last two decades, he concluded his address with these impressive words:

What does this awakening of China mean to the world? To my mind, it means, in the first place, true and lasting peace in the Far East. The moment China becomes strong enough after her awakening to maintain her sovereign rights and protect herself from aggression, the Far Eastern question will have been solved.

It will be seen that there is, however, in these words an implication sufficiently plain that the peace which is promised by the awakening of the ancient empire may have to be reached, as well as maintained, through the exercise of force. Undoubtedly the utterances of a Minister so experienced as his Excellency, and so entirely at home in the English language, are carefully weighed, and may be taken at their full significance. In this case their significance includes the protection of the empire and its sovereign rights from aggression. It is primarily for that that China is strengthening itself through the adoption of the methods and instrumentalities and the organization of Western civilization.

The question inevitably suggests itself. From what quarter do the rulers of China look for "aggression," by whom do they think that her "sovereign rights" are likely to be denied or encroached upon? Ten years ago the answer to these questions might have embraced one or more of four European Powers. Great Britain, Russia, Germany, and France are all neighbors of China by fee or leasehold, and after their several fashions all were more or less dreaded as possible aggressors. That is not now the case with any of them save, in certain conditions, Russia, and Russia is powerless, even if disposed, to take any steps approaching aggression unless with the co-operation of Japan. Such a combination is not inconceivable, but it is highly improbable. Apparently, therefore, it is to Japan itself that the intimation of the Chinese Minister may be addressed. Recent occurrences lend force to this interpretation. China has just been subjected to rather severe treatment by Japan because she made a mistake in defending herself from a real wrong. She seized a Japanese vessel loaded with arms intended for rebels against her authority in waters not under her jurisdiction, and hauled down the Japanese flag. For this she has made due reparation, but the sense of injury remains, and adds to the irritation and suspicion arising from other causes. Her people are responding through a boycott of Japanese goods and shipping wholly unprecedented in extent and obstinacy. In these circumstances the language of the Chinese Minister takes a wider scope than on the surface it would seem to have.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Doctors and Speed Regulations.

New Jersey, among other States, has already given doctors using automobiles a legal right, under proper restrictions, to break the speed laws when responding to emergency calls for their services, and it is evident that New York will soon have to do the same thing. As a matter of fact, our police are already acting on their own discretion in such cases, and, when convinced that haste is a matter of life or death, they view the rush of the doctor's car with a lenient or an unseeing eye. This, however, is a highly unsatisfactory solution of a really important problem, for it is open to abuses on both sides.

Tuesday evening two doctors speeding down Madison Avenue, having been summoned by telephone to a child on the verge of strangulation, were stopped by a policeman, but, explaining the reason for their haste, they were allowed to proceed. They arrived just in time to save the child, but later the policeman arrested their chauffeur, an obviously absurd proceeding, though perhaps necessary in the circumstances.

As everybody is likely at some time or other to be in desperate need of a doctor's immediate care, it is obvious that a definite relaxation of the general automobile laws in favor of the profession is desirable as well as proper, but the privilege must be guarded and it must be exercised under a heavy responsibility. It would never do to extend it to all doctors, simply as doctors, and regardless of whether the saving of a few minutes' time was important to the patient or not.

We let our firemen and their superior officers go through the streets as fast as their horses or their automobiles can carry them, but their prompt arrival is a matter of wider interest than is that of a doctor, since delay may mean the burning of a dozen houses or half a city in the first case, while in the other its results, while momentous for one and serious for a few more, can hardly be said often to justify even the slight endangering of many lives.

It might perhaps be judicious to give every registered doctor the right to exceed the speed limits, but on condition that when doing so he should display some special sign, disclosing his profession and the nature of his errand, and that later he should, in each instance, make some sort of a report to a designated official, explaining the necessity for his haste. These reports could be investigated in case of reasonable suspicion that a doctor went too fast needlessly, and fines could be imposed if deserved. That plan wouldn't be popular with the medicos, but something like it seems to be expected to work in Jersey.

Confucianism Is a Bit Antiquated.

Minister Wu probably as little as anybody who could be mentioned needs telling that something better than Confucianism is needed by the Chinese, both at home and abroad, if they are to get out of the hopeless circle in which they have so long been traveling and at last take among progressive nations the place their natural intelligence makes them deserve.

The man known to Occidentals as CONFUCIUS was a philosopher of eminence in his day, and his doctrines, being simply the common morality and wisdom upon which people, both thinking and right thinking in all ages and countries, have calmly agreed, are as good now as they ever were, but most of them partake desperately of the nature of platitudes, and they are far too dull and cold ever to serve as a new inspiration for China. Certainly they have been admired and cultivated at least as much as they deserve in that country, but in spite of all the reverence in which they have been held by the Chinese millions, their influence on the national spirit has been deplorable—at least from what must be the point of view of a cosmopolitan like Minister WU.

Simmered down, Confucianism is little more than a series of "don'ts," and it isn't by not doing things that great ends are achieved. Of course, the Chinese in New York might employ, and have employed, their money to worse purpose than in erecting a "temple of Confucius," especially if they devote most of the space in it to kinds of mental and physical education to which the ancient sage never gave a thought—which seems to be the intention. Confucianism is certainly better than the crude superstitions in the midst of which it has flourished, so far as it can be said to have flourished at all, and, as the name of CONFUCIUS is about the only one in Chinese history that anybody in other lands really knows, perhaps it is well to exploit his fame even at this late day.

If, however, it weren't for the general though vague impression that he was a great man there would be an inclination to deny that China had ever produced one, and that in turn would invite the prophecy that she never will. Nevertheless, it is a good deal like waste of time to honor CONFUCIUS nowadays anywhere except in the encyclopedias, and while it would be most undiplomatic and therefore unwise for Minister WU to say anything of the kind, the sincerity of his reverence for the Confucian cult is just a little dubious.

A Mystery of the South.

Is there anything peculiar about the people of Savannah or about the way in which the Charlestonians regard them? The Charleston News and Courier hints as much—unless it is making a deep and mysterious joke—when, after commenting on the "chromatic laugh," which it has heard of as fashionable in London just now, it expresses the hope that this new expression of joy may be "an improvement on the 'loud laugh that speaks the vacant mind,' a quality of cachination not very rare in some parts of this country, notably in Savannah, for example."

We do not understand that, and, therefore, it troubles us. Savannah, as viewed by the visiting stranger, is a decidedly lively place, especially in comparison with Charleston, and if its inhabitants have notably vacant minds they have at least used the emptiness to some purpose in recent years. And they haven't gone to Charleston, either, for lessons in the art of paving streets, painting houses, and attracting business to their wharves. Charleston could have told them all about another art, that of living on memories of past prosperity.

But there! it's not our duty to tell Savannah how to get back at the unkind News and Courier, and, anyhow, it is always dangerous to interfere in a quarrel one does not understand.

H. G. Wells's Christian Socialism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some of your readers may have been led by your editorial of to-day on "Christian Socialist Problems" to credit the oft-repeated fallacy that Christianity and Socialism are incompatible. For their benefit, I subjoin the following from H. G. Wells's "New Worlds for Old," a book which no one desiring a sane, illuminating and concise presentation of Socialism can afford to leave unread:

Coming to graver matters, there are ardent theologians who would create an absolute antagonism between Socialism and Christianity, who would tie up Socialism with some extraordinary doctrine of Predestination, or deny the possibility of a Christian being a Socialist or a Socialist being a Christian. * * * But I do not see why a believer in any of the accepted creeds of Christianity, from the Apostles' Creed upward, should not also whole-heartedly give himself to this great work of social reconstruction. To believe in a real and personal Heaven is surely not to deny earth with its tragedy, its sorrows, its splendid possibilities. It is simply to believe a little more concretely than I do, that is all. To assert the brotherhood of man under God seems to me to lead logically to a repudiation of the severities of private ownership—that is, to Socialism. When the rich young man was told to give up his property to follow Christ, when the Disciples were told to leave father and mother—it seems to me ridiculous to present Christianity as opposed to the self-abnegation of the two main generalizations of Socialism—that relating to property in things, and that relating to property in persons. * * *

The Continental Sunday.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In Europe in almost every large city—except London, which is rather unpleasant Sundays—Sunday is a real holiday of the people, by the people. You get a chance to go to various places where fresh air, not saturated with roasted peanut odor, is at your benefit, free playgrounds, popular music, and out-of-door comedies especially for the little ones. In Europe there are smiling Sundays, freshness in everybody's look, instead of packed cars and rough, intoxicated baseball players, viz., bartenders and office boys, who are always insulting people when riding on cars. It is of great importance to have pleasant Sundays for the hard-working people, quiet and healthy entertainments for liberal prices. There is wealth in America, enthusiasm in every step of life, but a great deal of idealism is missing.

CITY HALL'S RESTORATION.

Present Clock Tower Unrelated to Mass of the Building.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of to-day it is stated that Mrs. Sage may give $250,000 for the restoration of the City Hall to its original condition, and that this amount would have to be expended on the interior, as the exterior is as it always has been.

It is to correct the error of this assumption that I ask the courtesy of your columns, hoping that Mrs. Sage and her advisers may be induced to restore the exterior as well as the interior of this once beautiful building. If the City Hall is to be preserved because of its beauty it is indeed much more important that the exterior should be in the lines of its designer than that its interior should represent today the ideas of convenience that influenced its first builders.

I presume that there are still many in this city who remember the City Hall as it stood before the fire which destroyed its original dome. It was then indisputably what it has often since been questionably assumed to be—a most perfect example of the architecture of a time influenced by regard for Greek simplicity, dignity, and beauty.

Its dome was similar in curve to that of the Washington Capitol, and was proportionate in size to that of the building which it crowned, and the effect was that of a complete and perfect whole. The present clock tower, on the contrary, is not related to the mass of the building; it jars one's sense of proportion, and mars that unity of design which is an essential element of beauty. Imagine the magnificent Washington Capitol crowned by a clock tower instead of a dome and you have what the City Hall now appears to be to those who are sensitive to beauty of form.

If the public-spirited citizen desires to perpetuate this landmark as an example of the taste of a less strenuous time it would seem to be of the highest importance that the opportunity should be availed of to restore the building to the exact lines of its architect. If it is to be preserved in order that the heterogenous inhabitants of this overcrowded city may be able to look upon the architecture of a time when there was space to build upon the earth instead of in the air it would seem to be of the highest importance that it should be restored in all the beauty of its original design.

UNDER-RIVER TUBES.

Aesthetic Disadvantages Compared with Old-Fashioned Interurban Travel.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is true that the under-river tubes do save a few minutes of our time in coming or going to business each day, but do these few moments really pay in our scheme of mental and physical economy? Is the exchange of the interesting scenes of river and harbor life, always in varying mood, the invigorating salty breezes, the impressive view of the majestic city—all this for the ill-ventilated, artificially lighted, noisy car, with its advertising signs and herds of humans—calculated to promote our health, benefit our nerves, and lengthen our lives? What if the fog now and then delays us; it has its fascinating mystery. And there is no safer place to travel than upon a New York ferryboat. For one, I count the two little trips over the water each morning and evening as among the most delightful of the day's experiences, and I believe there must be just a few others who have not caught the speed mania who would sincerely deplore the substitution of holes in the ground for the ferries.

Thankful for Lost and Found Column.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Two weeks ago I lost a diamond bracelet on the Boardwalk in Atlantic City. I advertised the loss in THE TIMES, and twenty-four hours afterward received a letter from a New York gentleman informing me that he had seen a boy from the Hotel Brighton pick up the bracelet. Through this information it has been restored to me. I congratulate THE TIMES upon the excellent results that follow its remarkable Lost and Found column. THE TIMES is indeed a great newspaper. Wants Bright Uniforms.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Memorial Day parade in New York was wont to be one of the most beautiful sights as a military display of any that the city afforded, but since it has become the custom to dress the soldiers in the plain olive-colored service suits used in time of war, the spectacle has been robbed of much of its effectiveness. It does not excite so much interest among the people, and the soldiers themselves do not appear as well and apparently do not march as well as when clad in their distinctive and bright-colored uniforms. While I am a great lover of the feminine sex, I must with much regret confess that as a whole I have found them to be lacking when it comes to real brains. THOSE HATS.

I met them first within a car
While hanging to a strap;
We struck a curve—there came a jar—
Three of them seemed to lap.
Then I, a man, rushed to the street,
My face scratched like a cat's—
I prayed that I no more might meet
Those Merry Widow hats!

'Twas in a church I saw them next—
They had the foremost pew—
I quite forgot the preacher's text,
So dazzled was my view.
In prayer again I bowed my head—
Alas! as I arose
A big one, spreading just ahead,
Abruptly gouged my nose.

'Twas in an elevator now
I ran across my foe;
Too bad that I was not a cow
Upon all fours to go!
Three women entered—each one tried
To raise her headgear high,
And though aloud for help I cried,
The things dug out an eye.

53 LAWYERS DEFEND A SUIT.

And Win Out Against One Lawyer Who Sued a Citizens' Association.

For two days the Supreme Court in Richmond County, presided over by Justice Kelly, has been the scene of a legal battle in which no less than fifty-three lawyers, representing a like number of law firms in this city, have been engaged as counsel for the defense.

The case was that of Richard J. Donovan, a lawyer, with offices in this city, but living on Staten Island, against Dr. Alexander Hadden, as President, and 131 other members of the Citizens' East Side Improvement Association.

The latter is a body of citizens living in the vicinity of Park Avenue, from Forty-second Street well into the Fifties. They organized in 1902 for the purpose of making the New York Central put its tracks below the level of the street along Park Avenue. Donovan was connected with it in an official way, and he alleged that he performed legal services to the value of $24,800 for the association.

The money was not forthcoming, so Donovan sued the members of the association jointly and severally. Fifty-three law firms were engaged by the different defendants, and each sent an attorney to court. Justice Kelly dismissed all the complaints, and the great company of lawyers returned to the city.

HIGH PRICES FOR RARE COINS.

One $50 Gold Piece Fetches $360, a Copper Cent Brings $68.

At the auction sale of rare coins by Thomas L. Elder, at 32 East Twenty-third Street, yesterday the top figure realized was $360, paid for a scarce variety of $50 gold piece, circular in shape, made by private parties at San Francisco in 1855. An octagonal gold piece of the same denomination, issued by the United States Assay Office in the same city in 1852, fetched $145.

The gold coins issued by the private North Carolina mint of Christopher Bechtler, some time in the thirties, brought extremely high prices. One variety of $2.50 gold piece, with the inscription, "Carolina 70 G. 20 Carats," brought $175. Another gold coin of the same denomination, but with the inscription reading "67 G. 21 Carats," sold for $60. Two $5 pieces, struck at the Rutherfordton mint by August and Christopher Bechtler brought respectively $70 and $50, while the gold dollars, bearing somewhat similar inscriptions, brought from $12 to $15.

A United States half eagle of 1795 brought $71. A copper cent dated 1793 fetched $68; another cent dated 1793 brought $60; still another variety of 1793 fetched $24.

One of the rarest of the half dollars, a very fine specimen of 1797, brought $72, while a silver dollar of 1838, showing a flying eagle on the reverse, of which only eighteen pieces are known, sold for $185.

CITY'S WEALTH IN REALTY.

Controller's New Schedule Likely to Show a Total of Two Billions.

Controller Metz is counting up the city's wealth in real estate and has begun with the Fire Department, as he found that that department had no record whatever of its real estate holdings. Mr. Metz declares that the aggregate value of the city's property places it probably at the head of the list of real estate ownerships in the world, with the exception of the world's great nations. He estimates this value at nearly $2,000,000,000.

In the case of the Fire Department, the reports show that in a number of instances the title to property came to the city under the Dongan Charter of 1686. As an accompaniment to the reports, diagrams of the properties are given, with the original grantors' names, the considerations, and dates of conveyances.

"When complete the exhibit should be an instructive one for the prospective purchaser of securities issued by the city," said Controller Metz yesterday. "The wealth of the city represented by its real estate alone is sufficient security for several times the amount of loans the city may make under the Constitution of the State, even though the power of the city to redeem those loans by the ordinary processes of taxation and by the sinking fund were swept away."

NEW PLAN FOR THIRD TRACKS.

Elevated Officials Hint They Have Something New in Contemplation.

The officials of the Interborough Company still hope to add a third track to the elevated lines on the east side. An intimation that plans for these additional tracks are being prepared was given yesterday at a hearing before the Public Service Commission relative to the necessity for an additional stairway at the 161st Street Station of the Third Avenue line.

President E. P. Bryan of the company, after General Manager Hedley had said that the money spent on the stairway would be thrown away, as plans were being considered for various changes along the road, volunteered the information that the plans referred to contemplated the elimination of all island platforms. As such platforms would have to be eliminated in case a third track was built, Mr. Bryan's information was looked upon as a clear indication that the company has not given up hope of gaining the franchise it desires.

TOO MANY CAR SEATS.

More Than Enough for Every Passenger on the Eighth Avenue Line.

There is one car line in this city where the company runs too many cars—sometimes. Yesterday, at a hearing before Public Service Commissioner Maltbie, some of the commission's own Inspectors reported that the order issued some time ago calling for a stated increase in the number of cars run on the Eighth Avenue line had been obeyed, and that, as a consequence, there were in operation on Sundays, rainy days, and other times when the traffic was light, more cars than were necessary to provide a seat for every passenger.

The matter of the service on that line will now be reopened, and it is highly probable that a more elastic order, similar to that issued regarding the service on the Twenty-third Street line, requiring the company to furnish about 15 per cent. more seats than there are passengers, will be issued.

TO TRY MORSE IN JUNE.

Heinze and Curtis Also to Face Jury on Bank Indictments Next Month.

When Charles W. Morse, Alfred H. Curtis, and F. Augustus Heinze appeared yesterday before Judge Hough in the Criminal branch of the United States Circuit Court to plead to the indictment against them, United States District Attorney Stimson stated that he proposed to put the trio on trial at the June term of court.

The accused all pleaded not guilty, but in the case of Morse and Curtis Judge Hough granted leave to counsel to withdraw the pleas when the matter comes up again on May 25 to set a date for trial.

The new indictment against Morse and Curtis, Assistant District Attorney O'Brien explained, contains but fifteen counts alleging conspiracy to defraud the Government and misapplication of the funds of the National Bank of North America, while the old one contained twenty-nine counts.

On trial, Morse and Curtis will be defended by Wallace Macfarlane and former Judge William M. K. Olcott. Edward Lauterbach will represent Heinze, who is accused of the overcertification of his brother Otto's checks for $435,000 drawn on the Mercantile National Bank. Heinze is under bail to the amount of $50,000, and Morse's bond is $30,000. Curtis is out on $10,000 bail.

FIRE DESTROYS SOMERSET INN

Incendiarism Suspected in Loss of Grant B. Schley's Summer Hotel.

Special to The New York Times.

BERNARDSVILLE, N. J., May 6.—A fire, believed to be incendiary, destroyed the well-known Somerset Inn here this morning. The property was owned by Grant B. Schley, the New York banker and broker. The cottages surrounding the hotel were saved, as were the stables. The loss will amount to at least $100,000.

The inn was a four-story structure, and accommodated 400 guests. Its season would not have opened until June 1.

MINISTER WU TAKES TRIP TO CHINATOWN

Diplomat Goes There in Behalf of the Proposed Temple of Confucius.

RESERVES CALLED OUT

Appeal for Subscriptions to the Building of the Temple Meets a Ready Response.

It's rather an uncertain matter when Chinatown gets religion. At least that was the way it was looked at at Police Headquarters when it was learned that Minister Wu Ting-Fang would speak yesterday afternoon in the Chinese Theatre advocating the building of a Temple of Confucius.

Straightway the reserves were ordered out, and on being rudely awakened from sleep hurried to the Chinese Theatre, anticipating a renewal of the old Tong war, only to find a revival meeting. However, they lingered in the field, while those in plain clothes penetrated within and placed themselves at discreet intervals among the 500 Chinamen perched on the backs of the benches or crowded in the window ledges.

"Well, I don't know as we exactly expect trouble, but you never can tell what's going to happen in these blame chink places," said the Lieutenant in command.

Whatever it was it began to happen about 1 o'clock, when Minister Wu arrived in a bright red taxicab. His speech had been announced for 1, but the photographers were on the field even before the police. They dragged him from the cab and posed him in the doorway, a picturesque figure in long flowing gray silk robes, covered with a purple satin sleeveless jacket and his little black cap with the official red button.

Escaping the photographers for the moment he fled within and took the seat of honor on the platform. Behind him was what appeared to be a blackboard with a chalk drawing of an old man with a beard like rays from a halo. The reporter would have committed the grave error of failing to recognize the portrait of Confucius if a Chinese student hadn't explained that this was an embroidery copy of the sacred Confucius screen, 2,400 years old, kept as an imperial treasure in Peking.

To the left of Wu Ting-Fang sat Dr. Chen Fen Chung of Columbia University, Chairman for the afternoon, while on the right were Consul Ho and Vice Consul Dr. Wing. Among the other notables were Thomas E. Ying, Huie Ken, Superintendent of the Chinese Sunday School at Ninth Street, and President Singleton of the Chinese Empire Reformed Association.

Dr. Chen opened the revival meeting at 1:30 with a sermon based on two texts from the Confucian Analects. According to a translation given by Lule Fang, erstwhile interpreter to sightseeing parties in Chinatown, he said:

"To-day it is the best opportunity to hear how necessary is the Confucian Temple for our people. All Melicans here have place to go. They say Chinamen uncivilized because they have no society to edutate. The United States, he is vely strong. He have two olg arms, the army and navy, but when he not educated to use them he is no good."

Then followed an outline of the building plan of the temple of Confucius, with library, reading rooms, hall, and gymnasium.

In spite of the remarkable range of Dr. Chen's voice as it wandered up and down several octaves, there were no "Hallelujahs" even from the mourners' bench. Wu himself rose and left the platform, but returned in time to add to the applause Dr. Chen received at the close of his oration.

Minister Wu in his address indorsed the proposed temple and said it would add much to the strength of his people in this city. Then he made an appeal to all Chinamen to contribute liberally to the good cause.

After the speaking was over, many of the audience flocked to the platform and signed their names to the long sheet of brown paper arranged for the subscription list.

WU AT THE LOTOS CLUB.

The United States and China Warm Friends, He Says—Other Speakers.

Minister Wu Ting-Fang was the guest of the Lotos Club last night, and in the course of his speech declared that there were no clouds on the horizon, so far as the United States and China are concerned, and that while he remains at Washington he will unremittingly labor to keep those relations cordial and pleasant.

In addition to Minister Wu Gen. Frederick D. Grant, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, President Jacob G. Schurman of Cornell, Senator F. H. McCarren, Bishop J. W. Bashford of the Methodist Episcopal Church in China, Martin W. Littleton, Timothy L. Woodruff, John Barrett, Job Hedges, and Dr. Robert S. MacArthur also spoke.

"It is eight years since I was a guest of the Lotos Club," said Minister Wu, "and I feel as if I was almost one of you. I had very little idea I would ever return as Minister to Washington when I was recalled, and eight months ago, when I was notified that I had been ordered back to America, I was very happy, for I wanted to meet all my good American friends once more. If I had not liked your people (I am enamored of them) I would not have come back."

Senator McCarren said he was very glad to learn that there was so much hidden treasures and undeveloped territory in China. He could furnish a crowd, he added, that would find the treasure and do all the developing that was necessary to bring China up to date. He said that he believed that St. Peter was an Irishman, and that if it is absolutely necessary to maintain in this country a good Government such as they have in China he might be persuaded to remain in public life. He had been a signal failure, he said, in his efforts to imitate Confucius.

Bishop Bashford spoke glowingly of the future of China.

Gen. Grant favored the army as a peace measure, and advised China to get an army and navy to back her up in the fight for her principles. Dr. Schurman declared he did not think the army was so much needed as Gen. Grant said it was.

TO INVESTIGATE COURTS.

Governor Also Signs Bill for an Immigration Commission.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 6.—Of bills signed to-day by Gov. Hughes two provide for the appointment of commissions to investigate, one the question of immigration into this State; the other the operation of inferior courts of criminal jurisdiction in first-class cities, and thirteen make various appropriations, aggregating over $6,000,000. These thirteen do not include either the principal annual Appropriation bill or the Supply bill.

INTERBOROUGH IS EXEMPT.

Need Not Pay Taxes on Its Special Franchises.

ALBANY, May 6.—The Interborough Rapid Transit Company of New York was sustained in a decision handed down to-day by the Appellate Division, Third Department, in its claim that it is exempt from taxation for special franchises.

The company appealed from the action of the State Board of Tax Commissioners in assessing the special franchises at $8,200,000 for the year 1905, on the ground that it was exempt from this class of taxation under the provisions of the Rapid Transit act under which the subways in New York City were constructed and are now operated by the Interborough Company.

No More Rhode Island Bucket Shops.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 6.—The bill prohibiting the operation of so-called "bucket shops" passed both branches of the Rhode Island Legislature to-day. The measure becomes operative on Sept. 1 next.

FOUND GOLD CAKE DISH.

Piece from Hotel Knickerbocker Was at Silversmith's.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Regan gave a "gold service" dinner last night in the Hotel Knickerbocker in Times Square in honor of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Adler of Milwaukee. The celebrated gold service was used and American Beauties decorated the table.

The gold cake dish from this service, which was supposed to have been stolen, turned up yesterday morning in a silversmith's, where it had been sent to have some scratches polished over. Other guests of Mr. and Mrs. Regan were Mr. and Mrs. Leon Warschner, Horace Brown, and Mr. Underwood.

MRS. BELMONT'S NEW HOUSE.

Plans Filed for Dwelling at Madison Avenue and Fifty-first Street.

Plans have been filed for the new city house to be built for Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont at the northeast corner of Madison Avenue and Fifty-first Street, opposite one of the old Villard houses, and diagonally opposite Archbishop Farley's Cathedral dwellings.

The new building is to front 80.04 feet on the avenue and extend 30 feet on Fifty-first Street, and it will be four stories with a basement, with façades of brick with ornamental stucco, the design being of the Italian Renaissance type, adorned with a row of Corinthian pilasters extending from the first story to the roof and supporting an ornamental cornice and balustrade. The main entrance will be on the avenue.

There will be a central foyer hall dividing the length of the building and a reception room and a dining room on the first story and a library and drawing room on the second floor. The other floors will be apportioned as living rooms. The building is to cost $95,000. Hunt & Hunt are the architects.

MISS EDITH HOLT ENGAGED.

Daughter of New York Publisher to Wed Baltimore Surgeon.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 6.—An engagement of much interest just announced is that of Miss Edith Holt of New York, daughter of Henry Holt of the well-known New York publishing house, to Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, associate Professor of Surgery at the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. Miss Holt has devoted much time to charitable work.

Dr. Bloodgood is a native of Wisconsin, but has lived in Baltimore several years. He is one of the leading surgeons of the city. He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1888. He is a member of a number of Baltimore clubs, including the Johns Hopkins, University, County and Elkridge Foxhunt Clubs.

Miss Holt has been out for a number of years. She and her sister, Miss Winifred Holt, and their brother Roland Holt, have for some years had a separate establishment from that of their father, Henry Holt. They are the children of Mr. Holt's first wife, who was Miss Mary Florence West. Five years after her death, he married Miss Florence Taber.

Miss Edith Holt and her sisters were, with Miss Julia Dodge, prime movers in getting up the redoute rose or pink ball last Winter for the benefit of the New York Institution for the Blind in Fifty-eighth Street.

Every year they give some unique entertainment at their home. A year ago they gave an aquatic party. The walls of their parlors were hung with lavender and green gauzes, and corals, fish and other decorations were used to give a realistic under-the-water effect. The guests entered the basement door, as through a hatchway, and anchors and ropes were much in evidence. It was, of course, a costume party, and there were mermaids, pirates, and all sorts of sailor folks.

No date has been set for the wedding.

METHODISTS HOLD 100TH CONFERENCE

Baltimore Meeting Opens with Delegates Present from All Over the World.

PASS ANTI-LIQUOR VOTE

Demand Abolition of Canteens in National Soldiers' Homes—787 Delegates Answer Roll Call.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, May 6.—The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church was opened here to-day, and 787 delegates out of about 800 entitled to sit in the centennial conference were present when the first roll call was made.

The first business transacted was the passage of a resolution demanding the abolition of the liquor traffic in the National soldiers' homes. This resolution was offered by Dr. A. B. Leonard, Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions. The resolution having been adopted, the conference voted to send the following message to Speaker Cannon of the House of Representatives:

> The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, representing 3,000,000 members, urges continued exclusion of intoxicating liquors from the soldiers' homes.

In the devotional services with which the conference was opened as well as in the roll call, the far-flung battle line of the Methodist Episcopal Church was apparent. Assisting in the religious exercises were Bishop Thoburn of India, the Rev. A. A. Jhansen of Sweden, the Rev. D. F. Witherspoon, a negro of South Carolina; Bishop Hartsell of Africa, and the Rev. H. H. Lowrey of China.

Behind Bishop Warren, who presided, sat his associates in the episcopacy, who had come from many lands to attend the sessions of the lawmaking body of the church. In front of him were two delegates from North India, and close by sat a group from Germany's borders of the Baltic Sea.

Besides a Chinese Bibleman were Mexican delegates with their sombreros upon their laps. Tall Kentuckians were convention neighbors with Methodists from Sweden, while followers of Wesley from the banks of the Oregon stood with Italians from Rome, descendants of the Norsemen near the arctic circle, and Spanish delegates from the Philippine Islands, and joined with them in singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," which was the opening hymn.

Making up the long list of representatives are educators, judges, legislators, lawyers, manufacturers, merchants, editors, a score of women, and some of the ablest ministers of the Methodist pulpits. Two States are represented by their Executives, for Gov. Hoch of Kansas and Gov. Hanly of Indiana are delegates. Senator Dolliver of Iowa and Representative John E. Andrews of New York also are delegates.

New York City's representatives were fortunate in the drawing for seats, getting a position nearly in the centre of the hall—a vantage point from which to catch the Chairman's eye, as was apparent in the opening minutes of the session. The Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley, whose facility in getting the floor has become a General Conference proverb, sustained his reputation as a debater in the first business presented, the adoption of rules. In a two minutes' speech he not only sent a wave of applause over the house, but succeeded in defeating an effort to reduce the committee quorum from 50 to 35.

The rules, which supplied topics for an hour's discussion, were presented by John A. Patton of Chattanooga. These rules, which for the most part are like those governing the last General Conference, will be sifted by a committee comprising the Rev. Dr. C. W. Smith of Pittsburg, John A. Patton of Chattanooga, the Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley of New York, Senator Dolliver of Iowa, and the Rev. W. F. Evans of the East Pennsylvania Conference.

Formal welcome was given to the delegates to-night by Gov. Crothers, Mayor Mahool, and the Rev. Dr. St. Clair Neal, pastor of the Madison Avenue Church.

It was in the form of a reception, and not only State and city officials but many men and women prominent in Baltimore society were present.

The formal celebration of the centennial of the organization of the General Conference will be held to-morrow. Vice President Fairbanks will preside. The reading of the Bishop's address will be the order for to-morrow morning's session.

A LOW CHURCH VICTORY.

Pennsylvania Diocese Votes for the "Open Pulpit" Canon.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 6.—By a close vote the Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania went on record to-day against reconsideration of the "open pulpit" canon. The announced final vote by which the resolution requesting a suspension of the new provision was defeated was:

Clerical—Nay, 92; yea, 90.
Lay—Nay, 62; yea, 46.
Divided, 4.

Subsequent examination of the official vote showed that ninety-four clergymen had voted by inference for the "open pulpit," slightly increasing the majority. Both parties found gratification in the result.

The subject was introduced yesterday by a resolution presented by the Rev. Dr. J. Andrews Harris, which requested the House of Bishops, individually to suspend action under Canon 19 until the question could again be considered by a general convention. There were no surprises in the vote, except for the strength of the High Church party in country parishes. In the city the laymen generally followed the lead of their rectors.

Bishop Whitaker and Coadjutor Bishop Mackay Smith voted against reconsideration.

BISHOP VAN DE VYVER RETIRES

Catholic Bishop of Richmond Will Return to Home in Belgium.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., May 6.—A. Van de Vyver, for the last fifteen years Bishop of Richmond, has retired, and will shortly leave for his home in Belgium. He said to-night that his only object in retiring was that he might spend his declining years among his own people. Permission to retire was granted by the Pope during his visit to Europe last Summer.

The Bishop succeeded Mgr. John J. Keane, when he was sent to Washington as the head of the Catholic University in 1889. Bishop Van de Vyver was for years a member of the local clergy before he was elected to the Bishopric.

NEW BISHOP OF WASHINGTON.

Charles H. Brent, Philippines Prelate, Elected to the Capital Diocese.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Charles H. Brent, Episcopal Bishop of the Philippines, was to-day elected Bishop of the Diocese of Washington to succeed the late Right Rev. Henry Y. Satterlee.

Bishop Brent is a native of Newcastle, Ontario. He was graduated from the University of Trinity in Toronto in 1884, and ordained to the priesthood three years later. Soon after he was ordained he was appointed assistant minister of the St. Paul Cathedral in Buffalo. He was elected Bishop of the Philippines by the General Convention in 1901, and was consecrated the following year. He was at one time on the editorial staff of The Churchman, and is the author of several religious works.

WANTS WOMEN AT THE HAGUE.

Clergyman Tells Peace Society They Should Have Place in Conference.

One hundred and fifty women and half a hundred men met yesterday afternoon in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor to attend the annual meeting of the Peace Society of the City of New York. Andrew Carnegie, President of the society, presided. On the platform with Mr. Carnegie were the Rev. Charles B. Jefferson, Chancellor MacCracken, Samuel D. Sutton, and Edwin B. Mead of Boston, the latter making the principal address.

The report of the society's propaganda was read by the Rev. Frederick Lynch. He won the applause of the women present when he said he thought women delegates should be sent to the next Hague conference.

Mr. Carnegie said he was inclined to think that the speakers were all likely to forget what had been accomplished in the past in their desire to do too much in the future. Never had so much been accomplished for peace, he said, as in the past year, and such progress had not been made before in a decade.

The society elected these officers for the ensuing year: President, Andrew Carnegie; Vice Presidents, Dr. Lyman Abbott, R. Fulton Cutting, Gov. Charles E. Hughes, William R. Huntington, Chancellor MacCracken, Marcus M. Marks, Joseph E. Mooney, Oscar S. Straus, Robert C. Ogden, George Foster Peabody, William Jay Schieffelin, Oswald G. Villard, and Horace White; Secretary, Samuel T. Dutton; Treasurer, Talmadge B. Johnson, and Auditor, A. S. Fressell.

WINTER GARDEN IN THE PLAZA

Sunday Night Musicales Also Arranged for Next Season.

To prepare for the next Winter's season at the Plaza Manager Sterry will change the entire second floor of his hotel. A Winter garden will be erected in the courtyard, which forms the roof of the present tea room. By this Winter garden a chain of halls for entertaining will be established in the hotel which will make possible accommodations for 2,500 guests.

The present courtyard is divided by the glass dome of the tea room and the floor of the yard is covered with tiles. Mr. Sterry will provide glass domes over the courtyard, and the interior of the proposed structure will be arranged like a Winter garden. The garden will have a seating capacity of 500.

For the next Winter season there will be four Sunday night musicales, for which Richard Barthelemy and the Marquis de Mazzocorati have been engaged. These musicales will consist of pantomimes and solos by grand opera artists. Richard Barthelemy, who helped to arrange the pantomime "Le Revellion de Pierrette," in which Mrs. Waldorf Astor appeared last February, will write much of the music.

AGAINST 10-CENT CONEY FARE.

Witnesses Swear to B. R. T.'s Own Allegations of Low Valuations.

An important point was scored against the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company yesterday in the hearing on the allegation that the 10-cent fare to Coney Island is excessive before the Public Service Commission. The complainant has asserted repeatedly that the capitalization of the lines is largely water, the company contending the reverse. Yesterday there was put in evidence the claims of the company in certiorari proceedings in the Supreme Court, by which the B. R. T. is endeavoring to get its franchise taxes reduced.

John L. Wells and George D. Yeomans were called to the stand. According to the testimony of John L. Wells the Nassau Electric Company was assessed for $10,950,000, and the company claimed this should be reduced to $1,400,000 as the admitted valuation. The Brooklyn Union Elevated Company was assessed for $18,360,000, which the company claimed should be reduced to $5,459,542. The Brooklyn Heights Company was assessed for $115,000, which, the company asserted, was $08,462 too much. The Brooklyn, Queens County & Suburban was assessed for $3,370,000, which was claimed to be $2,517,353 too much.

This would seem to indicate that the B. R. T., assessed for $32,795,000 for road and franchise valuations, wanted the amount cut down by $25,104,571, claiming that $7,690,429 represented the true value.

ON THE WAY TO EUROPE.

Mrs. Custer, Alfred Mosely, and William Faversham on the Oceanic.

Among the many well-known persons who sailed yesterday on the White Star liner Oceanic were Mrs. Elizabeth B. Custer, widow of Gen. George A. Custer; Alfred Mosely, the English educator; Mr. and Mrs. W. Bayard Cutting, William Faversham, Miss Mary S. Kernochan, and Mrs. Ledyard Stevens. Before sailing Mrs. Custer said:

"I have been giving a great deal of time to the proposed equestrian statue of Gen. Custer, which is to be erected at Monroe, Mich., our adopted home. Two years ago the Michigan Legislature voted $25,000 for a memorial and chose Edwin C. Potter, the sculptor, to do the work. I have turned over to him the General's uniforms and accoutrements and all the photographs I have, and have described to him my husband's characteristic poses and carriage."

ALICE LLOYD'S PLAY.

"The Bonnie Belles of Scotland" by John McNally and George M. Cohan.

Klaw & Erlanger and Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., who have arranged to star Alice Lloyd in a new musical comedy next year, have engaged John J. McNally to write the book, and Mr. McNally has already named the piece "The Bonnie Belles of Scotland." The lyrics and music of the piece will be furnished by George M. Cohan, who has never before taken part in a theatrical collaboration.

The scenes of the play are laid in Scotland, and English, French, German, and American tourists are introduced.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Word has been received from Clyde Fitch that he has arranged for a production of "The Woman in the Case" about the end of this month in Italy.

Bessie Wynn, the former comic opera singer, who has been recently in vaudeville, has received an offer to star in a musical comedy especially written for her, next season.

Augustus Thomas, Charles Rann Kennedy, and others will speak at a symposium on "The Better Outlook for Drama," to be held by the League for Political Education at the Hudson Theatre to-morrow morning. Mrs. Le Moyne and William H. Crane will also address the meeting.

Harry N. Morse, a well-known minstrel, has been engaged by Cohan & Harris as interlocutor for the George Evans Honeyboy Minstrels. Mr. Morse has been interlocutor for such minstrel companies as Primrose & West, George Thatcher, Haverley's Mastodons, Cleveland's, and Lew Dockstader's.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

Edith Helena, a coloratura soprano, has been engaged by Manager Abramson to sing in "La Traviata" next week at the American Theatre.

Miss Charlotte Grosvenor, a young Boston girl, made her New York debut last evening with the Helen Noldi Opera Company at the West End Theatre in "La Traviata."

"La Traviata" was sung yesterday afternoon at the American Theatre by the Italian Grand Opera Company. "Il Trovlatore" was sung in the evening. "Rigoletto" is the bill for to-night.

Mme. Schumann-Heink signed a new contract with Henry Wolfsohn yesterday, and went to Cincinnati, where she is to sing at the May Festival. From Cincinnati she will continue her tour as far west as Oklahoma. She will spend the Summer at her home in Singac, N. J., and on Oct. 9 will sail for Europe, where she is to give concerts next season.

Mrs. Wetherbee Entertains.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Wetherbee gave a dinner last night for their son-in-law and daughter, the Count and Countess Festetics de Talna. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Abernathy Cowles, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Emerson Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. C. Smith, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Root, Austin Morrison, Jr., Edwin L. Schneider, William Samuel Hawk, and Miss Madelaine Worden. The table decorations were white roses and ferns. A mandolin orchestra played, and after the dinner Austin Morrison sang.

MRS. CAMPBELL BACK WITH A GRIEVANCE

One Night Stands Have Given Her a Sore Throat and She Blames Her Managers.

MAY GO WITH BELASCO NEXT

Negotiations On—Liebler Man Intimates That the Grievance Isn't All on Her Side.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell returned to town yesterday after her Western tour, and will sail this morning aboard the Celtic for England. She is accompanied by her son, Allan Patrick Campbell. Next season, she said last night, she will come here as a Belasco star. Final arrangements for this have not been completed, but negotiations were put under way during her tour.

Mrs. Campbell's throat is in bad condition, and in addition she was thoroughly angry with her managers, Liebler & Co., and didn't attempt to hide it. Dr. Holbrook Curtis attended her at her hotel.

Mrs. Campbell says that her throat trouble was caused by the hardships she suffered on her tour. The tour composed mostly one-night stands, which she played uninterruptedly.

"I have had a positively fearful time," said Mrs. Campbell. "At present I am unable to swallow solid food. I live on nothing but turtle soup and ices. It is the result of our dreadful tour.

"You see, George Tyler, with whom I signed my contract, is now motoring abroad, and in my opinion his subordinates took advantage of his absence. Their incivility was appalling, and that explains my illness.

"Why, I had practically fifteen weeks of one-night towns. This was quite a hardship in itself, but in addition we traveled in a dreadfully unsanitary private car. It was lighted by oil lamps. Think of that—in this twentieth century. I could not describe these oil lamps, and the fumes we were compelled to breathe. Don't call them odorous or dim oil lamps. They were smelly oil lamps. The awful air made me ill, and my throat suffered especially.

"All these inconveniences could have been obviated, and I dare say had Mr. Tyler been in America such negligence would not have marked the tour."

A representative of Liebler & Co. on hearing of Mrs. Campbell's remarks, expressed himself with some warmth.

"As to the private car," he said, "we sent her on tour with one for which we paid the Pullman people $350 a week. At the end of two weeks she said she did not want a private car, and we took it away and instead always arranged for her to occupy the stateroom in a Pullman whenever she traveled.

"She did all sorts of unbusinesslike things on the tour and kept the office flooded with telegrams. Why, she had four different personal representatives during the season. They all left her. After she had been on tour only about a week, in Terre Haute, we offered to cancel her bookings and return her and her company to England and pay anything in reason into the bargain.

"With regard to the one-night stands, I can only say that they are the only places where she would draw any money. They didn't seem to want her any more in the cities."

David Belasco confirmed Mrs. Campbell's statement that she had been in negotiation with him for next season.

"Anything Mrs. Campbell says in that respect is correct," he declared. "I consider her a great artist. It would be a great pleasure for me to have her in the near future playing at one of my theatres."

Mrs. Campbell herself, when she returns to New York next season, intends to play dramas of a highly classic order. She says she will probably produce Racine's "Phedre" in addition to a play by Mr. Belasco, prepared originally for Mrs. Leslie Carter.

AMELIA BINGHAM HAS RELAPSE

Now at Dr. Wylie's Sanitarium and Operation May Be Performed To-day.

It developed yesterday that Amelia Bingham has not made such a recovery from her recent illness as has been generally supposed. Instead, since last Saturday her condition has grown steadily more serious, and she was taken on Tuesday night to Dr. Wylie's private hospital in West Forty-third Street. Dr. Wylie may, if found necessary, perform an operation this morning.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 6.—This was Bach Day—and Bach Night also—at the Cincinnati May Musical Festival. Bach's "St. Matthew's Passion" was given in its entirety for the first time in this country.

The performance began at 5 o'clock this afternoon and continued until 7, when there was a two-hour intermission for dinner. The close of the presentation was reached only after 11 o'clock to-night. There were two mixed choruses, two separate orchestras, a boys' chorus of 200 voices—in all 700 choristers engaged in the presentation.

Conductor Frank Van der Stucken's work in handling the choruses is being praised to-night by professional critics who are here from various cities. In all, ten soloists took part. Mrs. Corinne Rider-Kelsey, Daniel Beddoe, Edward Johnson, Dalton Baker, Herbert Witherspoon, and Miss Jeanette Spencer were among them.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Active and Higher—Call Money Rates, 1½@2 Per Cent.

UNION PACIFIC THE FEATURE

April Iron Production Smaller—Foreign Exchange Up Again—Government Deposits.

A further and substantial rise in prices yesterday, in continuation of the movement under way at the close of business on Tuesday, had practically no basis in the day's news concerning financial markets; it was attributable almost entirely to technical conditions and to the operations of professional speculators. Nevertheless, the trading was active and the advances vigorous and general, including for the first time a number of shares such as International Mercantile Marine, American Locomotive, and American Smelting, which have long been neglected. Leadership was confined once more to Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, and St. Paul, the rise in Union Pacific directing attention to the fact that the Board of Directors of that property meet to-day presumably for dividend purposes, as well as to plan the details of the issue of a portion of the bonds just authorized by stockholders. Mr. Schiff's hopeful but withal conservative remarks on conditions in Europe, from where he has just returned, and in this country afforded grounds for encouragement in the financial community generally and were not without influence, perhaps, upon Stock Exchange sentiment. The question of tariff revision, one of the points touched upon in the course of these remarks, has been relegated to a minor position, owing to the treatment of the subject by the party in power, but changing conditions promise to bring it into prominence later. Some attention was devoted to the figures of pig iron production for the month of April, these showing a decline to 1,149,000 tons from the March product of 1,228,000 tons. A difference of one day is to be taken into account, but even with this allowance the daily output fell nearly 1,500 tons, largely as a result of the smaller products of steel works' furnaces. Capacity on May 1 was 2,000 tons under that of April 1. From Chicago came unofficial word of a further increase in the number of idle cars on the country's railroads, one estimate having it that on May 1 the total had run up to 400,000, a figure quite without precedent. Among the railroad earnings statements submitted was that of the Lehigh Valley, disclosing a loss of $660,000 in gross earnings for March, and of $374,000 in net.

The feature of money markets was the sharp up-turn in foreign exchange rate. Demand sterling advanced 15 points for the day, to above 4.87, thus coming to the point where gold exports were recently made. It is understood that a portion of the revenue warrants just sold by the city went abroad, but the credits created, even with those built up by the Pennsylvania bond sale, are having slow effect upon the foreign exchange market. Rates for money were practically unchanged, and the impending return of a large volume of United States deposits is having no preliminary effect upon quotations. On or before Saturday of this week the banks must return $20,000,000 of the $45,000,000 called in, and little less than $15,000,000 of this will come from local institutions.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Commission Business Limited.

Brokers do not admit any material increase in commission business and it would seem as if whatever interest had developed among the public is being slowly eliminated. It is said that for a time there was some indication of a return to the market of many good traders who were disposed to assume that the betterment was based on fundamental conditions. Apparently, however, it is taken for granted now that technical conditions are the most effective factors in the advance, and inasmuch as these are more or less uncertain, it is perfectly natural that they should not inspire the same confidence.. A canvas of the brokerage houses reveals that the present standby is the semi-professional trader, who makes his headquarters in the financial district and trades in and out with almost as much agility as his full-fledged professional brother. Brokers have been very conservative in their advice at almost every stage of the advance, and this in itself has tended naturally to restrict operations by traders who go a great deal on the advice given by their brokers. The news developments have been so conflicting that it required something like expert analysis to determine the dominating influence.

Holding Bonds for Higher Prices.

In the past week, a bond man connected with a Stock Exchange house has been trying to find a round block, some $250,000 worth, of a certain industrial bond, which has not very much of a reputation. It would seem to be a comparatively easy matter to find these bonds, or a substantial part of them at least, inasmuch as the issue is large and the demand practically nothing at all. He was provided with a list of holders of the bonds and believed at first that he would have no difficulty, particularly in view of the fact that he was able to bid two or three points above the next best bid that any broker knew of in the district. But day after day developed nothing conclusive, and he is now of the opinion that he will not be able to fill his order, a fact which is rather puzzling to his client. The reason, however, appears to be obvious enough. Present holders of the bonds bought them very much higher and do not like to sell them at a material concession. They find it hard to write off ten or fifteen points, and consequently fail to trade.

Luck of a Specialist.

Specialists in inactive stocks do not find enough to keep them busy at times, which means a limitation to their earning capacity, both as to profits and commissions. No one assumes, of course, that the specialist limits himself to the actual commissions which accrue to him by reason of his filling orders from his books. He trades for himself and sometimes very much to his advantage. Within a very short time, a few days in fact, the specialist in one stock was very much surprised. Absolute stagnation had prevailed for a long time, but one evening at the theatre he met a friend who told him in the most casual way that he believed that some activity was impending in the particular stock of which this broker made a specialty. Remembering the conversation on the following day he bought for his own account about a thousand shares. On the following day the prediction of his theatre friend was verified. Considerable activity developed, and with it a substantial advance in the price of the stock. Yesterday he cleared up his own speculative account and figured his commissions. Both showed him a profit in excess of $5,000. He expects to take a vacation shortly.

Union Pacific Bond Details.

Attention will be centred on Union Pacific stock for some time to come, and yesterday it was watched closely, although some of the industrials vied with it in their bid for speculative attention. The Directors' meeting to-day will decide, in all probability, the terms of the bond offering, but the Street expects $25,000,000 to be underwritten here and $25,000,000 to be offered abroad. If there are any shorts in Union Pacific it is more than probable that they feel uncomfortable, inasmuch as Directors' meetings of the Union Pacific have often been the signal for spectacular price movements. There are many who voice their bearish attitude on the stock, but are afraid of the consequences that might result from the taking of an actual position along those lines. Some figure the advance in Union Pacific to have begun at 128, the present price showing more than a 10-point advance, while others insist that the present movement began nearer to 120, with a temporary halt at 128. All sorts of prices are predicted for the stock by the bulls. On the other hand, the bears are hoping for a substantial setback. It is the most interesting speculative stock on the board.

Patience a Necessary Asset.

One of the smaller houses in the Street does a considerable odd-lot business, although it is not recognized in any sense as an odd-lot house. One of the members said yesterday that they had been doing a good deal in the way of selling odd lots for their clients, stock in many instances which they themselves had bought for their customers. Commenting on the development of an odd-lot business and more particularly on the development of their own business, this broker said: "When my partner and I started we didn't know very much about it. We were more than conservative, and we had few customers. It was also a dull time in the market. Our expenses were comparatively heavy, and we did nothing to develop business, regarding that as undignified. Fortunately, we had a little money of our own besides that invested in the business, and it was fortunate, inasmuch as at the end of the first six months we figured out that we had made exactly $5 over all our expenses. That was discouraging at least, but in the next six months we cleared up about $20,000. That was encouraging!"

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 6.—United Gas Improvement assumed the leadership of the local stocks to-day, advancing 2 points to its highest figure in recent months. The general list, however, did not follow it closely. Union and Philadelphia Traction were stronger, but Rapid Transit and Philadelphia Electric were unchanged. Cambria Steel and Lehigh Valley were just about steady. Total sales, 25,266 shares.

GOULDS MAY LOSE WESTERN MARYLAND

Minority Holders Said to be Seeking to Have the Line Operated Independently.

PLAN TO DROP RECEIVERSHIP

Position of the Road Much Better Now, as Notes Have All Been Cleared Up.

Reports circulated in Wall Street yesterday that control of the Western Maryland had passed from the Goulds, aroused new interest in the position of that road, which was built up as the Eastern end of the Gould ocean-to-ocean line. The report that a change of ownership had occurred was denied by representatives of the Goulds and others interested, but it was said that the present position of the road is such that, through the activity of the minority interest in the property or otherwise, control may be segregated from the Gould system and the property operated as an independent system.

From a representative of large holdings of both the stock and bonds of the road, who is not identified with the Gould management, it was learned that a movement in this direction might be started among the security holders. Much dissatisfaction was expressed yesterday by some of those largely interested in the property over the receivership. They pointed out that the road was more than earning its interest on both its first and its general mortgage bonds and that its earnings had been steadily increasing. It had $3,700,000 of 6 per cent. notes falling due, but these have been converted into long-term obligations of first mortgage bonds, upon which there has been no default.

At the same time the fixed charges on this capital have been reduced, as the bonds bear 4 per cent. interest. Minority stockholders and some of the bondholders have learned enough about the situation to lead them to believe that there is a fair chance that other interests than the Goulds may have the upper hand in the forthcoming readjustment of the road's affairs.

Another matter in connection with Gould interests was the statement made yesterday in Wall Street that the Missouri Pacific had recently offered some of its forty-year 4 per cent. bonds at 70, the present market price, in settlement of some of its floating debt. E. T. Jeffery said that he did not think that the road had issued any more of those bonds.

The report from Pittsburg that B. A. Worthington, Vice President of the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal, was to be placed in charge of the Western Pacific was denied at the Gould offices.

Paper Company Fails.

MILWAUKEE, May 6.—Three of the creditors of the Koch & Loeber Company, paper dealers, with claims aggregating about $4,500, have filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy against that company in the Federal Court. THE FOREIGN MARKET.

Market Irregular in London, Firm in Paris, Heavy in Berlin.

LONDON, May 6.—The supplies of money exceeded the demand on the market to-day, and discounts were quiet.

On the Stock Exchange the Consols settlement was concluded cheerfully, and this premier security made further improvement. The recent low level attracted some investment buying. Home rails were dull and foreigners were easy, while Paris selling weakened Rio Tintos and De Beers.

American shares opened well and went over parity, but the market narrowed down early in the afternoon and values eased from the best. New York, however, sent a stronger opening, and the market recovered and closed firm. Amalgamated and Anaconda received good attention from the late trade.

Bar silver was quiet at 24d. per ounce. Money, 1½@2 per cent.

PARIS, May 6.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were firm on advices from New York.

BERLIN, May 6.—The tone of the Boerse to-day was heavy.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Advances Despite Heavy Realizing—Closes 9 to 12 Points Up.

Cotton had a very sharp advance yesterday morning, reaching new high prices for the bull movement, starting with the first May notice day at the close of last month. There was heavy realizing at the advance, which had been encouraged by strength in Liverpool, big English spot sales, reports of heavy rains in eastern and central sections of the belt, and unfavorable crop reports. The close was steady at a net advance of 9@12 points. Sales were estimated at 375,000 bales.

The market opened firm at an advance of 18@21 points. Later in the day private cables from Manchester reported an unfavorable trade outlook, and some bearish advices were also received from Augsburg, Bavaria. Large spot people were buyers of July at times in New York.

The range of contract prices was as follows:

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee made a steady showing yesterday, for, while business was not active, offerings were well absorbed. Sales were reported of about 29,250 bags.

The market opened steady at an advance of 5 points in response to steady European markets. Large trade interests, particularly one of the big package coffee houses, appeared to be buying. December was the most active month. A cable from Santos said: "Almost all planters suspended harvesting owing to unripe berries." The two Brazilian ports had 12,000 bags, against 16,000 two years ago, and Jundiahy receipts were 2,000 bags, against 6,000 two years ago. Neither of the Brazilian markets reported any change in prices. Spot coffee was firm; 8¼c for Rio No. 7.

The Company is paying 6 per cent dividends on its outstanding $9,885,000 capital stock, and there is a large equity in the property of the Company over and above all outstanding bonds.

EARNINGS AND EXPENSES

As officially reported for the year ended March 31, 1908:

Gross earnings.....	$2,905,972.68
Operating Expenses and Taxes.....	1,410,847.60
Net Earnings.....	$1,495,125.08

*Actual bond interest charge during the current year will be less than $731,000 owing to part of the Refunding and Extension Mortgage bonds having been outstanding for less than a year.

The gross earnings of the Company have doubled during the last four years, as will be seen from the following gross earnings reported for the years 1903 to 1907:

1903	1904	1905	1906	1907
$1,422,896	$1,571,041	$1,573,348	$2,242,483	$2,855,417

The Company has one of the most complete, modern and efficient electric plants in the United States. Its principal generating station, located on the Mississippi River and costing approximately $5,000,000, was completed less than two years ago, and its machinery and equipment are all practically new and of the most approved design.

The franchises of the Company are, in the opinion of counsel, unlimited in time, except in the "underground district" (about 1¼ square miles) where the franchises run until 1940.

In view of our long familiarity with the property of the Union Electric Light & Power Company, we recommend the above bonds for investment.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

CLAUDE F. DAY.—Claude F. Day, living at 611 West 113th Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $20,875 and no assets. The largest creditor is Charles H. Turner of Malone, N. Y., $19,532, for money advanced in 1905-1906 to carry on business.

GUSTAV SCHMIDT.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Gustav Schmidt, butcher, 352 West Fifty-second Street, by these creditors: Joseph Stern & Sons, $291; J. & P. Scaturro, $240; Bandini & Co., $200, and Dressed Beef Company, $200. It was alleged that he is insolvent and made preferential payments.

HORNSTEIN & SHIFTER.—Samuel Hornstein and David Shifter, composing the firm of Hornstein & Shifter, cornice works, 1,896 First Avenue, have filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $2,383 and nominal assets of $6,002, in outstanding accounts, of which $3,339 is from the Hauben Realty Company.

BARTH BROTHERS.—Judge Hough has appointed John Gruenberg, receiver in bankruptcy for Barth Brothers, dealers in jewelry on the ground floor at 112th Street and Lexington Avenue. Their liabilities are $6,000 and the assets $1,500. They have outstanding accounts of a face value of $2,000, which are expected to realize $400.

PLASMON COMPANY OF AMERICA.—A meeting of creditors of the Plasmon Company of America, food products, 59 Pearl Street, of which Mark Twain (Samuel L. Clemens) was formerly acting President, was held yesterday at the office of Nathaniel S. Smith, referee in bankruptcy, 68 William Street. Several claims were proved, and Norman D. Marsh was elected trustee.

BARNET ROSENFELD.—Judge Hough has denied a discharge in bankruptcy to Barnet Rosenfeld, dealer in goods on the installment plan, 450 Grand Street, who filed a petition in bankruptcy on May 9, 1907. His explanation was: "I had no more deposit and didn't need it," and declared that the leases destroyed were worthless.

ABRAHAM JACOBS.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Abraham Jacobs, cloak manufacturer, 4 and 6 Washington Place, by these creditors: Harry Wolfson, $300; Leib Tachna, $125, and Chelsea Printing Company, $

LEGAL SALES IN THE BRONX.

Northerly Borough Wants to Handle Its Own Foreclosures.

In speaking of the bill now in Gov. Hughes's hands, providing that legal sales of Bronx property shall be held in the Bronx Salesroom, George Price, Chairman of the Legal Sales Committee of the Association of Bronx Real Estate Brokers, said yesterday:

"This bill, which has again passed both branches of the Legislature by an almost unanimous vote, would only give the Bronx what other boroughs already have, although two of them are of much less importance, both in point of population and value of property. The Manhattan auctioneers are opposed to this bill because it will divide the business which they now monopolize, rather than because it would divide the market and cause inconvenience. Why not abolish legal sales in the Boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens? Vesey Street is now as easily reached from those parts of the city as from the Bronx.

"Opponents of the bill claim that the present order of things should not be changed because the court was so careful about the selection of the present salesroom, and because people could not attend sales in both boroughs at the same time; also, that it would be a hardship for attorneys having sales in both places, as well as for the many business men who, they claim, attend these sales.

"To all of this we enter a general denial. As to sales on the same date in both boroughs conflicting, we claim they would no more affect each other than do sales in Queens and Brooklyn, as the properties appeal to different classes of buyers. The people who now frequent the Vesey Street room do not buy Bronx properties except at largely advertised lot sales, or there would be fewer properties bid in by plaintiffs. Business men do not attend legal sales, as they are not sufficiently advertised. As to opposition to the present bill by attorneys, we know nothing of it, except what we read, since many Manhattan and Bronx attorneys are outspoken in their support of the measure, because they believe it just. The loaning institutions would be benefited by this bill, unless they actually want to get the property to be sold, as there would be more real buyers attending sales of Bronx property if they were held in the Bronx.

"Give us this bill and there will be fewer deficiency judgments recorded during the coming year."

'CHEAP JOHN' INQUIRY, JEROME DECLARES

He So Characterizes the King Charges While Under Cross-Examination.

IGNORANT OF JURY FIXING

He Viewed the Whole Case as a Means to Bring the "Whole Hearst Outfit" Into Notoriety.

District Attorney Jerome took his turn under cross-examination yesterday when he had finished submitting to Commissioner Richard L. Hand his defense on the charges preferred by the King Committee of Metropolitan Street Railway stockholders.

When the cross-examination came, Franklin Pierce, counsel for the King Committee, began to pick over Mr. Jerome's course in the Metropolitan jury-fixing investigation conducted by Justice Seabury, then of the City Court, in February and March, 1906. One factor in the defense against this charge had been the assertion of the District Attorney that he had no personal knowledge whatever of the information given to his subordinates by Louis E. Julian, Stanley S. Bagg, and William H. Tillinghast on the subject in the Fall of 1905. Mr. Pierce took up a letter written to Julian by William A. Henneberry, Mr. Jerome's chief clerk, who was one of his campaign managers in the 1905 election, written to Julian during this period, in which the statement was made that the matter was receiving very serious consideration by the District Attorney's office.

Mr. Pierce called attention to the fact that not only Mr. Henneberry but Assistant District Attorneys Smythe, Hart, and Nott had come into contact with the jury-fixing charges prior to the beginning of 1906, and asked Mr. Jerome if he were sure that he had no personal knowledge of the subject at that time whatever. Mr. Jerome insisted that he hadn't. The date fixed by Mr. Jerome as marking the first of his knowledge on the subject had been Jan. 22, 1906, when Attorney A. Edward Woodruff wrote to him about it. Soon after that the Seabury investigation started. Mr. Jerome said:

"I viewed the whole proceeding as a move to secure notoriety for the political purposes of the Hearst outfit."

Jerome Aided the Defense.

Mr. Pierce brought out the fact that Mr. Jerome, while investigating the jury-fixing charges on his own account prior to appearing in Justice Seabury's court on March 26, took the pains to get an affidavit from a man named Netter denying certain statements of Julian, who was the complaining witness before Justice Seabury.

"Did you ever know of another prosecuting officer who got affidavits to discredit the People's witness, seventeen days before a case was set for a hearing?" asked Mr. Pierce. Mr. Jerome said he got the Netter affidavit in the interest of bringing out the truth, and that he instituted the prosecution of Julian for grand larceny primarily for the purpose of convicting him of that crime and secondarily to show Julian's true character to Justice Seabury.

"When you had George R. Bagg working in your office at this time, why didn't you ask him whether Julian's deposition was true or not?"

"I did," said Mr. Jerome, "and as I recall, he said that it was a damn lie."

"Why didn't you take George R. Bagg down to the examination before Justice Seabury?" persisted Mr. Pierce.

"I didn't think it necessary," the District Attorney came back. "That examination blew up."

"You was the gentleman that blew up; you was the gentleman that walked out," commented the prosecuting counsel.

"Yes," replied Mr. Jerome with equal regard for English, "I were the gentleman who walked out."

Lawyers and Bribery.

Mr. Pierce wanted to know if Mr. Jerome didn't think it would have been corroborating evidence against Ambrose F. McCabe, on trial before Justice Seabury on the Julian complaint, to know that McCabe had been attorney in nine of the fifteen cases where Tillinghast confessed to having sat as a witness. Mr. Jerome did not, and he added that he believed that lawyers some time try cases where their assistants had paid witnesses or jurors and did not know what had been done because they purposely refrained from knowing. Shortly afterward Mr. Jerome said that he didn't consider that there was any bribery in giving hats to court officers.

"I know a dozen men within the sound of my voice whose firms give away Christmas presents to court officers, some of whom facilitate business in large matters," he said.

Mr. Pierce pointed out that it had been charged that Tillinghast's paid jury service was arranged by court officers.

"Do you think it was impertinent that Justice Seabury should make an investigation under these conditions?" he asked.

"I don't think it impertinent; I think it was a cheap political play," returned Mr. Jerome.

"Don't you think it was an honorable thing for a Justice of a court where officers were being tampered with to find out the facts?"

"Yes," said Mr. Jerome.

"Then why attribute improper motives?" Mr. Pierce demanded.

Mr. Jerome said he had several reasons, among others that Justice Seabury looked over toward the newspaper men when he taxed Attorney Quackenbush with the loss of the vouchers in accident cases.

"A Cheap John Performance."

Before the cross-examination closed Mr. Jerome took occasion again to characterize the Seabury proceeding as a "cheap John" performance like this present one.

"Are you through with your vituperation?" asked Mr. Pierce.

"No," said Mr. Jerome, "it would take me all day to tell what I think of you."

There were two interesting statements contained in Mr. Jerome's direct testimony in answer to the charges. One referred to the accusation of the King Committee that $200,000 paid to the firm of A. A. Ryan & Brother in connection with the purchase of Metropolitan Street Railway stock for the account of the Metropolitan Street Railway was stolen, as representing the acquisition of stock at more than its proper price to the profit of some of the traction insiders.

"That is one of the most indecent things ever done in this city," said Mr. Jerome. "Young Ryan is a reputable boy in the brokerage business, and when such evidence is brought out and left in this fashion it is a pretty good example of what we are coming to in this town."

The other noticeable feature of the statement in defense was a reference to the practice of the Metropolitan of purchasing the favor of politicians and officials in a position to do favors for the road.

"It was a matter of policy for the Metropolitan," said Mr. Jerome, "to get on the right side of politicians. In the city here all motions as to street openings have to be countersigned by the Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity and by the Borough President. Before the days of these contributions work was often delayed at great annoyance and expense until the proper person had been 'seen.'"

ICE INQUIRY GOES ON.

Appellate Division Refuses to Interfere and Grand Jury Hears Evidence.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court refused yesterday to issue the writ restraining Attorney General Jackson and the individual members of the Grand Jury from reinvestigating the American Ice Company, which Wesley M. Oler, President of the company, had applied for on Tuesday, and Special Deputy Attorney General James W. Osborne proceeded to place evidence before the Grand Jury.

The investigation began, as the first one did, by the appearance of some fifteen or twenty clerks carrying the company's books and papers. A great deal of documentary evidence was submitted, and several witnesses were called. They were John R. Bennett, Secretary of the American Ice Company; Henry C. Harrison, auditor, and Robert Scott, a former Secretary.

The investigation will be resumed this morning.

CLERKS HELD AS SWINDLERS.

They Are Accused of Defrauding Railways on False Claims.

After receiving word yesterday from Washington, D. C., of the arrest there of Rupert E. Wilson, until recently a clerk in the offices of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company, Detectives McConville, Nelson, and Brown of the Central Office, and Post Office Inspector Kincaid went to the home of Roscoe Clare Stebbins, at 156 West Seventy-eighth Street, and arrested him as the confederate of Wilson in a scheme by which several railroad companies have been swindled out of thousands of dollars. The Federal Grand Jury found an indictment against Stebbins yesterday, charging him with two violations of the postal laws.

According to the detectives and Inspector Kincaid, Stebbins and Wilson have been systematically swindling railroads since last July by pressing claims for baggage damaged or lost in transit, in which they had no interest. In operating the swindle, the detectives say that Stebbins posed as Ferdinand K. Hauteville, a lawyer.

The claim departments of several railroads, say the detectives, readily settled Stebbins's or Hauteville's suits, and the swindle was only discovered when the true owners of damaged baggage filed claims, which appeared on the books of the railroads as already paid.

Among the railroads which the detectives say were thus victimed were the Atlantic Coast Line, the Southern, and the Rock Island. It is believed that others may have been swindled also.

MORTON IN THE ATCHISON.

Elected a Director, but It Is Denied That He Will Become President.

Paul Morton, former Vice President of the Atchison and now President of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, was elected yesterday a Director of that road and a member of its Executive Committee, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of George G. Haven.

It was denied on authority that the reentrance of Mr. Morton into the Atchison had any significance or that it foreshadowed, as was recently reported, that President Ripley was soon to step out and that his place would be taken by Mr. Morton.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL PRIOR LIEN.

The 1886 Mortgage Must Be Considered in Proposed Refunding Plan.

The mortgage lien which it is proposed to put on the Illinois Central, and which the stockholders have been asked to authorize at the special meeting to be held May 18, has reference to the terms of a bond issue put out in 1886.

The 3½ per cent. sterling bonds of 1950 contain a clause that, should at any future time the Illinois Central decide to issue a general refunding bond, these sterling bonds should be counted a mortgage lien prior to that of any such refunding issue. This mortgaging of the line is a step taken in keeping with this provision of the old bond issue and to prepare the way for a general refunding issue should it be decided later to authorize such an issue.

UNION PACIFIC BOND SALE.

Issue May Be Delayed If Price Is Not Agreed On—Meeting To-day.

The Directors of the Union Pacific Railroad will hold a full board meeting to-day, and special effort has been made to insure a quorum. P. A. Valentine, who has been at Hot Springs, Va., has been asked to return to the city. The belief was held in Wall Street that the Directors will take some action in reference to the sale of $50,000,000 of the $100,000,000 of bonds which the stockholders authorized at their meeting on Tuesday.

It was said yesterday that no decision regarding the details of a sale of the bonds had been reached, owing to the question of price. If an agreement between the road and its bankers on this point is reached shortly the issue will not be delayed.

BETTER RAILROAD EARNINGS.

Lake Shore and Nickel Plate Roads Show Gross and Net Increases.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 6.—The gross earnings of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway Company for the year 1907 were $44,953,475, as reported at the annual meeting of the stockholders here to-day. This is an increase of $2,409,096 over 1906. The net earnings were $10,415,013, an increase of $546,436.

The report for the Nickel Plate showed a gross earning of $10,465,671, an increase of $563,462. The net earnings were $2,703,772, an increase of $381,260.

The Directors of each road were re-elected.

Southern Match Company Fails.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Southern Match Company, manufacturer of matches, with offices at 256 Broadway and a factory at Ronda, N. C., by Myers & Goldsmith, attorneys, for these creditors: David C. Myers, $5,000, money loaned; George W. Munro, $500, money loaned, and Progressive Supply Comnay, $1,060, for merchandise. It was alleged that the company is insolvent and made preferential payments of $1,000. Judge Hough of the United States District Court appointed Josiah Cantor receiver, with a bond of $12,000. Mr. Myers said that the liabilities are $50,000, the nominal assets $40,000, and the good assets $20,000 in real estate, machinery, merchandise, and patents.

The company is a New York corporation, incorporated in March, 1904, with a capital stock of $100,000. George W. Munro is President and David C. Myers is Treasurer, who, with Mrs. Munro, are the only stockholders. They are also the principal creditors, having advanced $45,000 to the company.

Extra Dividend by Tobacco Trust.

The Directors of the American Tobacco Company, at their meeting yesterday, declared the regular quarter dividend of 2½ per cent. and an extra dividend of 5 per cent. on the common stock. The dividend is payable on June 1; books close on May 15.

New Operating Plan for Sharon Ry.

Negotiations were said yesterday to be under way between the Erie Railroad and the Pittsburg & Lake Erie for the operation by the latter of the Sharon Railway, a small line in Pennsylvania which was leased to the Erie years ago for a period of 999 years. The road is 33 miles long.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Bernard N. Baruch will sail for Europe within the next two weeks.

The Stock Exchange house of Benkard & Stebbins, at 80 Broadway, has been dissolved, and J. Philip Benkard and Wilson A. Burrows have formed a Stock Exchange partnership under the name of J. P. Benkard & Co., with offices at the same address.

Messrs. Potter, Choate & Prentice have issued the second of a series of pamphlets describing the important railroad systems of the United States. The pamphlets so far prepared describe the Reading, Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific systems, giving a history of the roads, with maps and a comparison of earnings for the last decade.

WHITNEY HELD STOCK FOR BIG POLITICIANS

The Latter Always Got the Profits, While Whitney Stood the Losses, Vreeland Testified.

DUMMY DEALS TO PAY THEM

Electric Storage Battery Stock Deal One of These—More Testimony from Grand Jury Minutes.

Testimony given by H. H. Vreeland, President of the New York City Railway, before the November Grand Jury, which investigated tractions affairs, shows the purpose for which the Metropolitan prior to 1900 spent upward of $750,000 that had to be refunded subsequently to the corporation on account of the character of the payments. Of the refund, $500,000 came through the $100,000 checks of the quintette of traction magnates who were eventually themselves repaid out of the $965,000 with which the Metropolitan Securities Company bought the Wall & Cortlandt Street Ferries Railway Company. The balance came through the sale of 3,500 shares of Electric Storage Battery stock, which it now appears were taken from the treasury of the street railway itself.

Until the minutes of the November Grand Jury were made public yesterday, under an order of Judge Rosalsky, a good deal of mystery surrounded this transaction in its beginnings. Thomas F. Ryan, who had no distinct memory on the subject when he was before the Grand Jury, thought it might have been for preliminary work in the McKinley campaign of 1900. Jerome asked him why the traction magnates should have been moved subsequently to see that the money was refunded.

"Well, they may have been expenditures that were not altogether legitimate at the time," was Mr. Ryan's reply.

Mr. Vreeland, whose memory was not entirely clear when he was before the second of the Grand Juries that investigated traction affairs, had little hesitancy in answering Mr. Jerome as to the purposes of the original payments in November. His story was in brief that a sum considerably in excess of $500,000 had been required in the Fall of 1899 to take up Electric Storage Battery stock that had been carried for politicians and their friends, and had slumped to uncomfortable figures. The District Attorney asked him when these payments had been made, and Mr. Vreeland recalled that it was in the Fall of 1899.

"Mr. Whitney," he said, "advised me that there were moneys required to care for some political purpose, and checks were drawn on the company for this purpose."

Q.—Now to whose order were those checks drawn? A.—There were checks to the order of, to the best of my recollection at the present time, Hollister & Babcock and Moore & Schley. They were entered in suspense account.

Mr. Vreeland next remembered that the payments were made in the latter part of 1898. He had with him a memorandum relating to the series of payments in that year. In that memorandum there was a check for $300,000 for the purchase of stock of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company, payable to Strong, Sturgis & Co., dated May 1, 1899. Other payments shown in the memorandum included one of Dec. 19, 1899, for $264,747.24 to Moore & Schley for the purchase of Electric Storage Battery stock. On the same day there was a payment to Strong, Sturgis & Co. of $123,000 for taking up stock, one of $200,000 to William C. Whitney, and one of $200,000 to C. W. Morse, entitled "taking up stock." Mr. Jerome pointed out to the witness that such payments did not correspond with the ordinary conception of campaign contributions.

"I said for political purposes," Mr. Vreeland replied.

Q.—Was there any politics in that Storage Battery Company? A.—There was, as I understand, in these accounts.

Q.—And your understanding was that these accounts were not true accounts? A.—They were accounts as indicated by the name and letter—that they were special accounts being carried.

Q.—Well, did Mr. Whitney tell you that these storage battery transactions were not real transactions? A.—He told me that they were transactions that he was carrying for political purposes.

Q.—Well, did he get the stock? A.—The company got the stock.

Q.—And remained a part of the assets? A.—It did not.

Q.—What did they do with it? A.—It was turned over to Mr. Whitney.

Q.—Did Mr. Whitney pay for it? A.—No, Sir. It was sold and used to straighten up an account, plus moneys that were paid in.

That was as far as the actual money end of the transaction was traced, Mr. Vreeland saying that he did not know to whom the stock was eventually sold, and it remained for the testimony of George C. Huhn of Philadelphia at the second Grand Jury investigation into the Metropolitan to connect this Electric Storage Battery stock with the 3,500 shares which were sold in January, 1900, in Philadelphia, so that their proceeds could go in with the five contributions of $100,000 each by the quintet of traction magnates and refund to the Metropolitan Railway the money paid out during the previous Fall.

Mr. Jerome asked Mr. Vreeland somewhat more in detail what the exact purpose of these payments might be.

"It was Mr. Whitney's custom," Vreeland said, "to carry stocks in the interest of other people for all the years that I was associated with him."

Q.—That is, you mean that during the years you were associated with him Mr. Whitney was in the habit of carrying stocks for persons prominent in political life, and if there were profits the people prominent in political life got them, and if there were losses Mr. Whitney stood them? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Now, what gave you the idea that he was carrying it for some individual, or individuals, prominent in political life? A.—He said he was carrying it for people interested in politics and for the interest of the company.

Mr. Vreeland said he made no inquiry as to the people for whom Mr. Whitney was carrying the stock, and that he did not know that Mr. Whitney carried any stock for Richard Croker or Charles F. Murphy. He admitted he had no authority from the Directorate for making the payments to Whitney, and that he simply exercised his power as President of the Metropolitan.

Before Mr. Vreeland left the witness stand last November he stated to the Grand Jury that he considered that he was entitled to immunity for any act by reason of data which he had furnished to the Public Service Commission.

When Mr. Ryan was a witness before the November Grand Jury, two interesting theories were propounded, one by Mr. Ryan and one by District Attorney Jerome, as to the Wall and Cortlandt Street Ferries Railway transaction. Mr. Ryan at that time stated that he supposed the $500,000 payment might have been made in the first instance for preliminary work in connection with the McKinley-Bryan campaign, this theory, of course, being superseded by Mr. Vreeland's more detailed statement, which showed that the expenditures were made in the Fall of 1899 for the purpose of taking up Electric Storage Battery stock that had been carried for a lot of politicians.

Mr. Jerome's theory of the matter—also made prior to Mr. Vreeland explanation—so far as the Grand Jury was concerned—was that Mr. Ryan, in 1902, turned philanthropist when the Wall and Cortlandt Street Ferries Railway was sold to the Metropolitan Securities Company. The price was $965,000, leaving a leeway of about $700,000 over the cost to Mr. Ryan and Anthony N. Brady, his partner in the original purchase. The suggestion of philanthropy came in the fact that Mr. Ryan out of this profit received $111,000 only, when he might have received $350,000. The examination went on:

Q.—Now what induced you, this road having been sold without your knowledge or consent, to waive the $350,000 profit? A.—I suppose I did it in the common interest. Other people expected to be reimbursed or had been reimbursed.

A.—And you were content to have them reimbursed out of the profits derived from the sale of that road without any protest? A.—Yes, we had been standing together on this property for a great many years.

Q.—What I am getting at, Mr. Ryan, if you were willing in the interest of the Metropolitan system to waive the very large profits that might have come to you, why didn't you do that and let the company have it at what it cost you? A.—I had nothing to do with that. I had nothing to do with the arrangements.

"Did you sit down and simply acquiesce in the loss of $350,000 to yourself, or $350,000 that you might have given to the company?" Mr. Jerome asked.

"I acquiesced," Mr. Ryan replied.

REPORT CUT IN STEEL BILLETS

$3 Reduction Made, The Iron Trade Review Hears—Producers Meet To-day

A report of the sale of 7,000 tons of steel billets in the Pittsburg district at a cut of $3 a ton from the price which has been maintained since last Fall under the agreement between the leading producers was received in Wall Street yesterday. The seller was said to be a New York furnace, but it was denied in steel circles that the sale, if it was correctly reported, meant that the big producers have broken ranks and are beginning to cut prices.

The Iron Trade Review in to-day's issue is responsible for the story of a $3 cut in billet prices. On this point it says:

The present high price on billets, as compared with pig iron, is generally considered the most vulnerable point of the price schedule on crude steel and finished products, and it is reported that a New York State concern has closed with a consumer in the Pittsburg district for 7,000 tons of open-hearth billets at about $3 per ton below the regular price.

The large allied steel and iron interests have not been able to keep the same hold on the pig iron market that has enabled them to maintain the prices of steel and finished products. The Iron Age to-day says:

Interest centres in the meeting of the pig-iron and ore men in this city to-day. There is little prospect that anything tangible will be done as to prices of pig iron. The Eastern makers are holding a preliminary meeting, some being in favor of a sufficient reduction in the price to permit some metal to be marketed.

The decline in operations at the steel works in April, as compared with March, is reflected in the pig-iron production reported to The Iron Age. The total output of the coke and anthracite furnaces last month was 1,149,000 tons in thirty days, compared with 1,228,000 tons in March, in thirty-one days. The decline in the daily output from 39,619 tons in March to 38,289 tons in April is due largely to the steel works furnaces, whose product fell off from 27,145 tons to 24,185 tons daily.
